B. R. T. AGAIN SHUTS DOWN; HYLAN PLEA FOR UNION FAILS; ACTORS STRIKE, SENDING 12 BROADWAY AUDIENCES HOME; WILSON URGES 80,000 RAILWAY SHOPMEN TO RETURN TO WORK

WILSON ASKS HINES TO ACT

Says Railroad Director Has Power to Pass On Shopmen's Wages.

BUT DEMANDS STRIKE STOP

JEWELL APPEALS TO UNIONS

A. F. of L. Official Urges Men to Return to Work as Requested by President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The situation in regard to the striking railroad employes became so serious today that President Wilson took personal charge of the negotiations and, after a long conference with Director General of Railroads Hines, wrote a communication to the latter, in which he authorized Mr. Hines to proceed with the question of wage adjustments, through the authorized national representatives of the employes, but only in the event that the employes now on strike return to their work.

The President's communication was sent at once to B. M. Jewell, Acting President of the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor, along with a letter in which Mr. Hines urged upon Mr. Jewell the necessity for immediate action on the lines suggested by President Wilson. Upon the receipt of these statements Mr. Jewell called together a number of the officers of the railway employes' organizations.

At midnight Mr. Jewell sent a message to the officers and members of all shopcraft affiliated with the Railway Employes' Department of the A. F. of L., in which he asks them to return to their work as requested by President Wilson. He included in the message copies of the letter sent by President Wilson to Director General Hines and of the letter which he, Jewell, had received from Mr. Hines. In his message Mr. Jewell said:

"The action of our membership in striking in violation of the laws of our organizations has been detrimental and embarrassing to your officers in the handling of these negotiations. It is therefore plainly our duty to instruct every member now out to return to work at once in order that we may proceed with negotiations with the hope of securing a satisfactory adjustment. Failure of the membership to comply with these instructions will, in our judgment, impair the usefulness of our organizations as well as having a detrimental effect upon the entire labor movement. We have no hesitancy in saying that we have abiding faith in the loyalty of the great majority of our membership and that they will immediately comply with the instructions contained herein. This information should be conveyed to the membership of all points."

Action on the part of the President came when Mr. Hines called at the White House early in the day and informed the President that 80,000 railway employes had gone on strike against the advice of their national leaders to support their demands for higher wages without the delay which would result for waiting on Congressional action. Mr. Hines said that the number was twice the total on strike yesterday, and that if matters were permitted to follow such a course without strong intervention a situation would be created where the best efforts in other directions to bring down living costs would be absolutely defeated.

To this viewpoint the President subscribed, and he told the shopmen in no uncertain terms that they must be prepared to accept a heavy responsibility for the situation which would be developed if they persisted in crippling the railroad systems.

The President referred to the relations between transportation and the high living costs, and said in his letter to Mr. Hines:

"I need hardly point out how intimately and directly this matter affects every individual in the nation, and if transportation is interrupted it will be impossible to solve it."

Accepts Cummins Decision.

In his communication to Mr. Hines the President accepts as final a letter from Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, in which Mr. Cummins set forth that the joint request of President Wilson and Mr. Hines for the establishment of a Federal wage adjustment board with rate-making power would not be acceptable to Congress. Under these circumstances, President Wilson told Mr. Hines that he had full authority to proceed with nego-

Text of Wilson's Letter to Railroad Director Authorizing Him to Act on Shopmen's Demands

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The text of President Wilson's letter to Director General of Railroads Hines, authorizing him to take up the demands of the railroad shopmen for higher wages, follows:

WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, Aug. 7, 1919.

My Dear Mr. Director General—I am just in receipt of the letter from Senator Albert B. Cummins, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, which set me free to deal as I think best with the difficult question of the wages of certain classes of railway employes, and I take advantage of the occasion to write you this letter, in order that I may both in the public interest and in the interests of the railroad employes themselves make the present situation as clear and definite as possible.

I thought it my duty to lay the question in its present pressing form before the committee of the Senate, because I thought I should not act upon this matter within the brief interval of Government control remaining without their acquiescence and approval. Senator Cummins's letter, which speaks the unanimous judgment of the committee, leaves me free and, indeed, imposes upon me the duty to act.

The question of the wages of railroad shopmen was submitted, you will remember, to the Board of Railroad Wages and Working Conditions of the Railroad Administration last February, but was not reported upon by the board until the 16th of July. The delay was unavoidable because the board was continuously engaged in dealing with several wage matters affecting classes of employes who had not previously received consideration. The board now having apprised us of this inability, at any rate for the time being, to agree upon recommendation, it is clearly our duty to proceed with the matter in the hope of disposing of it.

You are therefore authorized to say to the railroad shop employes that the question of wages they have raised will be taken up and considered on its merits by the Director General in conference with their duly accredited representatives. I hope that you will make it clear to the men concerned that the Railroad Administration cannot deal with problems of this sort or with any problems affecting the men, except through the duly chosen international officers of the regularly constituted organization and their authorized committees.

Matters of so various a nature and affecting so many men cannot be dealt with except in this way. Any action which brings the authority of the authorized representatives of the organization into question or discredits it must interfere with, if not prevent, action altogether. The chief obstacle to a decision has been created by the men themselves. They have gone out on strike and repudiated the authority of their officers at the very moment when they were urging action in regard to various interests.

You will remember that a conference between yourself and the authorized representatives of the men was arranged at the instance of these representatives for July 28 to discuss the wage question, and the question of a national agreement, but before this conference took place or could take place local bodies of railway shopmen took action looking toward a strike on the 1st of August. As a result of this action, various strikes actually took place before there was an opportunity to act in a satisfactory or conclusive way with respect to the wages. In the presence of these strikes and the repudiation of the authority of the representatives of the organization concerned there can be no consideration of the matter in controversy. Until the employes return to work and again recognize the authority of their own organization, the whole matter must be at a standstill.

When Federal control of the railroads began, the Railroad Administration accepted existing agreements between the shopmen's organization and the several railroad companies, and by agreement machinery was created for handling the grievances of the shopmen's organization of all the railways, whether they had theretofore had the benefits of definite agreements or not. There can be no question, therefore, of the readiness of the Government to deal in a spirit of fairness and by regular methods with any matters the men may bring to their attention.

Concerned and very careful consideration is being given by the entire Government to the question of reducing the high cost of living. I need hardly point out how intimately and directly this matter affects every individual in the nation, and if transportation is interrupted it will be impossible to solve it. This is a time when every employe of the railways should help to make the processes of transportation more easy and economical rather than less, and employes who are on strike are deliberately delaying a settlement of their wage problems and of their standard of living. They should promptly return to work, and I hope that you will urge upon their representatives the immediate necessity for their doing so.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Hon. WALKER D. HINES, Director General of Railroads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—President Wilson tonight completed his message to Congress containing recommendations for legislation to deal with the high cost of living situation, and will read it at a joint session of Congress at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The message was virtually completed this morning and read this afternoon to members of the Cabinet and other Government officials composing the cost of living advisary council, who were summoned to the White House for that purpose. Secretary Glass, Attorney General Palmer, Secretary Redfield, Secretary Houston, Assistant Secretary Leffingwell of the Treasury Department, and Messrs. Colver and Murdock of the Federal Trade Commission attended.

Those present generally approved the message, but some suggestions were submitted to the President, and it is understood that these were made the basis for modifications in the communication, which was sent to the Government Printing Offfice tonight.

No copies of the message will be available until just before the President begins reading it. The hour when the President is scheduled to appear was fixed by himself. Stock and grain markets will be closed before the contents of the message are known. It was denied, however, that this consideration had any bearing on the hour fixed.

The Presidential message will contain 5,000 words. Officials acquainted with its contents tonight would not tell the nature of the recommendations to be

PACKERS TO FACE CRIMINAL CHARGES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Criminal prosecutions on charges of conspiracy as well as civil action for alleged combination will be brought under the anti-trust laws in connection with the Government's fight against the big meat packers.

This statement was made today by Charles F. Clyne, Federal District Attorney for Chicago, who has been called here by Attorney General Palmer. Mr. Clyne said that the Government's case against the packers, alleging conspiracy, would be placed before the Federal Grand Jury, which assembles in three weeks. The first charges, he intimated, would be against corporations rather than individuals.

Preparations are also being made to proceed against the big five—the Armour, Wilson, Morris, Swift, and Cudahy companies—under the anti-hoarding sections of the food control act where there appears to be evidence of violation of that statute. In fact, Mr. Clyne stated, the prosecutions would cover the broadest scope. The investigations are to reach into at least 400 branches of the industry represented by the big five.

It is stated that the rendering business of the packers' combine, in which prominent New York interests are concerned, will be the subject of investigation and of court actions. The Federal Trade Commission has amassed a vast amount of material about this branch of the industry and has charged vicious discriminations and unfair practices.

In addition, a nation-wide publicity campaign is to be put in operation to place before the public facts of production and purchase costs as related to

PLUMB PLAN OR REVOLUTION, SAYS ITS AUTHOR

Tells House Committee Work Will Cease if Returns Keep Diminishing.

CHARGES WALL ST. PLOT

Asserts Bankers Are Planning to Loot Roads When They Are Returned.

SAYS HE WILL OFFER FACTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A revolution, by which he meant general strikes, within sixty or ninety days by the workingmen of the nation unless conditions were changed, was intimated by Glenn E. Plumb, testifying before the House Interstate Commerce Committee this afternoon. Plumb is the author of the "Plumb plan" to nationalize the railroads, and general counsel for the railroad unions. When Representative Barclay of Kentucky, Democrat, asked him what he meant by revolution, Plumb said that after a recent speech in St. Louis a man in a crowd of 3,000 came up to him and said:

"By God, if we can't get this plan there's going to be revolution."

"What do you understand by 'revolution'?" insisted Mr. Barclay.

"I think it means," replied Plumb, "that the men have reached the level of diminishing existence. They can't stand any more. They'll cease to serve. If we don't work out a solution soon we'll have no chance to work it out."

In a statement read to the committee he asserted that railway "interests," led by "Wall Street," were already beginning a campaign to wreck the systems at the expense of the investors. In view of this situation the railway labor organizations had called a "national conference of railroad control" for Saturday in Washington. This statement read:

"During this week, and since your committee requested me to appear, there has come into the possession of the railroad brotherhoods and ten affiliated railway labor organizations of the American Federation of Labor a state of facts never spread before the American people or submitted to the jury of public opinion. These facts tend to show that the wrecking and looting of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, the Chicago & Alton, the Rock Island system, and the Frisco lines are not sporadic examples of the highway robbery to which the American Nation has been subjected as to its public transportation highways. Leading directly from Wall Street and from the banking houses controlled directly by the Morgan and Rockefeller groups, these facts show that there has proceeded a systematized plundering of virtually all of the public transportation highways of the United States.

Charges New Plunder Plot.

"We believe that a Congressional investigation will reveal that not one railroad system dominating any part of the 254,000 miles of railroad in the United States but has suffered and is suffering, in degree if not to the same extent, from carefully deliberated manipulations of the sort that have wrecked and ruined the railroads I have mentioned. It will reveal with emphasis the truth of the words recently uttered before the bankers of Missouri by Elihu Root:

"'Surely some provision must be made to prevent the continuance of the steady progress toward bankruptcy of the railroads which characterized the decade before the Government took possession in 1917.'

"It will reveal that these interests are again gathering their forces of private and secret control and seek, after having gained from Congress a sanction to rehabilitate their railroad properties at public expense, to begin again and follow through its corrupt and wicked cycle the systematized plundering and looting of the public and the public interest in the nation's highways."

Admission was made by Plumb that the State Railway Commissions would be practically eliminated under his plan. Investors in stocks and bonds would receive only 66 per cent. of their supposed value, a percentage, which he considered adequate, as stocks were watered. From $10,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000, he said, would be sufficient to purchase the systems. He predicted a 5 per cent. reduction in rates immediately if his plan was adopted. To Chairman Esch he said that industrial unrest had been brewing for months and that its coupling with the plan was merely because the plan had been introduced at this particular time.

Plumb will take the stand again to-

Wants to Set Up Fine Estate for Kaiser as Prussian King

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 6.—According to the Westphalian Gazette, Count Eulenberg, as "representative of the King of Prussia," has proposed taking 2,500,000 guilders from the ex-Kaiser's private fortune in order to buy an estate where the ex-Kaiser can remain as King of Prussia.

The paper says that Count Eulenberg's proposal will be taken up in the Prussian Diet.

SHOPMEN STRIKE ON THE NEW HAVEN

An unexpected extension of the railroad shopmen's strike yesterday morning to include between 7,000 and 8,000 men employed in the mechanical and inspection departments of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad resulted yesterday afternoon in the curtailment of the number of passenger trains and the elimination of a large part of the Pullman equipment on the long distance trains operated by the system. Whether a further curtailment will be necessary will be decided today.

The strike affects the entire New Haven system, which includes practically all of the railroads in New England. Every shop and every terminal in the territory covered by the system is affected by the walkout.

The first information to the public concerning the strike was in the form of a brief official statement from New York offices which read as follows:

"At 9 a. m. today employes of the mechanical department of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad in the maintenance of locomotives and cars and the inspection of trains at terminals at practically all points on the New Haven road, walked out. No demands have been made upon the officials and no cause given for the withdrawal from service, which we are advised is unauthorized by the executives of the organizations and therefore illegal.

"On account of the withdrawal of the large number of men from service a very serious curtailment of passenger and freight service must necessarily follow, the extent of which cannot be accurately determined at this time. Every effort will be made to operate as many trains as can be done with safety."

A statement issued by the New Haven late last night gave notice of the discontinuance today of several trains running between Boston and New York. These are the trains leaving Boston at 10 A. M., (Knickerbocker Limited,) 3 P. M., and 5 P. M., (Merchants' Limited,) over the Shore Line, and at 7:46 A. M. and 1:40 P. M. by way of Willimantic and Hartford, and "corresponding service in the opposite direction."

Other trains cut off are the Federal Express, the White Mountain Express, the Bar Harbor Express, and the State of Maine Express.

Parlor and dining-car service will be discontinued on all trains except the Colonial Express leaving Boston for Washington, at 9 A. M.

Trains leaving Boston at 4:28 P. M. for Providence and New London, and leaving Providence at 11 A. M. for Boston will be discontinued.

Through trains will make scheduled stops in suburban territory on the New Haven Road "as far as practicable outside of rush hours."

10,000 Quit in New England.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—The strike of approximately 10,000 mechanics employed in shops, roundhouses, and terminals in Massachusetts and New Hampshire today led to the suspension by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad late in the day of passenger train service in the Boston suburban districts, and to announcement by the Boston & Maine Railroad of a similar suspension to become effective tomorrow morning. The Boston & Albany, the third road affected, did not lay off any trains today, and will try to carry on its suburban business as usual tomorrow.

Freight Traffic Curtailed in West.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Practically all railroads of the Middle West had in effect today orders to "accept freight subject to delay" on account of the strike of Federated Railway Shopmen. The strike of the shopmen continued to spread, and M. L. Hawver, President of the council directing the strike in the Middle West,

LEADING PLAYERS GO OUT, CLOSING BIG ATTRACTIONS

ALL THE HOUSES FILLED

MORE SHOWS MAY BE HIT

Equity Association Expected to Attack Vaudeville, Burlesque, and Movie Houses.

On notice varying from five to thirty minutes a hundred or more actors and actresses last night closed twelve attractions in New York's first class theatres and precipitated one of the most remarkable situations ever known in the history of the American stage.

The strike, which affected two-thirds of the legitimate theatres, probably will be extended today to New York's remaining playhouses if the managers do not capitulate. In addition, another strike call was issued which will hold up all "regular dramatic productions" now in rehearsal.

The calling out of the players followed a strike meeting of the Actors' Equity Association, 1,400 strong, in the afternoon, and was the reply of the association to the refusal of the managers to treat with it.

The strike astounded the managers, who were in most cases utterly unprepared. In one or two instances attempts were made to give the shows with understudies, but in only one case was the attempt successful.

Audiences were bewildered. In most cases crowded houses had assembled before the announcement of a strike was made to the managers and, in turn, communicated to the audiences. At nearly all houses long lines of patrons stood at the box offices until 10 o'clock and later to have their money refunded, and there were hurried calls for cash from many theatre treasurers.

Despite the warnings of a strike which the actors have sounded, all concerned last night were so surprised by the turn of events that it was impossible to say what would happen next. The only thing certain is that the actors have chosen the most prosperous summer in the history of the theatre for their strike, and that huge sums of money will be lost by managers and actors alike if an adjustment is not quickly forthcoming. The amount of money turned back at twelve theatres last night was in the neighborhood of $25,000.

May Be Extended.

Although the theatrical managers allied themselves on Wednesday with the vaudeville, burlesque, and screen interests, only the players in legitimate houses were called out last night. Possible extension of the strike to these houses is a matter yet to be determined, as is the question of participation in the strike by stagehands, musicians, and billposters.

Performances of the following scheduled attractions were not given last night:

"Nightie Night," which was to have had its première at the Princess Theatre;
"The Challenge," at the Selwyn;
"A Voice in the Dark, at the Republic;
"Listen, Lester," at the Knickerbocker;
"The Royal Vagabond," at the Cohan & Harris;
"The Crimson Alibi," at the Broadhurst;
"At 9:45," at the Playhouse;
"The Five Million," at the Lyric.
"Lightnin'," at the Gaiety.
"East Is West," at the Astor.

A strike was also called at the Booth, where "The Better 'Ole" is playing, but understudies were placed in two important rôles, and the play was given as usual.

The most dramatic happening of the evening took place at the Cohan and Harris Theatre, where the attraction was "The Royal Vagabond." This house is under the management of Cohan and Harris, and the fact that Sam H. Harris is President of the Producing Managers' Association made it a practical certainty that his theatre would be among those affected.

Sympathetic for the Chorus.

Here the audience was kept in its seats until 9 o'clock before an announcement was made. The curtain was then raised to disclose the thirty-five or more members of the chorus, both boys and girls, grouped on the stage in their street clothes. Sam Forrest, general stage director for the firm, then informed the audience that the strike had

Judge Mayer Announces He Upholds Garrison

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, in answer to a telegram from Corporation Counsel Burr of New York City asking him to instruct Receiver Garrison of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to deal with union officials, telegraphed tonight to Mr. Burr:

"It is impracticable in this telegram to dwell at length upon what seems to be misapprehension of the questions involved as conveyed by your telegram. I am telegraphing you promptly in the hope of making clear my answer to the request urged by you, by direction of the Mayor.

"First—Receiver Garrison is dealing only with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit situation and none other.

"Second—His recent letter to the committee was sound in principle and practice and has my full approval.

"Third—I am glad to learn that the appropriate officials will preserve order. Such is their duty, which I must assume they will fully perform.

"Fourth—If violence or unlawful acts occur, it must be presumed that the lawbreakers will be brought to justice and relentlessly prosecuted.

"Fifth—Receiver Garrison is adhering to the principles stated by him in March, which I also comprehensively stated officially in open court when a strike was then threatened."

LAHEY TO CHECK STRIKE VIOLENCE

DISORDERS HALT SUDDENLY

Motor Trucks Ready to Quell Riots—100 Manhattan Detectives Will Aid.

The acts of violence which marked every few minutes of the attempt to operate cars in Brooklyn yesterday seemed to come to a sudden halt last night when Deputy Commissioner William J. Lahey, who had been called back from his vacation, took charge of the police in Brooklyn and announced that a vigorous policy would be pursued for the protection of property and men, and it was hoped that the rioting and shooting and beating of B. R. T. workers would be put down summarily.

Simultaneously with his arrival extreme activity became noticeable on the part of the police. Borough Inspector Thomas Murphy, the six district Inspectors and a host of police Captains and Lieutenants met in conference with Lahey and began to outline plans for handling the situation today.

Deputy Police Commissioner Lahey told the B. R. T. officials that he would give them police protection. When he was called up on the telephone by General Manager William S. Menden of the B. R. T. and asked at what time the company should shut down the lines, Lahey replied:

"We don't want you to shut them down at all. We will give you protection for twenty-four hours of the day for all the cars you want to run. Run all the cars you can, and we will promise you the protection."

Large motor cars and trucks began to pull up in front of Police Headquarters, indicating that the police proposed to form flying squadrons for strong-arm work on rioters. An army truck from Governors Island backed up to the station and began to unload cases marked "steel helmets." There were 500 helmets in all.

It was reported that the police on guard on cars would wear them, as several patrolmen were painfully hurt during the day by missiles thrown by strikers at passing cars. Borough Inspector Murphy later declared that an error had been made and that the helmets would be returned to Governors Island. He said the Brooklyn police had not ordered them.

Boy Hit by Shot.

The first shots of the strike were fired yesterday morning at 2:30 o'clock, when men opened fire from a doorway on a street car at Schenectady Avenue and Bergen Street. In a desperate battle at the platform of the Livonia Avenue Station of the Canarsie-Broadway Line later in the morning, Police Corporal Wubnick fired to bring a fugitive to halt, and the bullet hit Max Kaufman, 12 years old, of 436 Snediker Avenue in the back, injuring him seriously.

Threats with drawn revolvers were reported numerous times during the day, and actual shootings occurred frequently, though the shots were directed in the air or went wild.

A fusillade of shots marked one of the worst riots of the day, which occurred in an attack by strikers, aided by sympathizers among shipyard workers in South Brooklyn, in which the motormen, conductor and two policemen on a car were mobbed and injured at Third Avenue between Twenty-sixth and

CAR STRIKERS DEFY POLICE

MAYOR APPEALS TO COURTS

ASSERT 9,000 MEN ARE OUT

Company Again Abandons Service at Night, but Promises to Resume This Morning.

Virtually all loyal surface car employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and a large proportion of the subway and elevated men were driven from their cars by violence and threats against their lives yesterday, so that surface car operation in the afternoon was at a standstill, and elevated and subway lines were able to carry only about 10 per cent. of the normal traffic.

At 9 o'clock last night the company again announced that it had abandoned all its service, but that it would attempt to resume operation this morning with as many cars as there are policemen to act as guards on them.

In spite of this, Mayor Hylan insisted that the police were keeping order and that the heart of the difficulty was the refusal of Lindley M. Garrison, receiver for the B. R. T., to deal with the strikers. At the Mayor's direction, Corporation Counsel William P. Burr applied to Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, who has jurisdiction over the road and who appointed Mr. Garrison, for an order directing the receiver to confer with the strike chiefs.

Late last night, Judge Mayer, who is in Buffalo, telegraphed in reply that he approved the stand taken by Mr. Garrison. He urged the city officials to see that there was no violence, or in case of any unlawful acts, that the violators be punished.

Disorder Unrestrained.

In disorder which continued all day in many parts of Brooklyn, while the police were apparently helpless, employes who remained at their posts were shot at, and in several cases injured by flying horseshoes and bricks. Nearly every man who started out with a car was beaten or threatened until he gave up the attempt to operate.

Rails were greased, switches were tampered with, blocks of heated iron were put on the tracks, wagons were stolen and wrecked on the tracks. Scores of train crews were hauled off the cars and the fares were stolen by the strikers.

Crowds of hundreds gathered without police interference and beat or overawed conductors and motormen. Big loads of strikers in motor vehicles dashed from point to point, showering cars which were supposed to be guarded by policemen, with stones, chunks of asphalt, eggs and other missiles.

In no case was it reported yesterday that the police stopped or interfered with one of the motor loads of terrorists who prevented operation of the cars, although in many cases individual policemen made bold stands against superior numbers and fought bravely with nightsticks, sometimes being successful and sometimes overpowered and beaten.

Mr. Garrison asserted last night that some of the policemen had been half hearted in their effort to combat mob rule in Brooklyn. He pointed out that they had not attempted to nip violence in the bud by dispersing crowds when they began to congregate or by stopping the motor-truck pickets who kept charging cars at various points.

Motor Vehicle Service.

In the meantime, the number of motor trucks, vans, automobiles, carry-alls, and vehicles of all sorts in Brooklyn multiplied. Men came with machines from Newark, Montclair, Patchogue, and various other points in New Jersey and on Long Island to increase the New York and Brooklyn supply of vehicles, which sought, at high prices, to do the work of the paralyzed traction system of Brooklyn.

Hay wagons and ancient picnic carry-alls, with motor lorries attached, were among the array of vehicles which operated over fixed routes, covering virtually every section of Brooklyn. At the rush hour men and women were packed in them, standing up, like cattle. Firms in Manhattan and Brooklyn which employ large forces in many cases operated their own services.

Many strikers took charge of motor vehicles, advertising in placards that they were on strike but wanted to help the public. Prices ranged from 10 cents to $1 a ride, according to the kind of vehicle and the length of the trip. Streets in Brooklyn ordinarily little used by automobiles looked like Fifth Avenue on a busy afternoon. This added another problem to the many confronting the police, because accidents and tremendous traffic tangles resulted at congested points.

Receiver Garrison made a trip in an automobile over all the B. R. T. lines, addressing words of praise to loyal employes, and watching the aggressive pickets in action. On his return late in the day he heard for the first time that Mayor Hylan, after conferring with the strike leaders, had sought an order from Judge Mayer, compelling him to deal with the strikers.

Garrison Will Not Meet Leaders.

Mr. Garrison said he would not deal with them, if they succeeded in preventing every wheel on the B. R. T. from moving. He said that if such an order was made he would resign.

"I do not believe the police are acting whole-heartedly in giving protection to B. R. T. employes," he said. "I believe they have misconstrued their orders. They are acting passively, when they should be active. Policemen on cars are not preventing crowds from organizing. Instead of dispersing them as they start to gather, the policy has been to let them congregate, without interference, until acts of violence are committed. There would be less violence if the police acted more promptly."

Asked if he would deal with the leaders of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, as suggested by the Mayor, he said:

"Absolutely no. I am convinced that I cannot deal with these men as a union. These men are outsiders. I don't care if they tie up every wheel in Brooklyn. I will not receive them as a union.

"There were enough men in the car barns to operate many of the cars today, but they were prevented from working by a small minority. I believe it is against all principles of Americanism for men to be permitted to prevent other men from working, and to prevent a public service corporation from doing its duty to the public."

Complains of Police to Mayor.

After returning from his tour Mr. Garrison addressed the following letter to Mayor Hylan, with a detailed list of acts of violence:

Aug. 7, 1919.

Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor City of New York, City Hall, Manhattan:

My Dear Mr. Mayor—I have just returned from an all-day tour over the system, and I find conditions practically similar at each point. Yesterday each depot had enough crews on hand to operate the road substantially on a normal basis, but as I previously informed you, the lack of any protection to the men operating the cars made it impossible to send them out the second time after a crew had gone out and had been assaulted and intimidated and returned to the barn, nor could other crews be induced to go out under the circumstances.

Last evening you informed me that you would see that policemen were placed upon the cars, and stated to me that Chief Inspector Daly would get in touch with me concerning the matter. He did so, and it turned out that all the policemen had come from such distances that they could not be gathered and distributed in time to do any good, so that operation under their protection was not attempted until this morning. Owing to circumstances that were probably unavoidable and nobody's fault, many policemen were gathered at some depots where a few were needed, and a few appeared at some depots where many were needed.

The happenings at each depot were substantially the same. I visited all the important ones and am informed that similar conditions existed at those I did not visit. Policemen went out on the cars, and, so far as we know, would have prevented any direct physical assault upon a motorman or a conductor or a passenger. They did not prevent stones, and in one instance which I saw, a cannon ball and horseshoes and other dangerous missiles were hurled through windows, seriously cutting the operatives.

Neither did they prevent crowds gathering and impeding the progress of the cars, during which the men in charge of the cars were insulted and were threatened with bodily harm if they again appeared upon the streets on cars. In one instance, a truck load of strike sympathizers barred the passage of a string of cars, and the policemen refused to require the truck to move off the track, and all the cars on the line were backed up against the obstruction, with the result that a large crowd gathered and conditions such as I have recited ensued.

In addition thereto, while the cars were at a standstill owing to the obstruction, various parts of the cars were tampered with, interfering with their successful and safe operation.

In other words, while it is true that policemen have been furnished and have been placed upon the cars, it is not true that they have acted in a way to prevent intimidation of the crews and the placing of obstructions to the progress of the cars or actual physical damage to the operatives.

In each depot I visited I found many crews which were competent to take cars out, and said that they were willing to take them out as soon as they were convinced similar experiences to those previously experienced would not be repeated.

They feel that while the policemen would be bodily present they would not exert themselves to prevent intimidation or tampering with the cars or injury to the operatives. They believe that the policemen either had no instructions to prevent intimidation, or, if they had such instructions, refrained from acting on them.

The condition of the road at this time is that we can operate a very great number of cars and render a very large part of our service if order were maintained, and the men operating the cars were free from intimidation and the cars themselves were free from physical interference. We cannot do this while the men are subject, as at present, to intimidation, and while the property is subject, as at present, to being tampered with.

I am enclosing herewith a partial list which has been hastily noted of the occurrences today, a glance at which will indicate the general character of the conduct of the strikers and their sympathizers and will indicate why it is that we cannot get the loyal men to continue at work while such happenings are constantly occurring.

I feel assured that upon your being advised of the facts you will issue such instructions to the police as will indicate your own vigorous, firm and unqualified determination that law and order must prevail, and that men who desire to labor may do so in peace, and that the community must have the benefit of the service that we are ready to render if conditions permit. Sincerely yours,

LINDLEY M. GARRISON,
Receiver.

P. S.—While dictating the above I am just advised that at about 6 P. M. seven cars were started from Fresh Pond Depot, with fourteen policemen, two to each car, accompanied by four mounted policemen. Two of the cars got as far as Silver Street and Fresh Pond Road, and five of the cars got as far as Fresh Pond and Myrtle Avenue, when the cars were attacked by a mob of 1,000 people, strikers and sympathizers.

A motorman acting as a conductor, in trying to replace the pole on the wire, which had been pulled off, was struck with a blackjack. An inspector acting in the capacity of conductor had his eye blackened.

No assistance was given them by the police on the cars, and at the last report, when the cars were moved back to the depot, the full number of policemen was still trying to disperse the mob at this point.

Gives List of Attacks.

The list of occurrences sent to the Mayor by Mr. Garrison follows:

Conductor Goldstein assaulted by one man while two other men held door of car open; conductor called upon Officer 8550 to make arrest, but officer replied, "Oh, let him go."

Conductor Mitchell—Car held up by gang, who broke windows and threw stones; conductor injured; strikers pulled at conductor; conductor pointed out man who threw rock to Officer 2845, who did nothing.

Conductor O'Connor—Car stopped by crowd; pole pulled off; crew ordered by strikers to take car back to barn; passengers chased off car; police officers present on car; two officers on street made no effort to prevent.

Passengers Hiss Car Crews.

The police have not only the striking B. R. T. men to contend with, but sympathizers numbering many thousands. Some of the worst trouble yesterday was caused by shipyard workers, who responded to the appeal of the strikers for help. Other men made idle by the 124 other strikes in Brooklyn joined in the disturbances on general principles.

In some cases it was reported that the passengers themselves shouted "scab" at conductors and motormen and jostled them. At terminals, crowds which seemed to be without any mixture of the striking element, hissed loyal employes.

Even if more cars had been provided, it is doubtful if the general public would have ridden in much larger numbers, because of the attacks on the cars. Where acts of violence occurred in various part of the city, crowds of onlookers assembled and watched at a distance. They saw bonfires built on rails, mounds of rock placed on the tracks, conductors and motormen dragged from their cars and beaten, trolley lines cut, car windows systematically smashed, and car furniture broken.

These things occurred too frequently to give the public a taste for riding, and many cars that did go out had few passengers on them.

Mayor Hylan, in his limousine, late yesterday drove on his way home to Borough Hall in Brooklyn, and stopped to survey the hundreds of motor and horse-drawn vehicles from which barkers were shouting: "Bushwick Avenue line," "get aboard," "the Gates' Avenue express," and so on. Among these were strikers driving trucks, with the slogan: "We give better service than the B. R. T."

The Mayor, who previously had said the tieup corroborated his theory that the true solution of the traffic problem was bus lines, studied the scene carefully.

The Mayor, who is a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and who was called into consultation by the leaders of the B. R. T. strike last November, before officials of the line had heard that a strike was threatened, announced his plan to coerce Receiver Garrison by legal action into a conciliatory attitude, after he had consulted at the City Hall with strike leaders who called on him on their own initiative. The Mayor wrote as follows to Corporation Counsel Burr:

Mayor Orders Appeal to Court.

City of New York.
Office of the Mayor.
Aug. 7, 1919.

Dear Mr. Burr—This morning a committee representing the strikers on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit visited the Mayor's office and requested that I, as Mayor of the city, should use every endeavor in my power to bring about a meeting of a committee representing the strikers and Receiver Garrison of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, in order that the questions at issue between the employes and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit be discussed and, if necessary, referred to the committee for arbitration.

Due to the strike on the Brooklyn transit system, the general public, employers of labor and their help have been greatly discommoded and subjected to great financial loss. Receiver Garrison has demanded from the City of New York police protection. That demand has been fully met by the police of the city; and let me say as Mayor that property and life in the City of New York will be fully protected, no matter what the cost may be. I have every confidence in our police. Should they be unable to cope with the existing situation other means will be sought.

You are the head of the legal branch of the City Government. Mr. Garrison, as Receiver, appointed as such by the Federal courts, which courts denied the City of New York the right of a co-receiver, declined to meet a committee of the strikers previous to the declaring of the strike. As Mayor of the city, I have suggested to him that in the public interest he should meet such committee. I have received no reply to that suggestion up to this hour.

As the legal representative of the city, I now suggest to you that you make application to Justice Mayer of the Federal Court, who appointed Receiver Garrison, that Receiver Garrison be directed to meet a committee and discuss their grievances and submit, if necessary, the questions at issue for arbitration, so that the business public of the City of New York can peacefully resume their respective daily occupations.

Very truly yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Burr Fears Strike Will Spread.

Corporation Counsel Burr then sent this telegram to Federal Judge Mayer:

Aug. 7, 1919.

Hon. Julius M. Mayer,
Hotel Iroquois, Buffalo, N. Y.

By direction of Mayor Hylan, I hereby respectfully but most urgently request that you immediately instruct Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the B. R. T. system, appointed by the Federal Court, to confer at once—in the public interests and in order to prevent the spread of riot and disorder—with the representatives of the labor unions acting on behalf of the employes of the B. R. T. system now on strike, in order that the questions at issue between such employes and the B. R. T. may be discussed, and, if necessary, be referred to a committee for arbitration.

Everything that can be done by the city administration is being done to preserve law and order and to protect life and property to the fullest extent. In spite of this the strike is spreading and, it is feared, will embrace the whole City of New York.

The sole obstacle to a fair presentation of the grievances of the strikers and a possible agreement is stated to be the absolute refusal of the receiver appointed by the Federal Court to in any way recognize the existence of the labor unions in fact or in principle.

The situation is grave and demands immediate action. Throughout the country the right of employes to combine for mutual advantage and for the purpose of collective bargaining has been generally recognized. The denial of that right by the Federal receiver may be the means of causing great and immediate harm, and will undoubtedly add seriously to the difficulties confronting the country.

For the protection of the railroad property, and in the interests of the traveling public, and for the promotion of the general safety and welfare, I earnestly request that you at once instruct the receiver to confer with a committee representing the strikers to ascertain their grievances, and to arrange if possible for a proper and fair adjustment of such grievances by arbitration.

The Federal Government has to good advantage recognized the labor unions in the past, and what the Federal Government has done the Federal receiver, it seems to me, may well afford to do in the public interests.

WILLIAM P. BURR,
Corporation Counsel.

Garrison Replies to Mayor.

Although the Mayor said he had received no reply from Receiver Garrison, the latter previously had sent this letter to the Mayor's communication of Wednesday suggesting conciliation:

Hon. John F. Hylan, Mayor, New York City, City Hall, Manhattan, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. Mayor—I received your letter of yesterday evening this morning.

I note that you confirm our telephone conversation, and have directed the Commissioner to see that we receive adequate police protection, including placing of policemen on cars. I desire to thank you for this action, as in no other way would it be possible to prevent the disorders and violence which paralyzed operation of the road yesterday. I hope the employes of the road will overcome the fear instilled in them yesterday and will, in increasing numbers, return to their duties today. As they do so we will be able to restore normal operation.

In pursuance of your orders, the police authorities today are furnishing policemen as rapidly as they say it is possible, and I assume this is the fact. They are not, however, as yet furnishing us sufficient policemen to take out cars for which we have crews.

The last paragraph of your letter states: "The newspapers this morning reported that you declined to meet a committee of your employes, and the present situation is a result of such refusal. May I suggest to you that it would be better to take a more conciliatory attitude and meet a committee, and see if the points in controversy could not be settled by arbitration in the interest of the general public."

In response to this suggestion I beg leave to bring to your attention just what the situation is. On Monday last a committee called at my office and left there a series of demands. In such statement it was set forth that a mass meeting had been held on the previous Friday and that these demands had been adopted at such mass meeting.

The second one of such demands, and the one which the committee stated was the principal demand, was the recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America. In reply to the communication of the committee I in substance informed them that I could not recognise the right of their organization to deal for our men; that I was entirely willing to deal with the employes in respect of their working conditions, but that I was not willing to deal with such outside organization in respect of the working conditions of our employes.

This organization, at the time that the communication was delivered to me, had as members only a small minority of our employes. They sought to have me recognize their association and deal with it as if it represented all of our employes. I believe that you will see that this was an impracticable and impossible situation. I could not properly deal with this outside organization as if it represented our men, because in fact it only represented a very small proportion.

In respect to all matters concerning the working conditions of our men, my attitude has not only been conciliatory but has been entirely sympathetic. I have always met such committees of our men, and have always reached an agreement.

The difficulty in the present situation is that there is no opening for conciliation. I was told on Monday that if I did not recognise their organization by Tuesday night they would strike Wednesday morning. The only conciliation would have been surrender on my part of the principle that I feel it very necessary to maintain unless turbulent minorities are, by force and violence, to obtain control of any situation which they seek to control.

The conduct of this association since the declaration of the strike is sufficient vindication of my position. As you know, their call for a strike resulted in a response on behalf of our men amounting to a very small minority. Our service was not crippled in the least by their defection, and it was only by assault and threats of physical violence that they scared loyal men and prevented them from taking their cars out.

All day yesterday they kept up this kind of intimidation until they finally succeeded in preventing the loyal men from operating the system. Without such intimidation the system would have operated practically on a normal basis.

I can assure you that I am taking no arbitrary position; that I am entirely willing, as I always have been, to deal with our employes concerning any of their working conditions, but I cannot permit an outside organization to force itself by violence into the situation and control it.

I am sure that you can understand the facts and that you will realize the propriety of the position I have taken and shall maintain.

Sincerely yours,
LINDLEY M. GARRISON, Receiver.

Say 9,000 Men Are Out.

The strike leaders were elated with the progress of the strike. They asserted that the strikers had increased until they included 9,000 of the 13,000 employes, including shopmen, on the B. R. T. lines. They declared 2,000 men had joined the strikers overnight, and that men who had quit work were streaming in during the day to sign the membership rolls.

In all public meetings, the strikers deprecated violence, although the organization of the pickets and the systematic plan on which acts of violence were committed indicated that the program of terrorism was being skillfully directed by some one.

Edward Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Local No. 876 of the trolleymen's union, said that the employes of the Long Island traction trolleys, which included lines to Mineola, Hempstead, Valley Stream, Garden City and nearly all the towns on Long Island, had voted to strike in sympathy with the Brooklyn men. The order, it was said, would take effect at 5 o'clock this morning.

"If the police man the cars," he said, "it will be an outrage. The functions of the police are strictly defined by law, to protect life and property. Officials of the Amalgamated are discouraging acts of violence.

"Since the strike is being conducted in a peaceable and law-abiding manner, if it is true that the police are being placed on cars, we consider that the citizens and tax-payers' money is being illegally spent to hire official strikebreakers. Such action would seem to show a desire by police officials to help the B. R. T. to break a successful strike.

"We have the confidence and respect of the public, which is an asset in a situation of this kind, and the appearance of police on the cars could not but help to destroy the confidence the public has in us. This is undoubtedly what the B. R. T. is seeking to accomplish. They realize what public opinion is."

Strike leaders telephoned to the police yesterday asserting that inexperienced conductors and motormen were being employed by the B. R. T. Borough Inspector Murphy said he had investigated the reports and could not confirm them. Superintendent Siebert of Surface Car Operation for the B. R. T. said none but thoroughly experienced men were being employed, and that no other class would be employed. No accidents were reported yesterday as the result of mistakes by car crews.

At no place did the police arrive in the numbers assigned. At some places none reported until late in the morning; at others only a few were on hand. Reports at 8 o'clock showed there were 236 cars in operation on the surface lines and 178 on the elevated and subways. This number steadily diminished until virtually no service at all was being given late in the afternoon. The report, dated 5:10 o'clock A. M., showed the following situation at the depots:

Depots.	Employes on Hand.	Police on Hand.
Fifty-eighth Street	66	20
Flatbush	18	25

Total	455	241

Depots.	Police Assigned.	Police On Hand.	Men Willing to Work.
Fresh Pond	150	85	..

Crews having been beaten, robbed, threatened with revolvers and shot at during the morning, the surface cars in operation had been reduced by noon from 236 to 104, according to the following table:

CONGESTION CLEARS EARLY.

Steady Flow of Jitneys Carries Host Home Over Bridges.

When the home-going hour came yesterday there was the same congestion at the bridge entrances, in the Interborough subway stations, and at the ferries as there was on Wednesday. There was this difference, however: Every worker had apparently planned the method by which he or she was to return home, and so every one moved with a definite object in view. The result was that there was a minimum of confusion in Park Row, where thousands pass on their way to the Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Williamsburg Bridges.

It was estimated that more than 10,000 persons walked over the Brooklyn Bridge in the early evening. They were those who live within a mile of the other end of the bridge and who had determined that the quickest way home was to walk. The great majority went home in auto trucks, in automobiles of every description, and in horse-drawn vehicles. There was very little apparent attempt at extortion.

The vehicles that made their appearance were in the most part plainly marked, with the destination, and the price charged. "Last stop Utica Avenue, 50c."; "To Coney Island and Sea Gate, 50c."; "Across the Bridge, 25c.," and "To East New York, 35c.," were some of the signs that were displayed. These vehicles cruised slowly up and down in streets or were stationed at convenient points, and they had no trouble in filling to capacity.

Because of the fact that nearly every worker had decided not to use the lines of the B. R. T. as a means of getting home there was no crowding in the station in the Municipal Building, which was the scene of such confusion and congestion on Wednesday evening that the sale of tickets had to be stopped. Very few persons seemed to be anxious to use these lines. The Jamaica line was apparently the only one doing any business and the trains came in at about thirty-minute intervals. They left the terminal only about half filled. Between 7 and 8 o'clock the four policemen on duty on the platforms were taken for other duty leaving only those stationed upstairs on the job.

Upstairs on the bridge elevated platforms trains of two, three and four cars at periods of half an hour came in with scarcely any passengers from Brooklyn, and went out half empty, so few were waiting to be taken to Brooklyn. At half past seven four trains came in, one after the other. The first was a Myrtle Avenue train, followed by a Jamaica, a Lexington Avenue, and a Brighton Beach train. They carried away but few passengers and after that no train arrived until 8 o'clock. Even the bridge promenade bore a comparatively deserted appearance after 7 o'clock.

Vehicular traffic carried more than 125,000 persons to Brooklyn across the Manhattan Bridge between 4 and 8 o'clock and there was at no time any extraordinary halt in this stream of travel. The peak of the rush hour traffic on Manhattan Bridge was reached at 6:30 o'clock, when for several minutes an average of thirty-five vehicles a minute passed into the bridge approach. Even then, however, there was no slacking up in the speed with which the pedestrians at Bowery and Canal Street moved across the streets. There was no congestion at any time. At this point Sergeant Peter McEntee of Traffic A was in charge. It kept the traffic patrolmen working constantly to maintain this condition, but they did it and kept smiling all the time.

From 6:30 until 7 o'clock the traffic gradually grew lighter and at 7:30 o'clock practically all of those bound for Brooklyn had crossed the bridge. From 6:30 o'clock on some of the improvised jitneys were going back with seats vacant. A little later, returning from Brooklyn, their drivers were hawking for fares in vain.

INDEPENDENT LINES RUN.

Many Passengers Use Cars to Astoria and Jamaica.

Surface trolley lines in Queens, operated by the New York & Queens County Railway Company, a subsidiary of the Interborough, and the Manhattan & Queens Traction Company, an independent line, were unaffected by the strike up to last evening.

These lines run from the Manhattan end of the Queensborough Bridge to Astoria, Steinway, North Beach, Corona, Flushing, and College Point, and from the latter point to Jamaica. The Manhattan & Queens Traction Company operates a shuttle line on the Queensborough Bridge, and from Fifty-ninth Street, Manhattan, to Jamaica.

Thousands of residents of the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn were inconvenienced by the tieup of the crosstown lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company that comes over the Vernon Avenue viaduct to Third Street, Long Island City.

DELANEY DENIES REPORTS OF RIOTS

FINDS SERVICE CRIPPLED

Transit Commissioner, After Personal Tour, Declares Majority Heeded Strike Call.

In a statement yesterday Transit Commissioner John H. Delaney said that he had made a careful survey of the situation on the rapid transit lines operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and had found the service inadequate. He characterized the statements emanating from the office of the company about violence and rioting as untrue. These reports were issued by authority of Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the company, and Mr. Delaney's denial of their truthfulness brings him into direct conflict with the receiver.

Mr. Delaney's statement was made at the hearing called by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon to inquire into the condition of Brooklyn's transportation lines, and to lend whatever aid was possible to adjust the trouble so that traffic might be speedily resumed. Although the public had been invited to attend the hearing the meeting room of the commission held only a score when Mr. Nixon opened the proceedings. Mr. Delaney had been invited to occupy a seat on the dais with Mr. Nixon, but he declined and sat at the counsel table with the representatives of the company, the city and the commission.

Counsel for the company suggested that the hearing be postponed until this morning because of the unavoidable absence of Mr. Garrison, and Mr. Nixon appeared to think favorably of the suggestion when Mr. Delaney interposed a vigorous objection. His remarks, taken from the minutes of the stenographer, follow:

"I desire to protest against any delay in this hearing or any adjournment of the appearance of the Receiver and managers of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. I have made a personal investigation of this situation and a personal tour of all the lines. I started at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and continued in this work for five hours, returning to the office at 3:30 o'clock.

"I found that the service was wholly inadequate, and I found that the reports which had emanated from the office of the railroad company, and which I had received in my office, to the effect that operation was prevented by violence and rioting, and that there was inadequate police protection, were untruthful, to say the least.

"During the entire five hours I was out I visited practically all important railroad points in the borough and found ample police protection at every point. There was no disorder, no rioting, no violence anywhere. It is my belief that the reports regarding the number of men who went on strike were inaccurate if not untruthful.

"At 9 o'clock in the morning it was reported from the B. R. T. office that approximately 1,000 men were out and that others were leaving their cars and trains on account of intimidation. When I went out I found that the service on the lines had decreased to less than one-half the former number of trains and that this was obviously caused by the failure of the men to report to work.

"The fact is that less than one-half the usual number of trains were running. Whether that be because the men had left their employment in larger numbers than the receiver had stated, or whether no effort was being made to operate trains, of course, I cannot say. From all appearances, however, two-thirds of the men had voluntarily left the service or were being detained in car headquarters.

"Now, in connection with the first consideration that, perhaps, two-thirds had voluntarily left, I am considering the statements made in the newspapers that the receiver had refused to meet a committee of the men to discuss the matters in controversy. I think that if such an arbitrary and unreasonable action has been taken, the receiver ought to come here this afternoon, and he certainly ought to be here at the earliest possible moment to make explanation why he has inflicted this hardship on the public for the purpose of exercising some arbitrary power which he thinks he possesses.

"This is much greater than the mere matter of the opinion of Receiver Garrison—as to whether unions ought to exist or not. It is a matter that affects every one of the million and a half population of Brooklyn. Therefore, I enter my protest against any adjournment until tomorrow afternoon.

"It appears to me that the railroad officials underestimated the number of men that would be involved, and when they find that the majority of their employes have really responded to the strike call they undertake to pass the responsibility to the police without any warrant in the situation for so doing."

When Mr. Delaney resumed his seat there was a slight pause and an evident air of embarrassment, but Mr. Nixon responded cordially and decided that the hearing should proceed, to be followed with another hearing today at which those who decided to attend might have an opportunity to be heard. Then employes of the commission were called, and their evidence sustained in a measure the reports from Brooklyn of violence and rioting, although there was no testimony indicating that disorder was rampant or beyond police control.

George F. Daggett, chief of the commission's transit bureau, read a table showing the effect of the strike upon service. The table was made up from reports received from inspectors stationed at the various points. It was as follows:

Comparative Table.

Depot.	Normal Operation. Rush No. Cars.	Normal Operation. Non-rush No. Cars.	Operation. Aug. 7, 8 A. M. P.C.	Operation. Aug. 7, 10:30 AM P.C.	Strike Conditions. Aug. 7, 12 Noon. P.C.

R. H. Nexsen, the commission's electrical engineer in charge of equipment, submitted a table prepared from reports of inspectors which showed the number of men employed normally in the various depots, the number working at the time, the number of cars assigned to be taken out, and the number actually operated. The time, depot, number of men normally employed in operating cars, and the men who remained at work during the period, are shown in this table. The time is yesterday morning during the rush period:

Table on Service.

Depot.	Time.	Normal number of men.	Actually working.
Fresh Pond	9	600	none
Halsey Street	9	2	2
Canarsie	9	16	16
DeKalb Avenue	9	14	2
Ridgewood	7	54	44

Franklin Avenue	8	2	8
Thirty-sixth Street	9	35	33
East New York L	9	496	60
Thirty-sixth Street L	9	268	25

Other reports from inspectors were read by the witnesses. In the main they disclosed no united action for creating disorder, but only sporadic attempts to injure motormen and conductors.

UNION MEN DECLARE VICTORY IS IN SIGHT

By far the largest meeting of the striking B. R. T. carmen since the walkout, according to police estimates, was held last night in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum. Between 5,000 and 6,000 jammed into the auditorium of the Lyceum while more than 500 others were compelled to wait on the outside for reports of the meeting.

The meeting last night was marked by the appearance, for the first time, of placards voicing the feelings of the carmen. The most noticeable of the many signs seen read, "Keep Off the Cars. Remember the Malbone Wreck," "We Licked the Kaiser of Berlin and We'll Lick the Kaiser of the B. R. T.," "The Czar was Overthrown and So Will Be Garrison," and "Lincoln Freed the Slaves but Forgot the Trolley Men."

The enthusiasm of the crowd was aroused to a high pitch by the announcement of William Reilly, Secretary and Treasurer of the newly organized union, the first speaker, who said that 2,884 carmen had enrolled in the union since yesterday morning. He declared that the newcomers were the older men of the company's employes who feared to leave their posts because of the possibility of losing their pension status.

Reilly charged that the B. R. T. officials had brought forty strikebreakers from Philadelphia to the Fresh Pond car barns during the day. He also asserted that Superintendent Hardberger of the East New York trolley lines had offered the men "$25 a day and two cops to a car" if they would remain at work. He said that all of the men turned down the offer with jeers.

P. J. Shea, Chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes, who is directing the strike, told of taking up the grievances of the men yesterday with Mayor Hylan. He said that the Mayor had agreed to bring about a conference between the company officials and the strikers.

Goes to Hylan for Advice.

"Mayor Hylan suggested that I get in touch with him at 4 o'clock in the afternoon by telephone, which I did," Mr. Shea said. "He advised us to ignore Garrison and to deal with Garrison's superior, Judge Mayer. The Mayor said: 'Mr. Garrison is trying to blame me for the appalling condition when he is at fault himself. He has ample police protection, but there is no necessity, as he himself knows he hasn't the men to run the cars.'"

Shea told the strikers that he had received information that Receiver Garrison was preparing to offer them 65 cents an hour to return to work without recognition of the union. Shouts of "Never" greeted this. The speaker urged the men not to accept any terms that did not include recognition of the union and the men shouted back "No union, no work."

Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, congratulated the strikers on what he termed the splendid showing that they had made in their walkout. He warned them to conduct themselves in an orderly manner.

Louis Fridiger, attorney for the union, who was one of the delegation which went to confer with the Mayor but was barred by the latter, said that he did not know why Mr. Hylan had snubbed him. He devoted much of his talk to the explanation of the law to the strikers.

Charges that the police had severely beaten up a picketing striker who had been given permission by them to enter the Jamaica depot, at 165th Street and Jamaica Avenue, with twenty other pickets to urge the guards stationed there to walk out, were made by Samuel Bass, a striker, at the meeting. He said the injured man was Joseph Yuni, a former guard on the Lexington Avenue line, whose right leg he said was fractured and his body badly bruised by the clubbing received at the hands of the police. He denied that he or his fellow pickets had been disorderly.

HYLAN, IN POLICEMAN'S ROLE, DIRECTS TRAFFIC

Mayor Caught in Jam of Vehicles Assumes Personal Command and Disentangles Tieup.

Mayor Hylan became his own traffic policeman for an hour last night, when, on his way uptown in his auto, he took charge of a jam at Delancey street and the Bowery and straightened out the tangle in a manner that made the spectators gasp. Owing to the B. R. T. strike, vehicles trying to get to and from Brooklyn over the Manhattan and Williamsburg Bridges became hopelessly tangled and the congestion extended into the side streets along the Bowery between the two bridges.

The Mayor, with his secretary, John F. Sinnott, reached the jam at Delancey Street and the Bowery shortly after 6 o'clock. One lone policeman was trying to straighten out the jam and keep things moving. The Mayor's machine was caught in the vortex. After a few minutes' wait the Mayor left his car and walked over to the lone policeman.

"Are you the only man here?" he asked.

"I am," replied the traffic officer, yelling at a truck driver at the same time.

"Then I guess I'll take charge," said the Mayor. He first sent for two mounted men, and when they appeared he stationed them at nearby corners. The Mayor then closed Delancey Street to east-bound traffic and sent all vehicles Brooklyn bound down to Manhattan Bridge. Soon a steady stream of vehicles that had tried to cross the Williamsburg Bridge was diverted down the Bowery, Kenmore, Mott, Mulberry, and Lafayette Streets.

Before reaching Delancey Street the Mayor had alighted for a few minutes at the Manhattan bridge entrance at Canal Street. He inquired of the traffic policeman at this point how things were going.

"All right, sir," replied the policeman, who recognized the Mayor. "They're going one way, sir, over the bridge to Brooklyn."

"Keep up the good work," replied the Mayor as he climbed back in his car.

SEND EMPLOYES TO HOTELS.

Demand for Rooms Began Two Days Ago—Guests Sleep on Cots.

The hotels were hard pressed to supply the demand for rooms yesterday because of the strike of employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines.

The New York Telephone Company was the chief applicant for rooms, as a great majority of its personnel lives in Brooklyn. Foreseeing the trouble, they began making reservation days before yesterday, and last night every one was taken care of. The Telephone Company announced that its service was in no danger of being crippled.

Four hundred girls were placed in ten of the centrally-located hotels. The Martha Washington Hotel was the first to be applied to, and fifty were located there. The Park Avenue Hotel cared for 100. Forty were at the Holland House, at the McAlpin, Pennsylvania, Imperial, Prince George, Wolcott and other hotels in that district.

The National Aniline and Chemical Company had considerable difficulty in finding accommodations for its employes, but it finally was able to establish them at the Park Avenue Hotel, where four parlors on the first floor were equipped with cots.

Twenty-seventh Streets. Policeman Nessel had his right hand broken. Martin Walsh, one of the train crew, suffered fractured ribs. Henry Dornheimer, conductor of the car, living at 341 Fifty-first Street, had his skull fractured, being beaten over the head with a large iron bolt. His injuries may be fatal. Policeman Menicci suffered severe cuts on the head. In spite of their severe injuries the policemen finally scattered the mob.

Traffic on the Fifth Avenue surface line in South Brooklyn was halted during the rush hours in the afternoon when rock, lumber and other building material was piled on the tracks at Seventy-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue. Twenty-five cars in all left the Fifth Avenue depot between 4 and 6 o'clock, the largest number since the strike was called, but within a short time they began to return. Five in a row came at one time. They reported the obstruction on the tracks. The building materials had been obtained from the scene of some construction work at Seventy-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue. Strikers from a flying squadron of motor trucks carted the big rocks to the tracks.

A woman giving the name of Esther Zdana, 25 years old, of 174 Thirty-first Street, was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief, the police charging she placed several cobblestones on the tracks at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-first Street. Luke Hayren, 22 years old, a mechanic, of 5,404 Fifth Avenue, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was charged with cutting the trolley rope of a Fifth Avenue car.

List of Disorders.

Fresh reports of violence were received every few minutes by telephone from different parts of Brooklyn at the B. R. T. offices in Brooklyn. The following is the chronological order in which the incidents were reported at the B. R. T. offices:

7:20 A. M.—Rioting by shipyard workers reported at Twenty-third Street and Third Avenue.

8 A. M.—A crowd stoning cars at Third Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street.

8:15 A. M.—Missile thrown at Franklin Avenue car at Franklin Avenue and Prospect Place strikes man in the eye.

8:20 A. M.—Order sent to crosstown, Maspeth and Park Row to divert cars away from Flushing Avenue between 12 and 1 P. M. to avoid trouble during the lunch hour near the Navy Yard.

8:20 A. M.—B. R. T. employe at Halsey Street sends word to B. R. T. offices that a crowd was preparing to pull crews off cars between Broadway and Wyckoff Avenue. Twenty crews in the Halsey Street depot refuse to go out unless there are two policemen on each car. Only one policeman at the depot.

8:25 A. M.—Crews at Maspeth say that passengers there are calling them "scabs" and other names and jostling them on the cars.

9:10 A. M.—Myrtle Avenue cars all in barns, because police are not giving proper protection. The police are insulting the men, calling them "scabs" and making insulting gestures at them.

9:12 A. M.—Large crowd at Reid and Van Buren causing considerable trouble.

9:23 A. M.—Four Fifth Avenue cars pulled in, Superintendent Gilchrist reports. The crews were afraid to go out. Gilchrist persuaded them to go out again. He has four crews out on the Fifth Avenue line and five on the Third Avenue, two on Bay Ridge, and the Court Street line is running normal. Large crowd at 157th Street and Fifth Avenue. Conductor on Third Avenue line had a man arrested for calling him a "scab" and attempting to assault him.

9:55 A. M.—Crowd boarded car at De Kalb Avenue and St. James's Place.

Crew badly beaten up and car damaged by stones, &c. Shortly after another car was stoned at this point.

10:05 A. M.—Crowds at De Kalb Avenue and Broadway and at Putnam and at De Kalb Avenue and Broadway stoning cars.

10:15 A. M.—Men refused to leave Halsey Street depot with only one man on a car. Police Sergeant refuses to put more than one man on a car. Borough Inspector Murphy notified and promised ot straighten out the matter immediately.

10:25 A. M.—Graham Avenue cars all in. Only two crosstown cars on the line and they are on their way in. Crowd going over to Maspeth to pull crews off their cars.

10:32 A. M.—Truck load of about 100 going from Halsey Street to East New York. East New York notified.

10:55 A. M.—Large crowd at Thirty-ninth Street and Third Avenue reported cutting ropes and throwing stones.

11 A. M.—Culver elevated ceased operation.

11:05 A. M.—Men refused to take cars out at Halsey Street. Three large motor trucks labelled "Canarsie-East New York" unloaded men in front of the depot here. Thirty crews in the depot absolutely refused to go out while the crowd is around the depot.

11:25—Superintendent Hogberg states all cars are pulling in. Men were badly beaten, their clothes torn, badges taken away, controller handles, punches and money stolen. Men report that persons in the crowd threatening them drew revolvers on them. The men are absolutely afraid to take the cars and police protection is not sufficient.

12:55 P. M.—Inspector Coords states that a Reid Avenue conductor and a Broadway conductor were threatened with revolvers and were told they would "get it" if they returned.

1:25 P. M.—Supt. Gilcrist stated that a Court Street car was attacked at Twenty-seventh Street and Third Avenue by a crowd. The crew was pulled off the car and the car damaged. Starter Dorheim was badly beaten and is at the Fifty-eighth Street depot waiting for an ambulance. These acts of violence took the heart out of the men at the depot. Auto trucks with 150 men operating in Fifth Avenue. They attempted to pull a peddler's wagon in front of a car to stop it.

1:27 P. M.—Whitney at Borough Hall stated that several strikers at the Long Island Depot are intimidating crews as they come along.

2:00 P. M.—Men reported greasing rails, building bon-fires between the rails and throwing red-hot bars over the tracks, so that the motormen will get burned if they attempt to remove them.

2:10 P. M.—Eight crews held up by mobs at Myrtle Avenue and Fresh Pond Road. Badges and controller handles were taken from crews. No aid from the police. Cars were taken back to the depot.

2:30 P. M.—Seventy men in a motor truck drove up to a Sixteenth Avenue car at Union Street and Prospect Park West and demanded that motormen leave their cars. The motormen promised not to take the cars out on another trip and were not molested. Two policemen on the car looked on and did nothing.

2:30 P. M.—Mr. Thomas of the claims department telephoned that a crowd of 100 men were tampering with the electric switch at Gates and Franklin Avenues.

2:40 P. M.—Demonstration of strikers at the general offices of the B. R. T. at Clinton and Montague Streets.

2:50 P. M.—Three truck loads of men crossed the Williamsburg Bridge, saying that they would "get employes" at the Delancey Street terminal.

3:00 P. M.—Three or four truckloads of men arrived at Ninth Avenue depot and paraded around it five or six times.

ARCHDUKE SEIZES POWER IN HUNGARY

APPOINTS NEW MINISTRY

Is Said to Have Reached Agreement in Conference with Entente Mission.

ALLIES APPEAL TO RUMANIA

Beg Her to Conform to Decisions of Powers—Invaders Seize Supplies.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The Peace Conference was advised today that the Hungarian Cabinet, headed by Jules Peidll, had been ovrthrown by a coup d'état effected without disorder, and that Archduke Joseph had established a Ministry in Budapest.

An official statement regarding the change was made by the French Government this afternoon. The statement read:

"Hungarian gendarmes surrounded the palace in Budapest and arrested the Government at 6 o'clock yesterday evening. Archduke Joseph assumed power, with the title of Governor of the State, and announced that he would organize a coalition cabinet."

A later statement reported the announcement of Herr Friedrich as Premier and of two Generals, Schnitzer and Tanezos, respectively as Minister of War and of Foreign Affairs. Professor Bleyer was made Minister of Nationalities and Dr. C. Sillery Minister of Health. Portfolios have been offered Agrarians and Social Democrats and also members of the Szegedin Government.

The Social Democrats of Hungary, it was said, still hoped that the allied and associated governments would not tolerate either Rumanian control of the country or that of a Government by the reactionary Grand Dukes.

Allies Sent Another Note.

The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference held a meeting today to consider the Hungarian situation, which is giving the conference great uneasiness, as mandates from that body to the Rumanians seem useless. It is declared in Budapest advices that the Rumanian General in command refused to permit the publication in the Rumanian press of Premier Clemenceau's telegram of Aug. 5 to the Hungarian Government. The Supreme Council, following the meeting, sent a note to the Rumanian authorities begging them to conform to the decisions of the Entente and not to embarrass by previous decisions the work of the Inter-Allied Investigating Commission sent to Budapest.

Herbert Hoover, head of the Inter-Allied Relief Commission, has stopped all relief supplies on the way to Budapest, taking the position that he would be unwarranted in letting supplies reach Hungary while the Rumanians are now depriving the people of foodstuffs.

Members of the American peace delegation said this evening that there were no American troops now in Budapest and that none would be sent there. It was added that the only Americans in the Hungarian capital were officers and possibly a few soldiers engaged in relief work.

Accounts of the Rumanian proceedings report that they notified the Hungarians yesterday that because the terms of the armistice laid down in the Rumanian ultimatum had not been accepted, the Rumanians would cross the Danube immediately. This they did, entering the business section of Buda and seizing supplies preparatory to shipping them to Rumania.

Other acts charged against the Rumanians are assaults upon inoffensive persons and forced entrances into houses everywhere under the pretext of searching for arms.

The Rumanian Army is reported living on the country, seizing the food it wants, while live stock, farming implements, rolling stock, and food are being sent to Rumania, although Budapest is on the verge of starvation.

The Rumanians, the advices add, have instituted a blockade, one feature of which has been the destruction of portions of the railways between Budapest and Vienna. The entire communications system of Central Europe has been upset, making it impossible to forward supplies for the feeding of the starving populations.

Brig. Gen. Harry H. Bandholtz, the American representative on the Inter-Allied Military Commission, appointed by the Allies to arrange a settlement at Budapest, will leave here tonight for Hungary. General Bandholtz formerly was Chief of the Philippine Constabulary. The Military Commission will include also General Granziani for France, General Gordon for Great Britain, and General Monbelli for Italy.

Archduke Appeals to People.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 6, (Associated Press.)—Archduke Joseph took over control of the Hungarian Government today and has been invested temporarily with supreme powers in the Government. The Entente mission delegated governmental authority to him when the Peidl Government was deposed, and he appointed Stephen Friederic, former chief of a department in the War Ministry, to be Premier. The Foreign Ministry was transferred to General Tanezos, and the War Ministry to General Schnitzer-Wolkenbers.

The Entente mission conferred this evening with Archduke Joseph and Premier Friedrich. It was stated that after consulting upon various matters a full agreement was reached, and that Premier Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, and the various foreign Governments were informed of the results of the conference.

Subsequently the Archduke issued a proclamation appealing to all classes to help him in his fight to completely put down anarchy and to establish order with a strong hand. The proclamation follows:

"Impelled by the imperishable love which binds me to the Hungarian people, and looking back over the common suffering of the past five years, as well as responding to the wishes which have reached me from all sides, I have taken a hand in the solution of a situation which already seemed impossible.

"I cannot look on while politicians and various interests and party groups quarrel over the fate of our poor, broken fatherland. Everywhere there is complete anarchy—risings in trans-Danubia, a ministry in office that has recognized no one, and a complete stoppage of the food supply threatening a catastrophe unless the Hungarian educated classes and the agricultural population establish order with a strong hand.

In addition to the Rumanian troops in Budapest, French, British, American, and Czech troops have also reached here. The British forces are under the command of General Gordon. The Americans are commanded by Captain Nyss. Upon the arrival of General Gordon during the day the Peidl Government set before him the Rumanian demands, with the statement that the Hungarian Government was not prepared to accept the terms.

All railroad traffic in and out of Budapest has been suspended.

Budapest remains quiet in the face of the change in Government, which was effected at 7 o'clock this evening, when General Schnitzer-Wolkenbers, the Chief of Police; Dr. Fritz, former Secretary of the Police Department, and M. Szellery, former Departmental Chief in the War Ministry, went to the Ministry Building, where the Cabinet was in session. The deputation called on the Ministers to resign, and after a short conference the Cabinet decided to comply with the demand.

Reported American Ultimatum.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A dispatch from Vienna, by way of Copenhagen, to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the United States has sent an ultimatum to Rumania demanding withdrawal of the severe armistice terms presented to Hungary on pain of a cessation of the shipment of food to Rumania.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Archduke Joseph's assumption of authority in Hungary was regarded with something akin to satisfaction today by come officials at the State Department. Secretary Lansing was without information regarding the change in Government, other han that contained in Associated Press dispatches.

It was pointed out that the official statement issued by the French Government appeared to indicate no intention to restore the monarchy, since the new ruler had styled himself "Governor of the State."

Unless it becomes apparent that his plan includes the re-establishment of the old Government, is seemed probable today that the new rule would receive sympathetic consideration from America. It was explained, however, that no steps had been taken by the Peace Conference to prevent the Hungarians from setting up another monarchy, should they desire.

JOSEPH RENOUNCED ROYALTY.

Most Popular Member of Hapsburg Family Lived in Budapest.

Archduke Joseph, who has assumed direction of affairs in Hungary, was a commander of Austro-Hungarian forces on the southern section of the eastern battlefront during the first two years of the Great War, with the rank of Field Marshal of Austria.

In 1918 he headed a movement looking to the securing of independence for Hungary from Austria, and when the collapse of the Dual Monarchy came, in November, 1918, he was asked by Emperor Charles of Austria to take charge of the situation and find a solution of the political crisis before the country. With his son, Archduke Joseph Francis, he renounced all rights as a member of the royal house and took the oath to submit unconditionally to the orders of the Hungarian National Council. Later both took the oath of fealty to the new Government.

Last April it was reported that he had been executed by the Communists at Budapest, but this report was promptly denied.

Archduke Joseph was born at Alosuth on Aug. 9, 1872. On Nov. 15, 1893, he married in Munich Princess Augustine of Bavaria. In addition to Joseph Francis they have three children, Archduke Ladislas and the Archduchesses Sophie and Madeleine. Their home was in Budapest.

Archduke Joseph frequently has been referred to as the most popular member of the Hapsburg family. He did much work among the poor and unfortunate, particularly in the Hungarian capital. He is a doctor of law and doctor of technical sciences of the University of Budapest and doctor of medicine of the University of Kolozsvar. Among the decorations given him under the old Empire were that of Chevalier of the Austrian Order of the Golden Fleece, the Order of the Black Eagle, the Order of St. Hubert, and the Order of Saints Cyrille and Methode.

VIENNA, Aug. 5.—Terrible acts of retaliation are reported from all parts of the Hungarian country where many representatives of the Communist reign have been mistreated and killed by the infuriated people. In numerous villages Bolsheviki were clubbed and stoned to death. All the Bolsheviki are in hiding, and are afraid of showing themselves.

The so-called Lenin Boys, Bela Kun's former bodyguard, who committed innumerable atrocities, have all been arrested. One of them confessed to thirty-six murders.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 7, (Hungarian.)—A dispatch received from Vienna says that according to Die Zeit the Hungarian Ambassador fled from Vienna Wednesday night in an automobile after having burned all his secret documents.

The dispatch adds that Hungarian journalists and officers went to the Embassy Thursday morning and thrashed the staff and threw the members into the street.

COUNCIL ENRAGED BY RUMANIA'S ACT

PEIDL HAD ALLIES' PLEDGE

Rumania's Handing the Government Over to Old Aristocracy Turns the Outlook Black.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The Peace Conference finds itself today at the lowest point of humiliation and perplexity it has ever reached. It is in the position of having gone forfeit on a moral contract with the Hungarian Government of Peidl. It has been forced to look on helplessly while that Government, which it had approved, is pushed out of existence by an Archduke. And this discomfiture of the great Paris conference has been brought upon it by an ally—Rumania—so small and weak that America had to spend $20,000,000 last Winter to keep it from starving.

Almost any member of the conference still left in Paris to wind up the supposed small fag ends of peace-making will admit this humiliation. As one of the plenipotentiaries put it this morning:

"You cannot exaggerate the evil situation now existing in Hungary."

But there is no plan yet to remedy it. Everything is waiting on the report of the four allied Generals sent by the conference to Budapest, but three of them have not even arrived.

In the meantime the Rumanian troops, 60,000 strong, are terrorizing the Hungarian population and doing all the things the Peace Conference said absolutely must not be done.

In the first place, Paris told the Rumanian Army to keep out of Budapest and leave the Peidl Government alone. But the Rumanians invaded Budapest the next day. The Peace Conference told Rumania that its ultimatum to Hungary demanding supplies and laying down conditions for a new armistice was invalid and that Hungary should ignore it. The Rumanian Government prevented the publication of this order from Paris both at Bucharest and Budapest and went on to enforce its ultimatum. And four Generals are only just on their way to learn what it is all about!

Somebody at the Hotel Crillon this morning was moved to recall the famous remark of Elihu Root about shaking a fist first and a finger afterward.

Things move so much faster in the Balkan capitals than in Paris that the Peace Conference seems always to be just about one or two revolutions, one or two massacres, behind the procession.

Conference Gave Its Word.

As to the moral contract which has now gone by the board, it was involved in correspondence between Hungarian labor unions and the Paris Peace Conference. The unions asked if they overthrew the Bolsheviki and set up an orderly Government if Paris would support them. Paris said "Yes."

The labor unions carried out their end of the bargain in a fashion admitted to be satisfactory, but the Paris Peace Conference in its helplessness to deal with Rumania utterly failed to keep its end of the bargain by preventing the invasion by Rumanian troops.

According to dispatches received here it was 6 o'clock last night (Wednesday) when the Peidl Government was overthrown. The members were taken prisoners while attending a Cabinet meeting. For twenty-four hours before that the Rumanian troops had been enforcing the so-called ultimatum by collecting food, cattle, and supplies, and sending them off to Rumania despite the fact that this means the starvation of the people of Budapest.

Also the Rumanians have established a new blockade against Hungary, one feature in which is cutting the railroad from Budapest to Vienna. It should be remembered in this connection that one of the things the Peace Conference specifically promised the Hungarian people through the labor unions was that the blockade should end and food be sent.

News that the Archduke Joseph had set up a new Hungarian Government quickly followed that of Peidl's overthrow. The Social Democrats of Budapest managed to get their appeal through to Paris this afternoon begging the Peace Conference to save the country from both the Rumanians and the reactionary Archduke.

But the conference is helplessly asking what it can do. The only comment on Archduke Joseph by one of the peacemakers was:

"I fear he has monarchical tendencies."

But that is about the only attempt any one has made at a joke on the present Balkan mess.

Archduke Planning for Weeks.

Because of the fact that Joseph was known to be planning this coup for weeks, the sinister suggestion was made today in some French quarters that the labor unions had been used without their knowledge merely as a catspaw for getting rid of the Bela Kun Government to pave the way for Archduke Joseph, and that the Peace Conference had been made the victim of a hoax in its promise to support the Social Democratic Government.

No word was received in Paris indicating the attitude of the Rumanian troops toward the Archduke's Government.

The American and British delegates in Paris are furious over the situation, at least as furious as plenipotentiaries ever allow themselves to get. The French, although impressed by the seriousness of the situation, cannot refrain from chuckling a little over the miscarriage of the Hungarian policy, which they disapproved from the start, because it did not agree with their desire to send a large military force, chiefly American, to Hungary.

But the Italians are more frankly disturbed than anybody else by this coming to the front of Archduke Joseph. Italy's traditional fear and hatred of Austria-Hungary is associated only with the aristocracy of the old dual monarchy. Italy would go out of her way to support any form of democratic socialist Government in Hungary merely for safety and protection. For that reason Italy was heartily in accord with America and England, as against France for backing Peidl. Now she is experiencing something like a fright at the very thought that the Archduke Joseph's Government may be the beginning of the restoration of the aristocracies north of her.

But peace headquarters do not share Italy's fears in that direction. There is much more alarm that the overthrow of Peidl will soon lead to the recurrence of Bolshevism in Hungary, which the Allies thought they had got rid of with Bela Kun.

Regardless of the differences of opinion on various phases of the situation, the delegates in Paris are beginning to wonder if they would not have had an easier task restoring peace in Europe if they had left Austria-Hungary intact, as they might have done, instead of cutting it up and trying so many experiments at one time in setting up small and independent liberty-lovnig States.

POLICE WILL NOT JOIN UNION IF PAY GOES UP

President of Benevolent Association Declares Patrolmen Are Loyal to the City.

Denial that the policemen of the city have joined a labor union was made yesterday by Joseph P. Moran, President of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, but he added that the police are expecting a salary increase from the Board of Estimate, and that if it is not forthcoming the question of the policemen affiliating with organized labor will be taken up then. President Moran said:

"The published statements that the patrolmen have joined the American Federation of Labor are untrue. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association has a membership of close to 10,000. Its members in every emergency, in war and in peace times, have been loyal to the city. There are hundreds of men in our ranks who prior to joining the force were union men in the various trades They still hold their union cards. These men now find that union labor men are better paid for less hours of work than the police.

"The patrolmen cannot live decently on the pay they receive after the cost of uniforms and equipment is deducted. This condition quite naturally breeds discontent among the men. There has been considerable discussion of the subject.

"The patrolmen have asked the city for a salary of at least $1,800. There is one way for the city to show the patrolmen there is no need of any labor affiliation, and that way is to pay the police wages equal to that paid to the trade union man and in keeping with the fact that the dollar given to the policeman today purchases only half what it did before the war. The patrolmen feel assured that the application they have made to the Board of Estimate through the Civil Service Forum for increased pay will be approved.

"When and if the question of any affiliation with organized labor is presented to the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association the action taken thereon will be duly announced by its officers."

When Louis Fridiger, counsel to the striking B. R. T. employes, who declared that the police had formed a labor union, called at the City Hall yesterday in company with Hugh Frayne, general representative of the American Federation of Labor, and Patrick F. Shea of the General Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America, to discuss the Brooklyn strike, the Mayor refused to see him. Mr. Fridiger insisted he was the legal representative of the policemen.

WON'T SHIRK IRISH ISSUE, PREMIER SAYS

Lloyd George Asserts He Has a Scheme in View and Will Carry It Through.

"FORCE NOT LAST WORD"

Tells the House of Commons Also That the Government Will Work to Cut Down Expenditures.

LONDON, Aug. 7, (Associated Press.)—Sir Donald MacLean, National Liberal, in the House of Commons today raised the question of the Government's Irish policy, saying he wanted a discussion of it.

David Lloyd George, the Premier, replying, expressed the belief that a discussion now would not conduce to a favorable settlement. He had an Irish policy in view, he said, but realized that there existed fresh difficulties which might induce the Government to modify or alter particular views they might hold.

"It is not a credit to the country that after hundreds of years of British rule in Ireland we have failed to succeed in reconciling Ireland to the partnership," the Premier continued. "It is the business of statesmanship to bring that condition of things to an end. The rule of force cannot be the last word."

The Premier admitted it was the business of the Government to propound their scheme after careful consideration of all the circumstances. That was the only course after the failure of all outside schemes, and the Government must therefore assume the risk of carrying through their scheme. The House, he declared, could depend upon it that the Government did not propose to shirk that responsibility.

Replying to the Laborite suggestion of withdrawal of the troops from Ireland, the Premier thought Irishmen themselves would be the first to protest such a course. Law and order must be maintained, otherwise there would be anarchy, and the Government was responsible for preserving order.

Answering criticisms of his frequent absences from Parliament, the Premier said there were so many vital problems to consider—industrial disputes, profiteering, trade policy, and coal—it would be impossible for any Prime Minister, whatever his physical resources, to give full study to these problems and at the same time be in the House. He hoped next week or the following week to submit to the House a general review of the situation and policy, because he wished to place the nation face to face with its responsibilities. The situation in many respects was abnormal and so grave that he feared it impossible to recover and re-establish things unless everybody realized his responsibility. The Premier went on:

"The situation is indeed grave, but not beyond the compass of its resources if the nation will pull itself together. All that is needed is that everybody throughout the land put forth their best exertions as they did during the war and we shall emerge triumphantly. I agree that it is the business of the Government to see that the gigantic expenditure which had to be incurred to save the national life shall be cut down at the first possible moment. Such expenditure was inevitable until we knew that Germany had accepted the peace terms."

Now that peace had been re-established with Germany and would soon be re-established with other countries, the Premier said he hoped the House and the Government would see that expenditure was cut down to the narrowest possible limits.

URGES LLOYD GEORGE TO TAKE UP IRELAND

London Times Calls for a Statement of Policy—He Replies That Its Policy Failed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The London Times in an editorial article says:

"Once again the Government will today be asked for a statement of their policy in regard to Ireland. Hitherto they have evaded this responsibility, trusting doubtless that the recess would presently save them from the importunity of seekers after knowledge where no knowledge has been. We know, indeed, the Prime Minister abhors a policy and loves tactics. By defining a policy the head of the Government binds his hands and gives hostages. But the problem of Ireland is not to be solved by ignoring it or even by practicing what has sometimes been called 'conservative expectancy.'

"If it be asking too much of this Government to examine and treat national issues in a national way without care for personal or party advantage, considerations of a lower order may possibly appeal to them. In the light of their record it is fair to assume they care for the preservation of their own Ministerial existence. In that case they may well be, for the augurs have little that is good to report. The by-elections have been ominous. The confidence which the Prime Minister enjoyed for the purpose of making peace in Paris is rapidly dwindling. That confidence was an extension of the trust placed in him as a war Premier and related to the activities for which the King has fitly bestowed on him the Order of Merit.

"As a peace Premier he has still to justify himself. The stress of war conditions and the need for national unity in the conduct of international affairs gave the centripetal force to the elements of the coalition, but in the absence of a truly national and dynamic conception of the home situation that force is becoming centrifugal. Unless the coalition is to fall asunder or to die of progressive paralysis, it is essential that it and the Administration which it supports should give proof of effective continuance of that larger spirit in the conduct of national affairs which it showed during the war and which is, indeed, the only raison d'être of the coalition.

"The closing days of the Summer session offer it and the Government a fleeting opportunity. At a time when public feeling is running strong, who can say whither things will drift during the recess? With the uncertain labor situation, with difficulties unparalleled in national finance, with a Winter of discontent approaching, there is yet one question on which the Prime Minister might claim and regain public confidence. It is the question of Ireland."

In the course of his statement in the House of Commons on the Irish problem, Premier Lloyd George made a special reference to the London Times' campaign. He said a great journal not particularly friendly to him, and he was not sure he was very friendly to it, had joined the ranks of those who said that something must be done. It had proposed a great scheme which every party in Ireland had joined in condemning. That was the experience of every one.

It was very easy to say "You must do something and do it at once," but the moment it was done the experience this great journal had was the experience of every one who came forward and proposed any scheme.

made, but there is every reason for believing that one of the principal recommendations will be that the principle of the Food Control act, under which hoarders and profiteers may be reached, be broadened so as to make it effective even after the proclamation of peace and applicable to other commodities besides foodstuffs.

It was stated in a well informed quarter that the message would not contain any recommendation for a national licensing system for legislation to limit the margin of profits. The message will deal exclusively with the question of the high cost of living.

There was an intimation tonight that Reprensentative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas would raise a point of no quorum when the House meets tomorrow and might force that body to adjourn. There has been no quorum in Congress since Saturday. Each day Mr. Blanton has raised his point and forced the House to adjourn.

Mr. Mondell, the Republican floor leader, said tonight, however, that he felt certain that a quorum would be present tomorrow, basing his statement on telegraphic and personal advices he had received.

said that "traffic will be discontinued in three days."

R. H. Aishton, Regional Director of Railroads for the Northwest, issued the following statement regarding the conditions governing freight:

> Beginning immediately and continuing until further notice, all freight of every description in carload lots will be accepted only as subject to delay on account of the strike. All bills of lading must be indorsed: "This freight accepted subject to delay on account of strike."

Railway freight traffic on the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad was suspended today on the Iowa & Minnesota Division because of the shopmen's strike, according to a statement made at the division offices of the company. Passenger trains on the Northwestern are running with irregularity.

Reports from St. Louis and Kansas City said railroads there are refusing to accept live stock shipments for Chicago. Word was received from Milwaukee that all the roads entering that city had declared an embargo on wheat shipments. Union leaders predicted that an embargo would be declared on wheat at St. Louis, Kansas City and other points within forty-eight hours. Thousands of locomotives and cars in bad repair and unfit for service are reported to be accumulating in a number of railroad centres.

M. L. Hawver, President of the Chicago Council of the Federated Railway Shopmen's Union, said today that there are 300,000 men out and that this will soon tie up the traffic on every road in the country.

DETROIT, Aug. 7.—Freight service on the Detroit division of the Wabash Railroad was sharply curtailed today because of the strike of shop employes. About 700 Michigan Central shop and roundhouse employes are out on the Detroit division, but service on this division thus far has not been affected.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—Reduction of passenger service due to strike conditions among the shop and yard mechanics was announced today by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad. A freight embargo already is in force throughout that system. Altogether thirty-four passenger trains will be discontinued until further orders.

A freight embargo to Columbus, Ohio, and all points east was announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad today. The only exception is food for human consumption to Columbus proper. Embargoes also are in effect on the Louisville & Nashville and the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western Railroads.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 7.—As result of the situation growing out of strike conditions here, E. D. Brigham, manager for the United States Railway Administration, head of lakes district, announces that effective at once and until further notice freight of every description will be accepted only subject to delay. Loading of iron ore at mines for all docks ceased at noon today. Work at all docks will be discontinued with close of business this afternoon.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7.—Approximately 2,500 shopmen employed at the Mount Clare and Riverside shops of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad went on strike today. The strike virtually tied up work at the shops.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 7.—Freight traffic on the Southern Railway between here and Atlanta was suspended today because of the shopmen's strike. The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway announced an embargo on all freight, except that for human consumption, for points beyond Atlanta.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 7.—Curtailment of freight and passenger service on railroads entering this city was announced today, the Seaboard Air Line putting embargoes on all freight, except food for human consumption, and the Chesapeake & Ohio discontinuing two of its passenger trains to Old Point. Further curtailment is expected.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 7.—The first break in the strike of railroad shopmen in the Southeast came late today, when 1,500 employes of the Norfolk & Western Railroad shops at Roanoke, Va., voted to return to work tomorrow and await results of the vote on a general strike order. In the meantime, railroads generally in the Southeast were working under a suspension of freight traffic except in perishable goods and foodstuffs. Passenger trains generally were running on schedule, but Pullman sleeping cars had been eliminated from several trains.

tiations with the railway employes if they would go back to work.

How the money to meet the wage increase, which Mr. Hines says he has not got, is to be raised in the event that the demands of the employes are met, President Wilson does not say in his communication. The general opinion here was that two courses were open. One would be an increase in freight rates; the other a request upon Congress for an appropriation, thus putting squarely up to Congress the question whether it was willing to supply the money necessary to carry out the decisions made by Mr. Hines in the event that Mr. Hines considered that to be the only manner in which a strike could be averted.

It was noted that there was no mention in President Wilson's communication to Mr. Hines of the agitation which has been started by some branches of the railway employes for the adoption of the Plumb plan for the nationalization of the railway systems as the cure for wage troubles. Mr. Jewell has stated that there was no thought on the part of the men to strike in an effort to force the Plumb plan on the Government, and that the only question which would bring on a general strike would be refusal of the Government to grant wage demands which were considered legitimate to meet present economic standards.

In a letter to Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today, Mr. Hines agrees with the view expressed in the Senator's letter of yesterday to President Wilson that the Railroad Administration has ample authority under existing laws to regulate the wages of railroad employes, along with railroad freight and passenger rates.

Mr. Hines wrote that he had regarded the issue involved in the demands of the railroad brotherhood for increased wages, as an alternative to a reduction of the cost of living, as so vital that he had felt Congress ought to be consulted in framing a policy upon which to act.

Mr. Hines's letter reached Senator Cummins shortly after that of the Senator to the President was made public. In his letter to the President Senator Cummins stated that the Interstate Commerce Commission had voted not to take up the railroad wage problem, as suggested by the President, because of existing power vested in the hands of the executive and the railroad director. His letter follows:

"The committee recognizes the gravity of the situation and earnestly desires to co-operate with you in bringing about the proper solution of the difficult problems which confront the country. It feels, however, that Congress has already given you complete and plenary authority to deal with the existing situation, and that additional legislation at this time can add nothing whatever to your power in the premises.

"The Director General can fix the wages of all men employed in the transportation service, and it seems to be clear that it is for him to say whether the compensation of these men should or should not be increased. He has all the available information which can possibly be secured, and it is the view of the committee that he should act in accordance with the public interest and his own judgment. He can be advised upon the subject by any board or tribunal which you may select for that purpose.

"The Director General has also the absolute right to initiate rates for transportation and can advance or lower them, as he may think necessary or wise, to meet the requirements of the transportation systems in his charge, and, moreover, he can put the new rates into effect whenever, in his judgment, they should become effective. At the present time the Interstate Commerce Commission has not the authority to suspend for examination or approval the rates initiated by the Director General.

Prepare Railroad Bill.

"The committee is now diligently engaged in the preparation of a bill for the general reorganization of our system of regulation and control. One common phase of the many plans which have been submitted relates to the further direction which ought to be given to the Interstate Commerce Commission for its guidance in determining the reasonableness of rates. Upon that phase of the subject diverse opinions have been developed, and it is thought to be unwise to bring forward for action by Congress any further legislation in that respect until it can be associated with the general plan of reorganization.

"If the committee felt that there was any lack of power on your part or on the part of the Director General it would be quick to act; but, inasmuch as it can perceive no want of authority, it has reached the conclusion that no additional legislation is required to meet the particular emergency which you have pointed out."

Here is the letter which Director General Hines sent to Mr. Jewell in communicating to him the President's letter:

> Dear Sir: I inclose a letter which I have just received from the President relative to the wage matter.
> It is obvious that it is of the highest importance, not only in the interest of the public, but in the interest of the employes themselves, that they shall immediately return to work. The situation having been clarified by the definite indication that Congress does not wish to take action in the premises, the Railroad Administration stands ready to take up the wage question on its merits with the duly accredited international officers and their authorized committee as soon as the employes return to work. Sincerely yours,
> WALKER D. HINES.

The railroad situation was the subject of prolonged and grave conferences at the White House today. Director General Hines took the matter up with the President, first, placing before him, it is said, the communication received from the four brotherhoods and the railway shopmen, setting forth that they must have cash relief at once, and that in their opinion the adoption of the Plumb plan was the only ultimate solution.

To add to this came the news that the association of railway clerks and affiliated employes was taking a strike vote and that it probably would result in 450,000 of their number going on strike within a month in the event wage increases were not granted.

After talking with the President for a considerable time, Mr. Hines summoned a number of his experts to the White House, where they held a separate conference at which a complete analysis of the situation was drawn up and the opinion of the Railroad Administration as the best course to be pursued prepared. These data were submitted to the President prior to the preparation of his letter to Mr. Hines.

Clerks Take Strike Vote.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7, (Associated Press.)—The 450,000 members of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers, Station, Express, and Steamship Employes will begin voting tomorrow as to whether they will strike immediately for increased wages or await a solution of the wage question along the lines of the proposal made to Congress by Director General Hines.

In announcing the issuing of the strike ballot, J. J. Forrester, President of the brotherhood, said his conference yesterday with Mr. Hines had not resulted in any change in the situation.

"The situation with our men," said Mr. Forrester, "is that we must have immediate relief, or our members will commence seeking employment in occupations where they can make a living for themselves and their families. They have been so loyal in numberless cases now that they have even sold their Liberty bonds to live on during the last few months. Our hope is that Congress can take some action at once to relieve them."

Increases sought by the men, Mr. Forrester said, approximate 20 cents an hour over present scales, with time and a half for overtime.

PLUMB PLAN OR REVOLUTION

morrow and will probably continue on Saturday. Next week A. B. Garretson, former head of the Order of Railway Conductors and one of the spectacular figures in the passage of the Adamson law, will testify. Mr. Stone and Mr. Morrison, who have apppeared, will, with Mr. Plumb and Mr. Garretson, be the only four champions of the plan labor has designated to give testimony.

The members of the committee asked searching questions today, but the atmosphere was not as tense as during Mr. Morrison's appearance yesterday. One committee member, Mr. Rayburn of Texas, Democrat, made a statement after the meeting that the committee would never approve the Plumb plan as it stands.

Says Committee Is Hostile.

"The labor union plan allowing the brotherhoods to share profits while other workers are forced to shoulder the possible losses and pay for the original investment will never be reported by the committee," said Mr. Rayburn. "The committee will never agree to the plan, in the face of the evidence thus far submitted. The members feel that the people want the roads returned to private ownership. But, unless something unforeseen develops and reasons unknown now are advanced to prove that the United States should take this plunge into socialism, the Plumb plan bill will remain in the committee."

Another Texas Representative, Mr. Black, while not a member of the committee, also expressed his ideas today in no uncertain terms. He said:

"The Plumb plan is socialism pure and simple. The brotherhoods may as well understand that if this country has Government ownership—and God forbid that it does—that it will not be the Soviet kind suggested by the Plumb plan. The American people will not buy bonds and then turn them over to Warren S. Stone, W. G. Lee, L. E. Sheppard, and Timothy Shea to be operated in the 'interest' of the public. The brotherhoods got a taste of power in September, 1916, when the Adamson law was passed under their whip and spur, and they have been intoxicated by it ever since. The thirst for power is an appetite which grows by what it feeds upon. The American people cannot afford to have any group of its citizens, I do not care who they are and how large their number, defy the Government and assert they will force legislation, whether the people want it or not."

When Mr. Plumb took the stand today he read a long prepared statement.

Mr. Plumb's Statement.

Mr. Plumb's statement, in part, was as follows:

"Twenty-two million citizens, out of patriotism, contributed, not only from past savings but frequently by mortgaging their future earnings, $20,000,000,000 to aid in the prosecution of the war. On this contribution they are assured a return of only 3¼ to 4½ per cent. If they now see the Government of that country which they love guaranteeing 6 per cent. returns on $20,000,000,000 of railroad securities, of which at least half is fictitious, if the Interstate Commerce Commission's figures on five small roads are to be taken as characteristic of the entire industry, representing no service to the public, thereby depreciating their securities, for which they paid par value, by 50 per cent., can you expect them to maintain that patriotic belief in their country which moved them to such sacrifice in time of its need?

"The representatives of railway securities, the railway security holders, and the United States Chamber of Commerce appearing before you have ascertained that they speak for half of the citizens of the United States as being interested in the value, in maintaining the credit of railway securities. By what basis they reach this conclusion I cannot tell. But they assert that savings banks, trust companies, and life insurance companies have large investments in railway securities, that every depositor in such a bank, every holder of a life insurance policy, and every one in any way affected by the net assets of such institutions are represented by them.

"If 50,000,000 people are indirectly affected by the market value of $20,000,000,000 of railway securities held by 200,000 individuals, how many people are affected by the market value of $20,000,000,000 of Government bonds held by 22,000,000 individual subscribers? And to what extent are the holders of life insurance policies and depositors in savings banks interested in seeing that the assets of those institutions are not damaged by shrinkage in the market of Government bonds which they hold?

"The constantly rising cost of commodities to the consumer has far outstripped the purchasing power of the consumer's wage. To avoid the deprivations which loss of purchasing power necessarily inflicts, the first natural reaction is the demand for increased purchasing power through demanded raises in wages, yet this demand is acknowledged to be futile, because such increase in cost of production is immediately more than reflected in the increased cost of commodities.

Claims 6,000,000 Supporters.

"In answer to this first reaction—demand for increased wages—we now find a hundred thousand railway employes refusing longer to render their services for these constantly diminishing returns. This manifestation of revolt is but symptomatic of the entire industrial situation. It is not unrest that confronts us; it is revolt because of industrial conditions no longer to be borne.

"We already number in the supporters of labor's plan approximately 6,000,000 adult producers—about one-sixth of the productive man-power of the United States. Perhaps the same proportion of the political power of the nation, and a financial power which few comprehend. Those employed on the railways alone, represented in this movement, receive as their annual compensation for the investment of their life and labor upward of two and a half billion dollars a year—two and a half times the amount of compensation paid for the use of the money invested in railways.

"It is claimed by those who represent the financial interests before this committee that they have investments of approximately $20,000,000,000 in this industry. It is not with the interest of capital with which we have to do, but with the human interests involved in the ownership of capital by human beings.

"Organized labor now realizes that further advances in wages at the expense of a cost of living exceeding that of values are wholly futile. Equally, organized labor realizes that to correct this vicious system the interests of both producers and consumers must be protected, that the great increase in the productive power of human effort should be reflected equally in increased earning power of those who produce and the decreased cost of the commodity so reduced.

"But with transportation the situation is quite otherwise. The cost in transportation is reflected in the price of all commodities, whether transported or not. The consumer pays the freight on everything that he consumes, although it may be produced next door and may never have passed over any line of transportation. Heretofore railroad rates have not been advanced universally. A commodity rate is advanced here, a classification rate advanced there, and only those commodities affected by such local advances reflect the increased cost in their price. But with the coming of the war a 15-per-cent. advance was allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, covering all ratesa nd alll commodities, and reflected the next day in the purchase price of everything by which we live. Later the Director General again advanced these rates 25 per cent. This advance was again immediately reflected in the price of commodities and the cost of living.

"The wages earned by those who produce constitutes the great bulk of the purchasing fund of this nation. When the price of all commodities is advanced due to an increased cost of transportation and the wage fund is not correspondingly increased, the difference is exactly reflected by a restriction in the amount of commodities consumed. This soon reacts on the producing agencies. They provide a restricted output to correspond with the restricted demand. This, again, restricts the wage or purchasing fund, and the cycle of restriction endlessly repeats itself until we find production stifled, industry in stagnation, unemployment, and inevitable political and social revolution.

"Reverse this vicious system. Reduce rates. The costs of all commodities are then reduced accordingly. The purchasing power of the wage fund is then correspondingly expanded. A greater volume of commodities is consumed. The demand on industry is increased. There follows a wider field of employment, which, in turn, increases the wage or purchasing fund of the community. This must inevitably follow, unless the savings of the cost of transportation, instead of being reflected in the price of commodities, are appropriated to swell the volume of profits of those who control capital. Insure the savings effected by a reduction in rates to the consumer, and you will have turned the tide that now threatens to overwhelm us.

He then took up the bill embodying the plan as introduced by Representative Sims of Tennessee, former Chairman of the committee, who again explained that he had not "written a line of the bill," had put it in by request, and was not committed to it.

Explains Bill's Provisions.

Explaining one provision, allowing the "Appraisement Board" to build extensions and tax the locality at a rate commensurate with the increase in land value in the territory, Plumb said that if a railroad was run through ten miles if virgin territory, with an assessment of twenty-five cents per acre annually for twenty years, this would produce $36,000 per mile, and that the land would increase beyond the assessed value. Asked what right Congress would have to place a tax burden on people who did not wish it, Plumb said the Government had a right to build railways where it pleased.

Other questions developed that he held that under the bill Government arsenals could turn out equipment for the railways and the Quartermaster's Department furnish food.

While the roads were said to have some $19,000,000,000 invested, they were worth actually only from $10,000,000,000 to $12,000,000,000, said the witness.

"What would become of the extra $7,000,000,000 now represented," asked Mr. Barclay.

"It is not represented now; it's not on the market," was one answer.

"Then you contend that the holders could only recover 66 per cent.?"

"Yes, that's more than they ever received in all railroad history. They would receive just about what they receive today."

In the bill, five directors are elected by the "classified" employes and five by the "official" employes, while five are appointed by the President. Mr. Barclay thought this would give "two to one," in favor of railway employes. The witness contended that the line between "classified" employes, of which there are now 2,000,000, and "official" employes, of which there are now 20,000, was clearly drawn. Subsidiary boards would be made up in the same way.

"If we wish a reasonable period of time to consider this plan and some railway employes showed impatience, you would not advocate a strike, would you?" asked Chairman Esch. The witness evaded the question.

Chairman Esch recalled that in February the witness said he did not think a solution of the railway problem could be reached within twenty-one months, the time then urged for the end of Federal control.

"The course of events has changed," replied Plumb. "I did not think two years too long then. I do now. We may accelerate the day. I would hot be surprised at almost any social development in this country within sixty or ninety days if I have correct information on the temper of the working men."

He said he felt "much as members of Congress do," when he came here in May, but he had been "overwhelmed and amazed by the sentiment of the men out in the country."

When Mr. Barclay asked Plumb to define his intimations of great industrial disturbances within sixty or ninety days, the witness said:

"When the plan spreads so like wildfire without effort on my part, I would not be surprised to see the people expressing their demand for it by any means within their power."

"Do you think it possible that this bill will solve the problem for all the people in the immediate future?" asked Mr. Barclay.

"It will do more than anythin else can. You face a demand for $700,000,000. If you grant it, you add an increase to the burden of living. If the plan is adopted we can assure immediately that there will be no increase in rates, wipe out the deficit and operate at a surplus. There may be a five per cent. rate reduction immediately, and perhaps it would be necessary to forego the dividends."

It was shown that State-owned roads would be taken over under the plan. Mr. Esch said the States received $214,000,000 annually from their railroad taxes, and that in some this revenue constituted half the tax receipts.

"Yes," said Plumb. "We propose that this should be reduced 10 per cent. annually, until absorbed, and the ten years would allow the States time to adjust their taxation."

CAREER OF ORIGINATOR OF PLUMB LINE PLAN

Lawyer Active in Anti-Corporation Movements in the Middle West.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Glenn E. Plumb, who appeared before the House Interstate Commerce Committee today in advocacy of the plan he prepared for the railroad brotherhoods for the nationalization of the railway systems, has taken an active part in anti-corporation movements in the Middle West, but was not widely known here until his plan was sprung upon an unsuspecting Congress.

Mr. Plumb is about 50 years old. He was graduated from Oberlin College in 1891 and from the Harvard Law School. Soon after being admitted to the bar he became a member of the Chicago law firm of which Merritt Starr was head, and there obtained his first extensive and practical introduction to corporation laws.

Mr. Plumb devoted several years to an exhaustive study of railway legislation and operation, including charter law, from the time of the organization of the first American railway system. He was retained by States Attorney Hoyne of Chicago in the action against the street railway systems there as far back as 1906.

Four years ago he first was employed by the railroad brotherhoods to present an argument before the Interstate Commerce Commission, and his work attracted much attention. He is now general counsel for the organized railway employes of America, which includes the four brotherhoods and ten affiliated railway organizations.

Mr. Plumb did not take any part in the fight of the brotherhoods in 1916 in forcing the Adamson law through Congress. He has, however, been studying the railway situation as it applied to the principles he has incorporated in the Plumb plan for Government ownership and nationalization for fifteen years.

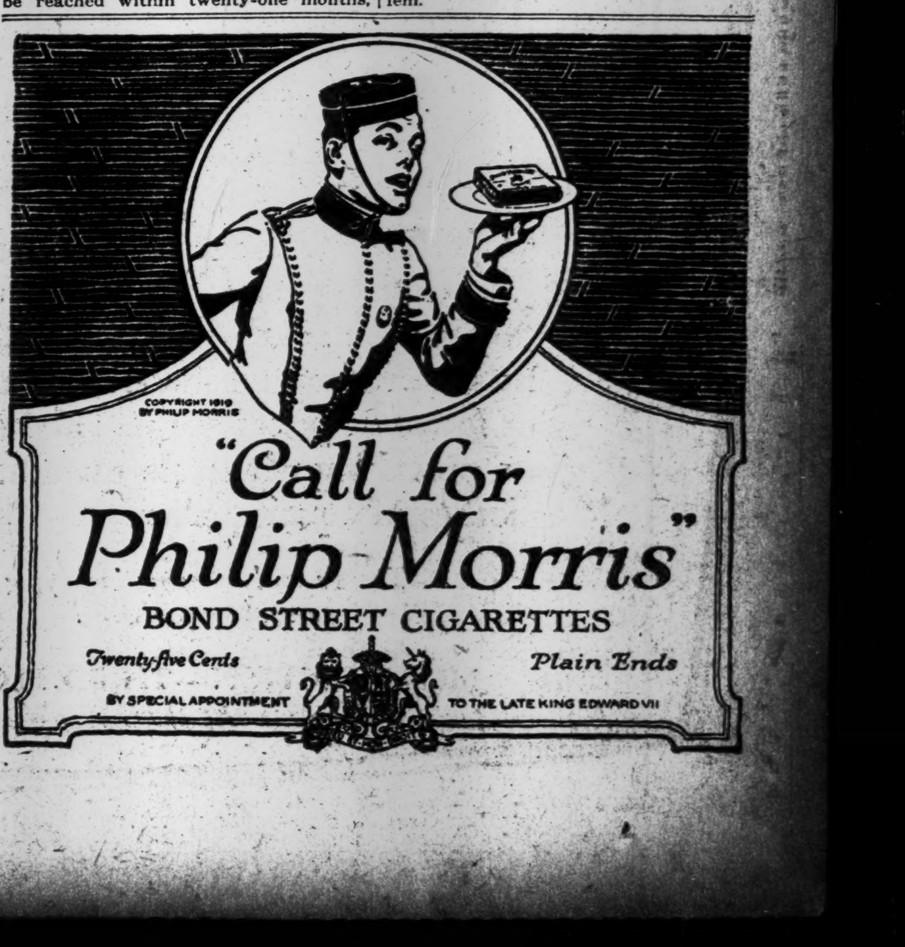
Mr. Plumb is five feet eight inches in height, and weighs about 180 pounds. He has gray hair and blue eyes. His personality is engaging. Mr. Plumb now lives at Chevy Chase, having moved here from Chicago when the plans were completed to stage the fight for the Plumb plan for railroads. He has a son, who is a Corporal in Battery B of the 83d Field Artillery.

POSTAL EMPLOYES WANT RISE.

Delegation Presents Letter to President at White House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—President Wilson was asked in a letter presented at the White House today to recommend to Congress an increase of 50 per cent. in the wages of Post Office and Postal employes over the country to meet the high cost of living.

The letter, presented by a delegation headed by Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, stated that the postal wage problem was as pressing as the railroad wage problem.



REPUBLICANS ASSAIL UCHIDA STATEMENT

INSIST ON TREATY CHANGE

To Accept the Arrangement Would Be Knowingly to Connive in a Great Wrong, Says Borah.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Their opposition to the award to Japan of the former German rights in Shantung was not lessened, Republican Senators said today, by Viscount Uchida's statement of the purpose of the Mikado's Government to return the peninsula sovereignty to China, which was coupled with the statement issued yesterday by President Wilson. In the view of some of the opposition Senators, the situation has not been cleared up in any satisfactory way by the announcement of the Japanese statesman.

Republican Senators who commented on the Japanese statement declared that Japan had not gone any further in outlining her intention as to when she would relinquish the Shantung rights. Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Norris of Nebraska, Senator Poindexter of Washington, and Senator Moses of New Hampshire, all Republicans, who have vigorously opposed the Shantung award, said it looked as though Japan was inclined to keep the peninsula as long as it saw fit.

"The President is, of course, diplomatic, but no less severe," said Mr. Borah. "It is a complete sermon upon Japanese methods, and conclusive as to the course which the Government should pursue in regard to Shantung. In view of the violation of treaty obligations and of oral agreements with reference to the independence of Korea, in view of the disregarding of her oral promises made at Portsmouth with reference to the restoration of certain rights to China in Manchuria, in view of her twenty-one demands, designed to reduce China to vassalage, demands which she at first denied; in view of the secret treaty of 1917, which incident it seems she kept secret from the United States when she was negotiating the Lansing-Ishii agreement, and now in view of the 'omission' in the statement of Uchida, will the Senate ratify the treaty until the Shantung matter is settled and the settlement executed? If we do, we will do so with the full knowledge that we are conniving at a great wrong to a friendly power. We will not be able to plead ignorance of the fact, and we will not be able to say in the future that we were the victims of bad faith.

"I said the President was severe with Uchida. Perhaps I should have said in view of the facts that he was unusually mild.

Senator Moses said:

"It must be kept in mind that there have been two statements of the Japanese position, one by Baron Uchida, the other by the leader of the parliamentary opposition in Japan. The opposition leader's statement, as I read it, indicates that the Shantung question may be an issue in the next Japanese election, and that the result may overturn the present Government's policy.

"The opposition, as I construe it, is protesting against the relinquishment of any of the Japanese privileges in China, or the surrender of what it regards as the fruits of Japan's victorious war. To put it euphemistically, there is apparent a mild contradiction among the Japanese elements themselves. There is nothing to indicate that the Japanese intend to relinquish their imperialistic policy."

Senator Morris said:

"It is apparent that Japan is not acting in good faith or she would have consented in the beginning that the treaty of peace should provide for the return of Chinese territory to China. She is not acting in good faith in this official statement, because it shows clearly she does not intend to return Shantung to China except at the end of arrangements and negotiations which she does not even outline, and which everybody knows will, in reality, surrender nothing to China that Japan desires to retain."

Senator Poindexter said:

"There is an absence of definiteness in the Japanese guarantee as to Shantung. Nothing is said as to what arrangements the Japanese have in mind other than the inference that they must be based upon the twenty-one points imposed by Japan upon China in the secret treaty of 1915. It has also been pointed out that the control of the economic rights which Germany had acquired in Shantung to all intents and purposes would give Japan control of the entire peninsula."

CHINA DENIES CHANGE IN SHANTUNG VIEWS

Demands That Japan Make Restoration of What She Intends to Restore.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Aug. 7.—The Chinese are considerably perturbed over a telegram from Washington appearing in the Tientsin press suggesting that China is weakening in her attitude on the Shantung question because the Chinese representative attended the reception to Premier Hara in Tokio.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is requested to affirm that the Chinese Government's attitude and the sentiment of the Chinese people in respect to the Shantung issue is absolutely unchanged. There is no weakening and no abatement of the demand for just treatment and no modification in the universally held opinion that the Shantung settlement as embodied in the Peace Treaty is a monumental injustice; that it cannot be justified on any principles of right; that it is inconsistent even with the highest expediency. China looks to America as the champion of this view. The Japanese reports of a definite promise to restore Kiao-Chau, it is said here, merely represents Japanese propaganda, and it is added that the only thing Japan can do to remove suspicion is actually to make the restoration of such things as she intends to restore.

SAN DIEGO WELCOMES NEW PACIFIC FLEET

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 7.—This city witnessed the greatest naval pageant in its history this morning when Secretary of the Navy Daniels reviewed Admiral Hugh Rodman's mighty Pacific armada. Thousands of visitors from cities and states far inland came here to witness the event.

Every available water craft in San Diego harbor bore capacity loads of sightseers. Every point of vantage in and about the city was thronged as were also the roofs and windows of downtown buildings that gave a view of the naval parade.

Secretary Daniels and an official welcoming party left the municipal wharf here at 7:30 A. M., aboard the destroyer Chauncey, from which they were transferred to the cruiser Montana. The Secretary's ship at 9 o'clock had taken its station off the port for the review.

It required one hour for the vast fleet of dreadnoughts, battleships of lesser type and twenty-one sleek and speedy destroyers to pass the welcoming party.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels, turning from the bridge of the Montana after the last destroyer had passed, said:

"This is realization of a dream I kept constantly in view for six years since I first came to the Pacific Coast shortly after induction into office to study naval conditions here. I conceived of an American fleet that was truly an American fleet, equally at home and equal in strength on both coasts. This organization into two powerful fleets is an epoch-making event in naval history and presages the day when the whole fleet, now composed of more than 1,000,000 tons, with 5,000,000 more tons building, will make the magnitude of this review seem small in comparison."

Furniture! Furniture!

Who's Got The Furniture?

The question is best answered by demonstration. Nothing we could say here would argue so much for the furniture now shown at Gimbels as seeing the collection with your own eyes.

Think of an entire Gimbel floor—32d to 33d St.—Broadway back to the Pennsylvania Hotel, simply "groaning" with beautiful stocks, and these but samples of hundreds of duplicates and additional pieces in immense warehouses waiting for show room. Think of half of the eighth floor with a similar story and so conveniently arranged that you can see it all in half an hour.

LODGE HAS NEW RESERVATION PLAN

Suggests That Senate Require Reservations Be Accepted by Four Other Powers.

TREATY NOT VALID TILL THEN

KELLOGG FOR QUICK ACTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—During a spirited debate in the Senate today on the League of Nations Senator Lodge, the majority leader, voiced the opinion that all reservations to the Peace Treaty should specifically require acceptance by at least four other nations to make them binding, and the treaty as well.

He stated that while in actual practice reservations might become valid if not opposed by other signatories, in this case there should be a definite declaration by the Senate that, to make the treaty binding, the other powers must agree to the reservations the United States suggested.

This idea was promptly indorsed by Senator Brandegee, and later Senator Borah indicated that the radical opponents of the League would insist upon such a course as Senator Lodge suggested.

Senator Lodge's suggestion came during debate over a speech of Senator Kellogg, Republican of Minnesota, in which the latter advocated four reservations, along the lines suggested by the seven "mild" reservationists as necessary to clarify the language of the league covenant in assuring "American sovereignty."

Kellogg Urges Quick Action.

Senator Kellogg, in opening his speech, expressed the hope that the Senate would soon have the treaty out of committee, so that it could devote itself to working out pressing economic problems. He said the people were impatient for speedy action on the treaty, and an effort, after that, to readjust unsettled affairs at home.

He outlined these reservations for the resolution of ratification, they being the four agreed upon by the seven "mild" reservationists and favored by a large number of other Senators:

1. On Article X., the United States reserving the right of Congress to determine whether its naval and military forces shall be used, if called upon by the League Council.
2. On the Monroe Dictrine, the Senate declaring that this is specifically outside the interpretation or jurisdiction of the League.
3. On domestic matters, such as tariff, coastwise trade, immigration, and racial equality, which are to be left for America's interpretation.
4. On the withdrawal clause, the Senate declaring that the United States, at the expiration of the stipulated two years' notice, shall be the sole judge whether its obligations to the League have been fulfilled.

Mr. Kellogg in his address held that provisions of the covenant, imposing obligations on Congress, did not violate the American Constitution, so the covenant could be ratified with interpretative reservations without requiring resubmission to other nations. He indicated that he was "willing to try" the League, although he did not think it would permanently prevent war.

The Minnesota Senator set forth precedents for various guarantees in the covenant that have been opposed as constitutional.

"Every treaty we negotiate to a certain extent," he said, "destroys certain freedom of sovereign action. A treaty, of which we have many, conferring certain privileges of trade, is binding, and if we perform our agreement, it limits legislative action. A treaty does not violate the Constitution because a violation of a treaty may cause war.

"It is claimed that we cannot enter into a treaty limiting armament, because Congress alone can raise and support armies and provide for a navy. By a treaty with Great Britain, negotiated in 1817, we agreed to limit armament on the Great Lakes and no question has ever arisen as to its validity."

Sees No Harm in Reservations.

"The proponents of the league claim that the Monroe Doctrine is excepted from the jurisdiction of the council and the assembly of the League. If this is true, there can be no harm and it would seem to be entirely proper for the Senate, in ratifying the treaty, to declare its interpretation of this clause.

"My own personal opinion is that the Monroe Doctrine is sufficiently designated to be excepted from the jurisdiction of the League.

"Article XV. would seem to confer upon the Council jurisdiction to determine whether a particular question which may arise is or is not by international law, solely within the jurisdiction of a party to a dispute, as, for example, questions relating to immigration, coastwise traffic, tariff, and other matters. It would seem, therefore, not only proper, but the duty of the Senate in ratifying a treaty, to declare its understanding that these questions are solely within the jurisdiction, of the United States.

"Respecting Article X. the question is somewhat different. I am not in favor of striking this article out of the League entirely, but there are some grave objections to this guaranty as it stands. I believe there should be some reservation construing this clause in such a way that it shall be absolutely clear and certain that the function of the Council is simply to serve in an advisory capacity, so that the other signatory powers will thoroughly understand that the Congress of the United States has the sole and exclusive power to declare war."

Pittman Raises a Point.

Senator Pittman, who followed Senator Kellogg, said that he was "unqualifiedly in favor of every one of the reservations" suggested by the Minnesota Senator. He went on:

"But I think it is important to determine what the effect would be if they were included in a separate resolution or if included in the resolution of ratification. I am satisfied in my own mind that if included in a separate resolution it serves as notice to those with whom we are dealing of the position we will take if construction of the treaty comes in question later on.

"I am satisfied, also, that the powers that might be construing the treaty at the time of the question would take into consideration that resolution, but that they would only consider it as interpreting the language already in the treaty. The only way you could make the reservations or interpretations binding on, all parties would be by substituting other language in the treaty, and this is done in the ratification."

"A resolution passed after the treaty has been ratified would, of course, serve notice upon them of our position," said Senator Kellogg. "It might be considered, and probably would, as indicating our objection, or rather our construction of the language, but it should be contained in a resolution for ratification, because of the language is what some Senators claim, it ought to be changed, and it would then be changed."

Senator Pittman insisted that a reservation would not be binding, unless agreed to by the other signatories to the treaty. He said that whether he would vote for reservations or not depended upon whether the reservations presented might endanger the whole treaty.

"Is it not true," interrupted Senator Lodge, "under the general practice, as distinguishing a reservation from an amendment, that the amendment, being a change in the text, has to receive the assent of every signatory, but a reservation under the usual practice does not? If the other parties to the treaty make no objection, the reservation stands as accepted."

Senator Kellogg agreed that this was the general practice.

"Well, I hope when we put these reservations in," declared Mr. Lodge, "that we shall provide that they shall be accepted by at least the other four of the five principal allied and associated powers before we become members of the League, and that we shall have their acceptance of our reservations. There will be no question about it. They will accept them."

Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, wanted to know why, if it had been the general practice that reservations were accepted, if not protested against by the other signatories, it would be necessary to secure the acceptance of four other nations to the treaty reservations.

"Undoubtedly, if a foreign country should put the treaty into force with a reservation upon it, it would be accepted the same as any man who puts a contract into force with a reservation upon it," replied Senator Kellogg.

Senator Borah remarked:

"I want to tell the Senate that no reservations, based on the silence of other nations signatory to the treaty, will be adopted unless they are put through by the advocates of the League of Nations. When this treaty is ratified, if it is ratified, it will be done with explicit reservations or amendments that the other nations will have to recognise."

Senaor Brandegee said:

"It has been the universal custom in the ratification of interests that silence has been considered as giving consent to reservations; the exchange and deposit of ratifications of the other nations has been considered an assent.

"But I thoroughly agree with the statement of the Senator from Massachusetts and what I consider to be the view of Senator Poindexter and Senator Borah, that this matter is of such overwhelming and far-reaching importance that if the Senate adds any reservations to this treaty, the resolution of ratification, itself, should provide that we shall not be considered as ratifying the treaty unless and until the other signatories, or at least the four or five principal signatories, affirmatively consent to our reservations, because I want to put the nails in and clinch them on the other side."

For Plain Reservations.

He held that the suggestion of Senator Pittman that after the treaty had been ratified the Senate might pass a "declaratory or interpretative resolution," as to its understanding of it, was futile.

"Once the Senate has approved and ratified the treaty and the ratifications have been exchanged, nothing that the Senate could say or do would have the slightest effect on it.

"If, however, at the time of the resolution of ratification the Senate puts on reservations that we will ratify the treaty with reservations, that we understand 'thus and so,' then that does not become a part of the treaty; it does not alter the treaty; the treaty stands as it is between the nations which have accepted it, but it leaves us unbound by those things which we have reserved."

"Any extraneous statement that we may make after we have signed the treaty," said Senator Poindexter of Washington, "in which we put any sort of construction on it or say that we are not bound except to such and such an extent, will be perfectly futile and without any effect, except such as the other parties to the contract would choose to give it."

"I agree with the position of the Senator from Washington," said Senator Borah, "that if a contract is sent for me to sign which has been signed by another party, and I sign it, but I accompany it with what I consider to be an interpretation or construction of the contract, it does not bind the other party at all. I can say further to the Senator that no such interpretation will be put through in this Senate unless the Democrats put it through."

"Then it will not be put through," remarked Senator Williams.

Senator Walsh of Montana maintained that any reservations would have the effect of altering the compact so that it would have to be submitted again to the Peace Conference.

"And in that event, with the United States making reservations, Germany, too, would want to make some of her own," argued Mr. Walsh. "I would throw the gates wide open."

"What would we lose?" asked Senator Poindexter. "What does the United States get out of this treaty?"

"What does the Senator think the United Sates ought to get out of it?" retorted Senator Walsh. "I think we get all the American people ever expected to get."

"Suppose we assert in the form of a reservation, at the time we ratify the treaty," said Senator McCumber, "that we ratify it with certain reservations, which may in effect modify the treaty as it now stands. The nations, saying nothing in regard to such reservations, would go ahead and appoint their thirty or forty commissions which are provided for in the treaty itself. Would they not by a silent acquiescence practically have ratified the treaty with our amendments and would they not be bound by it without any further affirmative action upon their part?"

Senator Nelson expressed the opinion that if the other nations put the treaty into effect after the Senate had made reservation, formal acceptance of the reservations would not be necessary.

Senator Brandegee held that the Senate should insist on formal acceptance of the reservations "to make assurance doubly sure."

"So there may not be an unnecessary waste of time in the discussion of interpretation or amendments which are going to be based upon the silence of some other nation," said Senator Borah, "I desire to say that if any such thing passes through the Senate the votes will have to be furnished by those who are in favor of this League. We, to a certain number, are not going to consent to any amendment or reservation which rests for its vitality upon the mere silence of another power."

"I thoroughly agree with the Senator as far as my intention and efforts are concerned," said Senator Brandegee. "I will join with him."

Inquiry on French Treaty.

The Senate adopted a resolution by Senator Walsh asking the Judiciary Committee whether there were any constitutional obstacles to the ratification of the treaty with France. Some Senators have argued that because it obligated the United States to help repel any unprovoked attack by Germany on France the treaty curtailed the constitutional power of Congress to decide when the nation should go to war.

3 HELD IN CONEY MURDER.

"Sugar," Baron, and Horadnor Accused in Killing of Cohen.

Charged with homicide in connection with the shooting and killing Sunday of Joseph Cohen, Manhattan furrier, at Coney Island, three men were held yesterday on short affidavits in the Coney Island Court without bail for further hearing Wednesday. They were Benjamin Scheinholtz of 1,233 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, feather maker; Maxwell Baron of 153 Stanton Street, Manhattan, a furrier, and Jack Horadnor of 158 Rivington Street, Manhattan, a painter.

The men were arrested by Detectives Ryan, Blake, and Callanan of the Coney Island station. Scheinholtz, who is known as Ben Sugar, is represented by former Assistant District Attorney Francis X. McCaffry. Harry Korman, who was with Cohen at the time of the shooting, was unable to appear, being confined to the Coney Island Hospital suffering from bullet wounds inflicted at the same time.

CHAMBERLAIN WARNS OF BRITISH SPENDING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain in the House of Commons tonight sounded a grave note of warning concerning the position of the exchequer.

He declared that if the country continued spending at the present rate it would lead straight to national bankruptcy. Neither increased production nor reduced expenditure alone would be sufficient. Both would be necessary in order to pull the country through. He promised that subsidies such as those on the railways and bread should be ended as soon as possible.

The Government, he said, was giving very serious and anxious attention to the financial position and was determined that reckless waste should be stopped and rigid economy exercised.

Referring to the prevalent fear that the Government would resort to nationalizing everything in the hope of getting revenue, Mr. Chamberlain said that was the last course that would ever enter his mind.

NEW MONEY FOR GERMANY.

Bill at Weimar Authorizes the Issue of 6,000,000,000 Marks.

WEIMAR, Aug. 6, (Associated Press.)—A bill was presented in the German National Assembly today under the terms of which the Finance Minister is to be authorized to issue 6,000,000,000 marks in Treasury warrants and new money during the coming year.

The purpose of the bill is to make more fluid and strengthen temporarily the ordinary cash supply of the Imperial Treasury.

THE ADVENTURES OF A NOVEL [THREE]

¶ The day "The Choice" was published I gave a copy to an old friend who has been very ill, and is still in charge of his nurse. He stopped me on the street a few days later in a button-hole manner:

"I want to tell you," he said, "about 'The Choice.' The other night I took my nurse to the movies round the corner. She is a quaint, quiet woman who talks very little. As we came out she said 'That girl is like Assy.' I didn't know what she meant and said so. 'Assy, you know,' she said, 'the girl in the book you left on the table. I read it.' Of course then I knew, but it's a good book that will take hold of a simple mind like that. I thought it a good book myself, natural and simple in an astonishing degree. I am going to read it again."

SUICIDE IS BLAMED FOR LAWLER BOMB

INTERESTED IN WILL CASE

Mechanical Engineer Was Unsuccessful in Breaking Testament Which Lawler Upheld.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 7.—Charles H. McGwire, assistant engineer of the Municipal Department of Public Works, who committed suicide here late last night by leaping from the office of District Attorney Thomas L. Woolwine on the eleventh floor of the Hall of Records, was held responsible today by public officials for the dynamiting last Sunday of the home of Oscar Lawler, a prominent attorney. McGwire had been told that he was to be indicted for the offense.

McGwire's death came as a dramatic climax to a lengthy questioning by District Attorney Woolwine. Confronted with evidence that officials said pointed directly to him as being responsible for the dynamiting, which nearly cost the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Lawler, McGwire rushed to a window in the room, eluded officers who tried to restrain him, and hurled himself to the pavement. He was dead when picked up.

It was learned after the suicide that McGwire had been in custody twenty-four hours. Revenge for having been unsuccessful recently in an attempt to break the will of William Kafitz, a capitalist of Los Angeles, in which Lawler represented a nephew and niece, was said to have been McGwire's motive in seeking the death of the attorney.

Kafitz, an elderly man of German birth, died in November, 1918. A few years before he had married a young woman. In January preceding his death he made his will, dividing the greater part of his estate between his nephew, F. William Kafitz, and his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Migeot. The wife was cut off. She went into court and declared that there was no will and had McGwire, her personal friend, appointed administrator.

The nephew and niece retained Mr. Lawler, who found the will, fought the case on the grounds that McGwire was "violently, energetically, and deliberately partisan" and the conduct of the widow had justified her being cut off in the will, and won the suit.

A month after the verdict a little church was destroyed by fire. Neighbors said they heard a bomb explosion preceding the fire. The pastor, the Rev. J. M. Schaefle, had been a witness in the court action, testifying to the alleged misconduct of Mrs. Kafitz. Whether the destruction of the church, whose pastor had received a $500 bequest under the will of Mr. Kafitz was the first step in McGwire's vengeance is not known.

A few days after the church was destroyed, Mrs. Kafitz and McGwire went to a lonely suburban district for a test of a bomb that McGwire had made. The woman told in detail of this trip in an inquiry shortly after the Lawler crime. Her description of the bomb used in that test tallies exactly with the fragments of the missile found in the ruins of the Lawler home. Mrs. Kafitz told the Chief of Police that the test was satisfactory, and that McGwire had two bombs exactly like the bomb he tested in the suburbs.

She said that on the ride to the test field McGwire carried a rifle and had threatened her life. He told her, she alleged, that he intended to kill her after the test bomb had exploded, but said he deferred it because he was nervous and was afraid he "would not make a clean job of it."

When the Lawler house was burned and Mr. Lawler and his wife taken to the hospital in a precarious condition Mrs. Kafitz said she fled to the home of a friend in the suburbs. There she was found by the police and finally told her story. F. William Kafitz, the heir whose fortune was won for him by Lawler, was amarried at noon today. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Mr. Schaefle, whose testimony helped to win the will case.

It was Mrs. Kafitz, the police said, who gave them the information involving McGwire.

What McGwire's financial interest in the Kafitz will case was to have been had the property gone to Mrs. Kafitz has not been disclosed.

The domestic relations of Kafitz and his wife were disturbed by quarrels, and after a dispute one day she shot and wounded her husband. He recovered, made a will and then died. This will, officials asserted, disinherited Mrs. Kafitz.

TO KEEP EHRENBREITSTEIN.

Pershing Recommends That American Garrison Stay There.

COBLENZ, Aug. 6, (Associated Press.)—The American flag will continue to fly from the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein so long as United States troops hold a position here in the occupied area, according to informal information from Paris received today by the Inter-Allied Rhineland Commission.

General Pershing, it is understood, recommended that the Stars and Stripes be kept on the fortress, which has been an American garrison since last December. He also recommended that Coblenz be made American headquarters.

A decision by the Supreme Council as to the area to be occupied by the 8th Infantry and other units which are to remain here is expected to be announced some time next week.

ENTENTE TO OUST VON DER GOLTZ'S ARMY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Strong measures are being taken by the Peace Conference to foil the German attempt to establish a Germanic centre on the eastern flank of Poland in Litvia or Lithuania on the Baltic.

This is one of the old provinces of Russia which had been particularly subject to "peaceful penetration." Large tracts of land had been bought up by Germans, who naturally acquired great influence among the native population, almost entirely of the peasant class. Berlin regarded these settlers as a German garrison, and made considerable use of them in the last days of the war as bona fide representatives of legal opinion, although they formed only 6 per cent. of the population.

Since the armistice the Junkers have looked on this out-of-the-way corner of Europe as a convenient spot in which to concentrate their diminishing forces. General von der Goltz has been in command of the German forces in this region and his activities attracted the attention of Marshal Foch some months ago, and brought down on him a stern order to get out. Nevertheless he stayed and employed his time in getting for his men from the German land barons land and other economic concessions which showed he had ideas of establishing a regular German colony.

Now General Sir Hubert Gough has been sent to see von der Goltz, and has had a stormy interview with him. He told him to leave at once. Von der Goltz replied that it would take him seventy-four days to move his troops by rail. Gough bade him take them away by sea. Von der Goltz flatly refused. Gough referred the matter to Paris, and the Peace Conference drafted a scheme by which all Germans could be evacuated from Litvia by sea by Aug. 26. This was to be handed to von der Goltz today.

The British Government is about to publish a complete account of this particular German intrigue.

The Housing Problem
No. 9

The lack of houses is so great that it becomes a matter of public policy to relieve it and the simplest and most immediately effective method of doing this is to exempt everyone from paying income taxes on the interest on a moderate line of mortgages.

It simply means restoring the minimum exemption to the old figure of $3,000 or $4,000, and that only for those who will stand by the mortgage market and to the extent only that they do stand by it.

The method was used successfully in selling Liberty Bonds.

It would be just as successful in drawing money into the mortgage market, and unless it is drawn into the mortgage market, building cannot go on in sufficient volume.

ELECTRIC SERVICE ALSO HELPS

WHEN the amendment to the Tenement House Law made permissible the alteration of four story and basement houses to hold four families instead of one, electric service was the most important improvement which owners installed.

Without electricity the high class of tenants attracted to these altered residences would not have been obtained, for these people were attracted to the comforts and conveniences of wired buildings.

As if by magic electric service brings to the interior of the most venerable dwelling an atmosphere at once modern, cheerful and attractive. It puts the building in a different class, on a par with the most modern of houses. And then it costs so little to install.

That is how electric service is helping to relieve the housing situation, by attracting the high class of tenants which the owners of these altered dwellings must obtain.

TO EQUIP SEA VIEW FOR DRUG ADDICTS

HAS SANCTION OF HYLAN

Declares That Criminals Will Not Be Sent There and Tubercular Patients Will Not Be Disturbed.

Notwithstanding the disapproval of Charities Commissioner Coler, the work of fitting up the Sea View Hospital on Staten Island as a hospital for drug addicts will go forward immediately, Health Commissioner Copeland said yesterday, and within a few days the Department of Health will take over the actual management of the institution from the Department of Charities.

The project, Dr. Copeland said, has the sanction of the Mayor, and in announcing that he would take over Sea View the Commissioner took occasion yesterday to deny a statement by Commissioner Coler that if a transfer of the hospital were forced by the Health Commissioner hundreds of tubercular patients would die as a result.

It was apparent yesterday that Dr. Copeland, acting with the approval of Mayor Hylan, does not intend to wait for the consent of Commissioner Coler, but intends to take over its management through the power vested in his office.

According to Dr. Copeland, the Sea View Hospital is intended for the receipt of patients who are in the third stage of tuberculosis. Others should be sent to Otisville, to Manhattan Hospital, and to Riverside Hospital. He said he had found out that this had not been done, and in consequence there are hundreds of patients on Staten Island who could be sent to other institutions without danger to their health. Critical cases are not to be moved, but will be kept at Sea View for, he said, the accommodations there are ample for their keeping and for the care of addicts as well.

It is the intention of Dr. Copeland not to change the present medical and nursing staff at Sea View, but to place the institution in the general care of Dr. Robert J. Wilson, Director of the Bureau of Hospitals.

"I wish to make it clear that no criminal addicts will be sent to Sea View Hospital. Ample police protection has been promised and the citizens of Staten Island will be no more conscious of the new use of Sea View Hospital than they are of the present."

In a letter written to Dr. Copeland by President Noonan of the American Association of Pharmaceutical Chemists the sympathy and co-operation of that body are pledged to the Commissioner in the effort he is making to control the habit-forming drug situation.

MORGENTHAU DENIES POLISH STATEMENT

Has Not Said Pogrom Stories Are Exaggerated—Is Still Investigating.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Henry Morgenthau, head of the American commission sent to Poland to investigate the situation, has sent this cablegram to the State Department from Warsaw:

"Mr. Morgenthau, having just read a statement issued by the Polish Telegraph Agency on July 28 that he stated in an interview with newspaper correspondents that 'in the short time he had been in Poland he had convinced himself that all the so-called pogroms of the Jews are incredibly exaggerated,' desires to state that he never made such a statement.

"We had not on July 28 commenced investigation of the pogroms. We, General Jadwin and myself, had devoted most of our time in Warsaw to obtaining general impressions of people of the existing differences regarding economic boycott and the general economic conditions, and worked toward creating a better feeling among the parties.

"We left Warsaw on the night of July 27 to investigate at first hand and by direct examination witnesses and inspection of places where crimes were alleged to have been committed and the documentary evidence collected by the various committees at these places so as to enable us to form an opinion on the subject. We shall not be able to give even an intimation as to what our opinion will be until we have completed the visits we intend to make. We have already visited Sokolko, Grodno, and Lida, and are now at Vitna, where we expect to spend three to four more days. We shall visit Baronovitch, Brest-Litovsk, Pinsk, Lodz, Cracow, Lemburg, and Chenitokhovo.

"We believe that we have heard less than one-third of the testimony that we intend to listen to before submitting it all to the Polish Government for their answer, and shall not begin to form an opinion until the Polish Government has had an opportunity to answer. Then General Jadwin, Mr. Homer Johnson, and myself will calmly sit as long as it is necessary and weigh the facts obtained before arriving at final conclusions. As one of the most important questions involved is that of whether any exaggeration has been indulged in by the Jews, Mr. Morgenthau says that this would be the very last question that he should express an opinion upon until the case has been properly heard.

"The published statement also says, 'he admitted that the Jews sometimes forget that equality of right called for equality of duties.' Mr. Morgenthau would like to know how he could admit the Jews, meaning the Polish Jews, sometimes forgot that equality of rights called for equality of duties when the Polish Jews have not as yet had equality of rights. He admits that he said that the Jews should remember that 'equality of rights called for equality of duties.'"

WHERE DOES MR. GOMPERS STAND?

In his testimony before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, Mr. Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, describing what he conceived to be an "ideal democracy," said that he did not see "any reason why wealth should pass from father to son." This theory or doctrine, that wealth accumulated during a man's lifetime should not pass to his children, but should revert to the State or the community, does violence to one of the most powerful of all the impulses of the human heart. The solicitude of parents for the safety, welfare, and happiness of their children is universal, natural, and instinctive. Every father, if he be a natural, normal man, is moved by the desire to make provision for his children. The doctrine enunciated by Mr. Morrison, therefore, flies in the face of nature. What can be its origin, how did it arise, why is it believed in? Search the records of human thought, of economics, of sociology and of socialism from the invention of writing until the present day and you are guided inevitably, unerringly, to one source. It is the sentiment proclaimed by Proudhon when he declared that "property is theft."

This chance utterance of Mr. Morrison not only shows what is going on in his own mind, but throws a revealing light upon the motives that prompted the manifesto put forth by the Chiefs of the Railroad Brotherhoods demanding that the railroads be purchased by the Government and operated "democratically" by a board in which labor, the railroad officials, and the Government would have equal representation. To students of socialism that manifesto had a very familiar ring. It is stamped all over with the ideas of Karl Marx. "No fundamental changes are being advanced "to save workers from continual defeat in the economic struggle of "life"; furthermore, "we realize "that in the strife for wage increases "we cannot win any permanent victory"; also, "a few grow wealthy and the multitude is impoverished." That is Marx's theory of increasing misery for the proletariat as set forth in the "Communist Manifesto." The theory of Marx and Engels was that the modern laborer "instead of rising "with the progress of industry sinks "deeper and deeper below the conditions of existence of his own class. "He becomes a pauper, and pauperism develops more rapidly than "population and wealth." Experience was disproving this dictum at the time it was written; the theory has been altogether refuted, torn to tatters, and intelligent Socialists long ago rejected it. It appears to have been accepted as gospel truth by the men who wrote the Brotherhood manifesto.

The destruction of the capitalistic system was Marx's remedy; that is the remedy the Brotherhood Chiefs now prescribe to prevent the impoverishment of the multitude. They would make a beginning by expropriating the owners of railroad property. But some of them openly avow the belief that other great industries should be taken out of the hands of private owners and operated democratically.

A pamphlet has been issued by the "Press Bureau of the Plumb Plan League" at Washington setting forth the outline of that plan "to secure "public ownership and democracy in "the operation of the railroads." The pamphlet contains a list of the officers of the League. This is the first name on the list: "Honorary President, "Samuel Gompers, President of the "American Federation of Labor." This is an occasion for no small wonderment. Does Mr. Gompers approve the Plumb Plan? Was he consulted in the preparation of the statement put forth by the Chiefs of the Railroad Brotherhoods? The plan in what it immediately proposes and in what it hints at is Marxian socialism; the statement of the Brotherhood Chiefs embodies the Marxian doctrines, almost phrases of Karl Marx's "Communist Manifesto" and other writings. For many years Samuel Gompers has been sturdily combating the efforts of the Socialists to get control of the American Federation of Labor, to spread their doctrines among workingmen. He has fought the Socialists tooth and nail. He has denounced their doctrines as false, he has himself understood and has clearly pointed out the perils to labor involved in socialistic leadership, the certain disasters to which the acceptance of socialistic doctrines would lead.

Socialism is a product of the German mind; in all countries, and notably in the United States, the socialistic organizations worked in the interests of Germany during the war. Samuel Gompers was in every fibre of his being loyal to the cause of the Allies and of the United States. He detested the Socialists for their efforts in behalf of Germany. We cannot believe that Mr. Gompers has given up his fight against the Socialists who are seeking the control of his Federation; least of all can we believe that he has become a convert to doctrines the falsity of which he has so often and so eloquently demonstrated. His acceptance of the Brotherhood plan of "democratic" operation of the railroads would, of course, prove that we were mistaken, that we had misjudged the firmness of the conviction he has so long held.

THE SECOND DIVISION.

The trump of Fame sounded so vibrantly the Marine Brigade's glory at Belleau Wood that the achievements of other units of the 2d Division were for a time obscured. It is no reflection upon the valor of the marines to say that the 9th and 23d Infantry Regiments fought as magnificently on every field in France where duty called them; in fact, their officers and men believe that as effectives they were superior to the marines, but this may be set down to service pride, for the 9th and 23d are regular army regiments and the marines are amphibious, sea soldiers who belong to the navy, but who in our small wars have been the first to be summoned to fight on land. The 2d Division contains, besides the 9th and 23d Regiments of Infantry and the Marine Brigade, the 12th, 15th, and 17th Regiments of Field Artillery, the 2d Regiment of Engineers, the 4th and 5th Machine Gun Battalions, the 2d Mortar Battery, the 1st Field Signal Battalion, and the 2d Supply and 2d Ammunition Trains. All these units distinguished themselves in France, and they must never be forgotten when admirers of the 2d Division discuss the merits of the infantry regiments and the marines.

Today these splendid troops march through the streets of New York with their honors thick upon them; they will march just as well as they fought, for they want to show this city the material a fighting division of regular army men and marines is made of, and how it looks in review formation, company after company filing past behind the colors with bands playing airs that stir the blood. Before the war New York never saw all the units of a division of regulars in such brave show; in fact, it did not know what the complete organization was like. It is now to see one of the two best divisions that vanquished the flower of the German Army, the other, according to expert opinion, being the 1st, of the regular army. Even General Pershing would not venture to decide between them.

If men ever fought better than the 2d Division in France, with more dash and spirit and fortitude, with more indifference to death, where shall the record be found? Originally the complement was 28,243, but the replacements amounted to 35,343; so, as General A. W. Greely has pointed out, "the number who passed under its colors" was 63,586. The 2d Division's casualties were, according to "the final report of the Central Records Office," 22,230, of whom 4,478 were killed and 17,752 were wounded. The 1st Division suffered losses of 21,612, and its battle deaths were less than those of the 2d by only 67. These two organizations headed the casualty list, the 3d, a regular army division, having 16,117 killed and wounded. It is a heroic division, a glorious company of gallant, invincible men, that New York will see this afternoon. The sun shines on none finer. This is the day of the regular army and the marines. They cannot be too highly honored for their deeds.

LET NO GUILTY PROFITEER ESCAPE.

It is good news that the Meat Trust is to be prosecuted by the Department of Justice at the direction of the President. It is also good news that the procedure will be criminal, so that there will be findings of fact by common men rather than a balance of opinion between lawyers or Judges. We have had too many decisions by a divided bench and too many reversals of lower courts by higher courts on the questions raised anew. Criminal cases are likelier to be pressed to a decision than civil cases, and they have the advantage usually of being convincing to "the man in the street," in the specific case at least. But that is not true of the Beef Trust. It has been tried before upon the indictment of the Federal Trade Commission, and at its acquittal the Federal District Attorney wept, so confident was he that he had made a case.

There are several reasons for recalling this precedent. One is the similarity of the complaints. In both cases they are based on the sort of reasoning from the marshaling of figures that convicted Tweed. There was not a doubt in the Tweed case, because they proved divisions of stolen money. There was no possible doubt that the money was stolen and that those who divided it had no right to it. But the lawfulness of the conduct of the packers lies at the threshold of the case against them. The Supreme Court has reproached prosecutors of trusts for trying their cases on innuendoes. There are allegations enough in the Federal Trade Commission's report to convict a pirate, but the facts are of the same sort as the jury refused to consider before. They said that the people had not suffered, and they could not see that the defendants ought to be convicted on such evidence. It may be that the case against the trust has been strengthened. Also, perhaps the defendants then were emboldened by their acquittal and have committed offenses calling for punishment. If so, their wealth will not protect them, and the size of their business will rather increase their offense. The situation is serious for them, but opinion on the merits must await the event.

While the statements of the Federal Trade Commission will be heard in court, so also will facts not presented by it. The grievance against the men of the trust has been said to be that they bought their live stock so cheap as to discourage the producers and sold their meat so dear as to oppress consumers. They would be foolish to do so, and it has been said in debate in Congress as matter of fact they have not done so. In 1914 we had little beef to spare for export, but in 1918, for the first time since the public lands were closed to cattle grazing, there was a gain in cattle in proportion to population. Last year we exported nearly 600,000,000 pounds of beef and beef products, equal to the exports of 1901, when the population was 35,000,000 smaller. Cattle are more numerous now than before the enormous war business, but lighter. That does not indicate discouragement of the producers by the trust's reduction of its buying price. The growth of hogs has been in proportion to the price inducement, which was more marked than in the case of beef. It is true that the wholesale price of beef has fallen since the war ended, and there has been a reduction of war exports. The retail prices have not fallen equally, but that is no fault of the wholesalers.

The Federal Trade Commission has recommended that the Government should take over large fractions of the trust's business plant, having no doubt that Government management could and would improve upon that of the trust. During the war there could be no doubt of the efficiency of the trust. In fact, it is difficult to see how the war could have been won without the food it provided. But if the Federal Trade Commission is to oversee its activities hereafter, there is likely to arise the question as to how the home market is to be supplied. Nevertheless, if the trust profiteers, practices extortion, it ought to go to jail if proved guilty, and the prosecution is to be welcomed.

THE POLICE IN THE STRIKE.

With the causes or exterior impulsions of the strike, which the Mayor and the Police Department have allowed virtually to close the lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, to inconvenience hundreds of thousands of persons, and to produce repeated acts of intimidation and violence on the part of strikers or hooligans, the public has at present a secondary concern. True, when a strike owes such success as it has to acts of violence, it creates a presumption against it in the public mind. That violence was used with malice prepense is evident from the preparations of the imported leaders of the strike to give bail for persons charged with disorder in imposing the strike on the employés willing to remain, men and women willing to take the strikers' places, and the public.

How ironical sounds the advice of National Committeeman Shea of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés to the men on Tuesday: "Be orderly and "show the people that you are law-"abiding citizens." The strike began in an orderly manner on Wednesday morning. Had adequate police protection been provided, the subsequent disorder would have been prevented. At 10 o'clock on Wednesday night the entire system was closed after a conference between its officials and the police. The shameful admission had to be virtually made that disorder had beaten order in Brooklyn. Protection had been twice asked in the course of the day. In his answer to the first letter of Receiver Garrison asking that a policeman be placed on each car, the Mayor indulged in virtuous words. "We are determined to pre-"serve law and order in this strike "and we will carry out this de-"termination without showing the "slightest favoritism to either side in "the controversy." "The general "public may rest assured that ample "and proper police protection will be "enforced. No one need have any "fear that the police will not be able "to cope with any situation that may "arise."

Meanwhile a situation with which the police were unable or unwilling to cope had arisen, and was growing worse every minute. "The police," Mayor Hylan had written, "will take "no side in this strike, but will simply "do their duty of preserving peace." Of course, the only side that the police can properly take is the side of public order. Mayor Hylan did not take that side. The police did not take that side. The Commissioner of Police did not take that side, or else he did not know the fundamental necessity of suppressing disorder in its beginning. And to deny or not to afford adequate protection was to take the strikers' side. Mr. Garrison had an interview with Deputy Police Commissioner Porter, and was again put off with vague assurances of "adequate police protec-"tion to prevent disorder and protect "the operation of the cars."

Meanwhile, the cars were being attacked, their operation was prevented, the trolley-pole ropes cut, the operators threatened with assault or assaulted. Every attack on a car was a nucleus of riot. The snowball of disorder grew fast. What good could a few policemen stationed here and there or police reserves in police stations do? The instant placing of policemen on the cars, the detail of sufficient force to every centre of violence, would have ended this Brooklyn anarchy in quick time. This same sort of imported strike, to be spread with brickbats and stones and bludgeons and revolvers, was attempted on the New York surface railway lines in 1916. New York had a competent municipal government then. The motormen were protected. The police did their duty.

The company had sufficient men to operate its cars if they were protected. Mr. Garrison wrote the Mayor another letter, telling him that unless a policeman was placed on every car the company would have to discontinue service by nightfall. He asked for 1,300 policemen. The Mayor at last granted the request. His Police Commissioner had reported to him on Wednesday that "there has been no "disorder today and the situation has "been well in hand at all times." As a matter of fact, disorder has been growing worse and worse every hour. The police never had the situation in hand, a situation created by their own failure to repress violence at the first. And so at 10 o'clock the city had to confess itself powerless to maintain order, and the B. R. T. system was shut up; and yesterday the same shameful state of violence continued. Property and persons were not safe. The Mayor and the Commissioner of Police had lacked the courage to put out the fire when it was first started.

REORGANIZING HUNGARY.

It was not to be expected that the millennium would immediately follow the deposition of Bela Kun, but we might have looked for something better than what has occurred. The intermediary Government which followed Kun's downfall seems to have been a heterogeneous group which might not have held together, but perhaps it offered better prospects in times such as these than a Hapsburg Archduke. But the Archduke, at last accounts, was in charge, and was reported to have allied support. Tomorrow he may have given place to some one else; at any rate, it is hard to see that the Allies will gain any profit by supporting a Hapsburg.

True, this is a special sort of Hapsburg. For years past Archduke Joseph has been what might be termed a "professional Magyar," adopting this race to the exclusion of all others, even the German, in the old empire. There were those who said that he was preparing himself against the day when Hungary might break away from the union, and that the family approved of his course as likely to save a valuable crown for the family interest. After Karolyi's revolution last Fall he and his family proclaimed themselves as hereafter no more than simple Magyar citizens, and from the gentleman's record there is good reason to suppose that a simple desire to be of service to his country may be the motive behind his present advance to the supreme power. But the Hapsburgs are somewhat out of fashion at present; they may come back, but just now they hardly seem the leaders to command most popular support.

It appears that the behavior of the Rumanian army of occupation is responsible for some of the trouble in Budapest, but the criticism of the Rumanians which is heard in many quarters is by no means justified. Hungary, for Rumania, is a condition and not a theory. The old dispute over the three or four million Rumanians kept in subjection to Hungary has poisoned feeling for years. Less than a year ago Magyar troops were still in the Rumanian capital, and Magyars participated in the plundering of Rumania of almost everything worth taking away. The Magyars proclaimed that they would not submit to the liberation of their subject races, and so long as they felt thus they were a standing danger to Rumania.

Bela Kun came to power because the people thought he could keep the old frontiers. This was one direct menace to Rumania; another lay in Kun's alliance with Lenin, who threatened Rumania from the other side. With Bolshevism in the east and north and an unrepentant Bulgaria to the south, Rumania was in deadly danger. The Conference did nothing but talk to Bela Kun, and eventually the Rumanian Army threw him out. In that they served Rumanian interests and those of the world, and they are working for us no less than for themselves when they insist on disarming Hungary.

The objection to the demands made in the Rumanian ultimatum is practical, not sentimental. In theory they are just; Rumania does no more than demand the return of what was stolen from her, or its equivalent; she merely takes precautions to see that a dangerous neighbor is made incapable of harm. In practice, however, the disarming seems to have been done rather harshly, and the demands call for property which Hungary, in all probability, actually does not have. Much of what was taken out of Rumania was shot away in the war, and much of the rest was stolen by the Bolsheviki. For both of these things the Magyars are directly responsible, and it is expediency, not justice, which recommends that we leave them at least something on which to make a new start. But with all this we ought to remember that the Rumanians did the world's work when nobody else was doing it. A policeman is blamed, and rightly, when he uses needless violence on a prisoner whom he is taking to the station, and that is what the Rumanians seem to be doing; but it is not good sense to blame him for making the arrest.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

More Than Truth Is Involved.

If one chose—and presumably a good many Germans of the unreconstructed sort will choose—one could see a mere issue of veracity in the controversy that has arisen between ex-Ambassador Gerard and ex-Admiral von Tirpitz. The latter in his recently published book writes that Mr. Gerard, addressing the Bremen Chamber of Commerce before the United States went into the war, assured his hearers that "strong opposition to a declaration of submarine warfare need not be expected from America." To this Mr. Gerard replies that he never spoke before the Bremen Chamber of Commerce, one reason, among others, being that he was never in that city, and that never, either in public or in private, did he make, anywhere, a statement in the slightest degree resembling the one ascribed to him, whereas, at many times and in many places, he made exactly opposite statements as clearly and explicitly as his command of several languages enabled him to do it.

There is the issue of veracity as it stands, and, if nothing more were known regarding the two men, it would be necessary to admit that their assertions balance and nullify each other. That is always the case when men of equal repute, or men concerning whom no general information as to record and motive is available, give contradictory testimony on any subject. But that is not the case in this instance.

No Doubt About the Facts.

When our former Ambassador to Germany and the builder of the Kaiser's navy contradict each other as to what the former said about submarine warfare and its influence on American opinion, the issue of veracity is not beyond settlement, for a great deal is known about both men—quite enough to make inevitable the conclusion that Mr. Gerard is telling the truth and that Admiral von Tirpitz is not.

It is not necessary to conclude that the once great and more or less powerful sea lord is knowingly untruthful, for he may have been misinformed as to the Bremen speech, and only be repeating what he heard and believed. It strains charity hard, indeed, to be as kind as that, but misinformation did abound in Germany all through the war, and it was held a patriotic duty for everybody there to believe everything calculated to reassure and encourage the German public as to the successful course and favorable outcome of the war.

The possibilities of credulity, therefore, were very great—how amazingly great being well illustrated by the fact that even now a man as highly placed as Prince Henry of Prussia can say with what sounds like sincerity, and hardly can be anything else, that England is responsible for the war and all its horrors.

But though there is a possibility that Admiral von Tirpitz wrote what he thought was the truth about a speech delivered in Bremen by the American Ambassador, it is nothing less than certain that never in any part of Germany did the American Ambassador say that submarine warfare, no matter how ruthless, would not excite strong opposition in this country. In the first place, Mr. Gerard knew better, and therefore simple common sense would have prevented him from making a statement the inevitable consequence of which would have been immediate discredit at home and discredit not long delayed in Germany. In the second place, Mr. Gerard again and again warned the Germans of what would happen if they did not abandon their submarine policy—and the event proved him to be an able prophet.

Naturally he did not say one thing in Berlin and its opposite in Bremen.

Again the Retailer Took Most.

Representative Igoe could not ask better warrant for his persistent efforts to interest his colleagues in the price of shoes than is provided by the report of the Federal Trade Commission on what its investigation of that subject has disclosed. The Commission's conclusion is that, while the war really did make impossible the maintenance of the prices that prevailed before the war began, the increases in selling prices to the consumer—in this case the wearer—have been greater than the higher cost of manufacture justified.

Everybody with any part in the shoe industry seems to have joined in demanding—and getting—more than prewar profits, but again it was revealed that at the end, not at the beginning, of the process that turns hides into shoes was the harsh charge of profiteering best deserved. The wholesalers, it seems, were satisfied with making a comfortable profit of 20 per cent. over what was cost to them. The retailer was not so easily content; he wanted a profit approaching 50 per cent., and the prices he charged gave him that—almost.

Perhaps, even probably, it is not entirely fair to present these figures as measuring the relative rapacity of wholesaler and retailer. The latter, especially if his business is a small one, really must have a higher percentage of profit than the former, if he is to live and be even decently prosperous. But that his profits must, for that innocent and amiable purpose, be so much more than those of the man trading on a larger scale, the retailer of shoes, as of many other wares, will find it difficult to prove, the more difficult as the facts become better known to a deeply interested public.

RAILROAD PROFIT SHARING.

Mr. Willcox Proposes Compromise to Meet Claims of Both Sides.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The significant demand of labor leaders for nationalization of the railroads cannot be lightly brushed aside. It is a sincere proposal, seriously advocated by a large group of intelligent citizens, and any fair-minded opponent should at least give impartial consideration to its underlying causes. No permanent solution of the controversy can be expected without frank recognition and appreciation of the other fellow's point of view.

In the first place, it is important to note that the railroad employes do not question the right of capital to a fair return. There is no suggestion of confiscation in their demand. On the contrary, it includes a definite proposal that holders of railroad securities shall receive Government bonds for every honest dollar invested in railroad property. Rightly or wrongly, however, railroad employes do believe that capital has appropriated an unfair share of railroad earnings in the past and will continue to do so in the future unless the Government takes permanent control. This, in their opinion, overshadows every other issue. The relative economy and efficiency of private operation and Government operation are not even considered. The wide departure from the traditional policy of our democratic government is ignored. Capital has lost the confidence of labor, and Government operation is advocated as the only possible means of protecting the employes and the public from its avaricious grasp.

It is too late for argument on the merits of this contention. Any attempt to debate the issue and defend capital merely arouses increased irritation. So long as the present relations continue and capital receives all of the surplus earnings of the roads, it is absolutely inevitable that the employes and a large part of the general public will believe that the owners of railroad securities are getting more than a fair share. There is, however, one obvious answer to the labor leaders and that is a counterproposal for private operation with a limited return on the invested capital.

If the stockholders who advocate private operation of the railroads, under Government supervision and control, were to seriously propose that all earnings in excess of a fair return on the invested capital should be divided between the employes and the Government, this would be an effective answer to the demand of the labor leaders for Government operation. Moreover, such an arrangement would not only provide an incentive and reward for efficiency of employes, but would go far to reconcile the public to adequate rates for passengers and freight, and thus give the holders of railroad securities an assured return upon their investment amounting almost to a Government guarantee.

The psychological effect of such an arrangement would be incalculable. Nothing could do more to allay the suspicion and antagonism of labor and to restore public confidence in the fair attitude of capital. Moreover, such a proposal would be an effective test of the real purpose of both capital and labor. If the employes are sincere in advocating Government ownership and operation merely to avoid excessive payments to stockholders, they cannot reasonably object to this proposal, while if they are advocating Government ownership and operation as a means of control through political influence, in their own interest and for their own benefit, they will, of course, oppose the return of the roads to private control on any terms. On the other hand, if the present owners of the roads are sincere in recognizing the interest and rights of the public and in not desiring to take advantage of their control to exact unreasonable profits, they will welcome an arrangement under which their capital is assured a fair return and surplus earnings are divided between the employes and the public, while if the stockholders are not content with a fair return on their investment, they can hardly avoid a suspicion that they desire to exploit railroad operation and development for private profit.

WILLIAM G. WILLCOX.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that Congress should pass a law automatically disfranchising all Federal employes during the time of their engagements, and that the States and municipalities should enact similar laws in order that the ever increasingly vast army of such employes, who enjoy numerous exemptions and other preferences, may not become a direct political threat to our system of government.

If Government employes are to be considered the servants of the people, it is obvious that they should not, as a direct result of their employment, become placed in positions where they may conspire to obstruct or defeat the purposes of the people.

LO, THE POOR CAPITALIST!

Hearing a note of ominous warning—
"Call a taxi! Breakfast down town!
The chauffeur and cook have struck this morning!"
Dives reaches his desk at nine;
Wonders, seeing few signs of action.
"Bookkeepers, typists walked out just now!
A sympathy strike, with the eight-hour faction!"
Dives is called. "Yes! Hello, hello!"
"Say to the Boss that there's trouble brewin'!
The foremen decide for a union shop.
Orders pile up—but there's nothin' doin'!"
Dives is peeved, as he goes to lunch;
Looks in vain for his favorite waiter.
Worried, the manager brings the card:
"Pedro has struck with the rest, young traitor!"
Dives thinks golf may calm his nerves;
Starts for the links in a tramcar stuffy.
"Caddies—left;—want—a—flat—rate—per—hour!"
Cheerfully snarls the head steward puffy.
Dives dines at the Magnates' Club,
Finding the meal is both crude and scrappy.
"Club chefs all over the town have quit!"
Dives enters the hall at night,
"Gadzooks!" he groans. "But it's in the air!

SENATORS WASTING TIME IN INQUIRY.

Observer Thinks They Are Busying Themselves Over Wilson's Course in Paris When Action Is Needed.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—There are in Washington scores of men who were connected in one way or another with the American delegation at the Peace Conference and are familiar with the conditions and proceedings in Paris. I have talked with many of them today regarding the points raised in the examination of Secretary Lansing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday, and it will be useful to give the consensus in these quarters.

The contention among these men is that the drafting of the treaty was strictly, and if in his judgment desirable, exclusively the President's business. He could call for the aid of the commissioners or not just as he deemed best. He is the sole treaty-making power, just as the Senate is the sole treaty-ratifying power under the Constitution.

The effort to create sentiment against the treaty by proving that Secretary Lansing and the other commissioners were ignored is regarded as frivolous. It was clearly understood in Paris that they were there to assist the President. To what extent he should use them or not use them rested entirely with him.

Any power with which a Commissioner is clothed must be specifically conferred by the President, who is the sole treaty-making power. When the President of the United States is present and acting in treaty-making he is the United States from ocean to ocean and from Canada to the Gulf, every State, every county, every township.

Senators know with what jealousy and thoroughness the Constitution safeguards the sole power of the President to make a treaty as it does the Senate's to ratify one. Some here ask, Was not McKinley criticised for putting Senators on the commission to make peace with Spain? Some persons regard it as an effort to bribe the Senate.

In the matter of Shantung, in which it was attempted to bring out the opinion of the Commissioners, as expressed in a letter written to the President by General Bliss in April, persons connected with the conference recall the general understanding of the facts at the time.

Nature of Shantung Situation.

No one doubted the President's reluctance to accept the position taken by his colleagues in the Council of Four. It was a crisis in the conference. Clemenceau and Lloyd George were irrevocably committed. They felt that they were bound in honor by the agreements which their countries had entered into. Nor would they have answered for the consequences if the promises to Japan were broken. An agreement on the treaty and covenant might have been rendered impossible. With Japan, Germany and Russia out the discard would have been about as big as the deck.

For Mr. Wilson to persist in repudiating the Anglo-French-Japanese agreements would have been to take a huge responsibility. Japan might have submitted, but she might not.

In this troubled situation the President consulted the Commissioners. After hearing their views he asked them to put them in writing. As he then knew what they were, this could not have been for the purpose of informing himself. It is reasonable to suppose that he wished to use General Bliss's strong statement with his colleagues in the council and with the Japanese delegates in the effort to win them—a very proper diplomatic use.

It is a fair inference that he brought in his advisers in the strongest possible way—not by a plan of town meeting but by using General Bliss's power of statement in a letter. He must have tried to show Clemenceau and Lloyd George and Makino that America would be antagonized, that the interest of Japan herself would ultimately suffer by her pressing matters and that perhaps American ratifications would be imperilled.

There was no obligation in the President to take these steps. But the President is a good negotiator; he puts his case at its strongest, and he used his advisers in precisely the way the Constitution contemplated and common sense suggested, although the matter of talking with them or having them write was entirely within his own judgment.

There is no doubt that the President moved with great energy and did his utmost, short of taking the gambler's chance. When finally it came to the point of accepting or rejecting the position which France, England, and Japan unyieldingly maintained, he turned to an effort to reduce Japan's demands to a minimum, and, having done this, he came to an agreement and passed on to other momentous questions before the conference.

It was a matter of judgment, and the Senate is perfectly right to consider whether the Shantung agreement is of such importance as to negative the desirability of the treaty. But no fault can properly be found with the President's method, either on constitutional grounds or from the viewpoint of efficient procedure. Every business man or interest wishing to have a thing accomplished adopts a similar method.

President Worked for Unity.

The Allies very nearly lost the war for lack of unity. Wilson knew the value of unity and insisted on the appointment of Foch as General. He had the same notion about the conference. He went in with the same ideas that his country behind him had—to be disinterested; (the opposition are abusing him because he did not trade one of the associate Governments out of a West Indian island,) to put an end to the war—to try to make future wars less easy and to do all these things promptly, so that the world could be got back to work, production could become normal, and such a crisis as the one now prevailing in America, and the still more terrible ones that Europe at the very best must soon face, might be prevented, these conditions in America and Europe being mainly due to collapse in production.

The Senate is entitled to pass on the treaty and the covenant. It is its duty to do so. The Senate is the sole treaty-ratifying power. But the President is the sole treaty-making power.

Every one who watched the President's work in Paris is disposed to concede that he made a conclusion possible by avoiding town meeting methods. If the actual executive work had not been concentrated in a small council of Government heads the conference would probably now be at the stage of preparing to get ready to begin proceedings.

All the bodies in Paris were fact-giving or fact-finding bodies. They got the material ready and laid it before the body of Government heads. Each of these four called on his delegation for information and advice as he needed it.

Any other system would have resulted in a confusion and delay that would have swamped the Conference and jeopardized the world. The President was the particular champion of promptness. His special function was to keep the council on a one-way road, leading to results.

Those who know what went on in Paris think his Senate opponents are taking up time with irrelevances. They are trying to discredit the President. They appear to think it their duty to prevent a treaty, not to complete one. The eagerness with which they hunt mares' nests while the world is burning up shows how far they are away from the actual situation that has existed and still exists everywhere.

The world is drifting to ruin through lack of production. Authorities say that less work is being done and the aggregate production has been actually smaller since the armistice. In other words, in the four and a half years of war, while things to make war with were being manufactured on a huge scale, production for normal human needs also was at a larger rate than it has been in the past nine months.

It is in such condition that Wilson's opponents are holding up everything, while they pry into the President's relations with men who were there simply to give him advice and assistance if and when he called for either, and who except for that had no connection with the treaty making.

But then it is not treaty ratifying that the opposing Senators are concerned about. They want to smash a President, if even they smash a world in doing it.

LEGAL FIGHT ON DRY LAW.

Wine Manufacturers File Injunction Suit to Prevent Enforcement.

An injunction suit to restrain Federal officials in this district from attempting to enforce the war-time prohibition law was instituted in the Federal District Court yesterday by Sylvester Scatena, William H. Lawson, and A. Julius Perelli-Minetti, co-partners of the firm of Scatena, Lawson & Perelli, owners of wineries in California and with an office here.

The plaintiffs say that they own a vineyard of eighty acres in California, and at the close of business on June 30 they had in stock upward of 500,000 gallons, of "marketable and readily salable wine," produced from grapes of their own growing, and worth about $550,000. This wine, they say, they can not sell or dispose of in less than one year. Taxes amounting to $250,000 have been paid to the Government by the plaintiffs during the past year, the complaint says. The product has been sold to upward of 100 large wholesale customers, and the financial return has aggregated upward of $1,500,000.

The complaint further says that if the prohibition law is enforced the valuable business and good-will of the plaintiffs will be destroyed, future profits therefrom will be rendered impossible, the value of the firm as a going concern will be dissipated, its business and staff disorganized, and the value of its plant and physical assets will be at once depreciated to its junk or salvage value only.

Reference is made to alleged threats of Federal officials to carry out the law to the letter and to punish violators of it to the fullest extent. The statement is also made that the act which the officials intend to enforce to the injury of the complainants is unconstitutional and void "because unauthorized by any power delegated to or vested in Congress or any department or officer thereof under and by virtue of the Constitution of the United States and, further, because there is no present war emergency."

The complaint also says: "Upon the signing of the armistice treaty and the treaty of peace on June 28 last, all war activities ceased and thereby the need of conserving man power for war purposes and the conserving of food for war purposes ceased, and have never since that time existed and are not now existent."

As soon as the complaint was filed Judge A. N. Hand signed an order requiring the defendants, United States District Attorney Caffey and William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue, to show cause before him at 2 P. M. on Aug. 12, why they should not be enjoined from enforcing the law. Samuel Seabury is the attorney for the plaintiffs.

TRAVEL SHIPS CONGESTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Embassy and steamship officials here heard with a good deal of apprehension rumors that the United States would before long rescind passport regulations. They hope Americans intending to cross the Atlantic will understand fully the conditions of travel before they book their passages. If they come they must be prepared for a long and weary stay before they can get a berth to return home. Few of those who landed from the Aquitania on Saturday can hope to get back before October, and if travel from New York gets heavier the situation will get worse.

The lack of steamships is the main cause. The White Star has only one August sailing, the Baltic may succeed in getting away next week if the dock laborers are well disposed, but the steamship company has not a free hand in the allotment of berths. The British Government still retains half the passenger accommodation for returning soldiers and munitions workers and so on, and it also expects the companies to look kindly on the men of importance to British commercial interests abroad.

The Olympic and Aquitania are both now withdrawn temporarily from service to undergo refitting after five strenuous years of war, and there is also a great pressure on the steamship lines to the Far East. As a result of this, Atlantic liners are asked to carry many more people wanting to get to Australia and China than they do under normal conditions, and this makes them more congested than ever.

TO ABANDON TRANSIT LINES.

Three Concerns Seek Permission to End Profitless Service.

A hearing on applications to cease operating traction lines will be held today by the Public Service Commission. The lines are the Pelham Park and City Island Railway Company, which wants to cease running a trolley line from City Island station through Pelham Park; the Mid-Crosstown Railway Company, which wants to stop the operation of the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Street Crosstown Line, and the Third Avenue Bridge Company, which asks permission to cease operating a line across the Queensboro bridge. The reasons alleged in the application are the same in each case, lacking of sufficient revenue to pay operating expenses, and with no hope of betterment because the patronage is decreasing.

All of the lines have been recognized for some time as of small service and it has been known that they have proved a burden upon the companies obliged to pay for their maintenance.

NEWBURGER TO RUN AS AN INDEPENDENT

TO SELECT A PARTY NAME

All efforts to induce Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger to run in the Democratic primaries for a renomination were abandoned yesterday by the committee representing the four Bar Associations of the city who took up the Justice's fight after he was refused a redesignation by Tammany Hall.

It was said that the Justice had written his friends to the effect that he did not care to make the fight for the Democratic nomination against Irwin Untermyer, the regular Tammany candidate, but preferred to make an independent contest.

The committee, acting upon this request, will continue its work of getting up an independent petition for the Justice so that he will be a candidate of the independents at the election. The committee will select a party name and an emblem and pay little attention to the primary contest. Only 3,000 signatures are needed to a petition placing a candidate in the field for the election in November, and it was said that no difficulty was expected to be encountered in getting this number of signers.

William M. Bennett, who has entered the Republican primaries for the nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen against the organization candidate, Major Fiorello H. La Guardia, yesterday challenged the latter to debate with him the issues of the campaign every night until primary day. Mr. Bennett said:

"In the present serious situation in the city's affairs, when members of the police force and Fire Department are resigning because their pay is not sufficient to enable them to support their families decently, when the families of civil service employes whose salaries are under $1,200 or $1,300 a year are suffering because of the high cost of living, when clerks, bookkeepers, and other members of the middle class have been driven by desperation by the same cause, when the transit situation is at such a crisis, in my opinion the position of President of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York is a great office; and having been honored by the citizens who signed my petition, I expect to enter the primary race and make a vigorous campaign. The campaign will have to be short because primary day is Sept. 2.

"In view of the fact that important matters before the Board of Estimate are passed every Friday with as little consideration as is given to matters on the closing day of the Legislature, and in view of the fact that the people of this city are now possessed with a spirit of unrest, the like of which has not been seen since 1848, I consider that the voters are entitled to have the candidates present themselves in order that the voters may make an intelligent selection from the sole standpoint of fitness for the office."

3 SENATE MEASURES SEEK LIVING COST CUT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Measures were offered in the Senate today aimed at helping to solve the high cost of living problem. One, sponsored by Senator McCormick, Republican of Illinois, provided for Government economy as a means of reducing taxes.

Mr. McCormick's resolution called upon the President to submit to the Senate, not later than Dec. 1 next, a statement to indicate what cuts may be made in estimates for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, so as to permit a reduction of $1,000,000,000 in appropriations. With this, the Senator asks for statements on Government revenues and income from all sources from June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1919, together with expenditures for the same period. The resolution went to the Committee on Appropriations.

Another resolution was offered by Senator Myers, Democrat, of Montana, calling upon the Judiciary Committee to report on the advisability of prohibiting "for a time" exports of food, clothing and other necessities in an effort to have America supplied before sending commodities abroad. The resolution was sent to the Judiciary Committee.

Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, offered a resolution to regulate cold storage houses, putting them under Government licensing, as one means of reducing prices on meat and other commodities.

STORED FOOD UP 20%; PRICES CLIMB HIGHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The Federal Trade Commission today issued a bulletin showing in detail how food in storage has increased as nearly all prices have risen, and that stocks on hand June 1, 1919, were fully one-fifth greater than at the same time in 1918.

"That the 'law of supply and demand' is immutable and to be blamed for high prices," the commission asserted in an authorized statement, "does not seem to be borne out by figures. Not counting the Government's surplus stocks, there was a greater supply of foodstuffs in this country on June 1 this year than the same date last year. The excess is 19 per cent. in the combined total of a number of the most important foods in dry and cold storage."

The commission listed eight staple foods which on June 1 showed an increase in stocks withheld from the market, ranging from 3 to 298 per cent. over stocks on June 1, 1918, and in each instance there was shown to have been a substantial advance in the wholesale price during that period.

Stocks of frozen fowl showed a maximum increase of 298 per cent. and the price, despite this fact, increased 3 cents a pound. Wheat stocks showed an increase of 174 per cent., with an increase in price of 31 cents; flour stocks, an increase of 21 per cent., with an increase in the price per barrel of nearly $3; egg stocks, an increase of 9.8 per cent., with an increase in price of 11 cents, and butter stocks an increase of 129 per cent., with the price soaring 12 cents above last year's figure.

All dry storage stocks, according to the commission's figures, showed an average increase of 124 per cent. Of these not listed in the above table, stocks of rye increased 346 per cent., barley 207 per cent., buckwheat flour, 327 per cent., and canned tomatoes 202 per cent.

WILL N. HARBEN DEAD.

Will N. Harben, author of many short stories and novels of life in the South, died yesterday at his home, 854 West 181st Street. Born in Dalton, Ga., on July 5, 1858, he moved to this city some years ago, but in his writings he remained faithful to the surroundings of his youth. Among his novels were "Pole Baker," "Ann Boyd," "The Desired Woman," "The Inner Law," and "Mam Linda." The last of these was written to prove that lynching and similar outbreaks did not truly represent Southern sentiment.

J. EDWARD ADDICKS, OF GAS FAME, DEAD

RUINED BY DROP IN COPPER

Spent $3,000,000 at Height of His Fortunes in Vain Effort to Become Delaware Senator.

The spectacular career of J. Edward Addicks, former Delaware politician and "frenzied financier," came to an end yesterday with his death in comparative poverty at 328 West Fifty-seventh Street, the residence of Dr. Rita Dunlevy, who treated him, at the age of 78. He will be buried on Saturday in the Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia, in which city he was born.

Back in the nineties Addicks was credited with a fortune variously estimated at from ten to twenty million dollars. He made this money by his sensational manipulation of the Bay State Gas Company between 1887 and 1902, when, according to Thomas W. Lawson, he "made Boston look like the proverbial country gawk at circus time," and in the promotion with Lawson of the Amalgamated Copper Company. The great decline in the price of this copper stock later caused the financial ruin of Addicks.

It was not his first experience of disaster, however. Early in life he had risen from errand boy to clerk and then partner and owner in a flour business. This was all swept away in the panic of 1873. He got on his feet after the first tumble, but never recovered from the second.

When at the height of his fortunes Addicks became possessed with a passion to represent the State of Delaware in the United States Senate. He went after the prize in characteristic fashion, and without success, for many years, spending on the vain project about $3,000,000. When the du Ponts formed their political organization Addicks was counted out of Delaware politics.

He introduced himself to Delaware politics first in a high silk hat and a fur overcoat, both of them curiosities, and announced to a small group of newspapermen in the State House that he was a candidate for United States Senator. He was then not known to perhaps more than a score of people personally although nearly every one had heard of his gas trust and other deals. He was defeated for the first time in 1889. Owing to the fact that no one in the State was permitted to vote at that time without exhibiting a paid tax receipt, Addicks was able to gain control of a large number of votes by going through the lower sections of the State paying the taxes for those persons who promised to vote for him.

Dr. Edwin Munsell Bliss.

Dr. Edwin Munsell Bliss, who died in Washington, D. C., on Wednesday, aged 71, was a prolific writer on missionary matters and conditions in the Near East. He was the editor of several census reports on benevolent institutions. His editing of the Encyclopaedia of Missions gained him the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Amherst, his Alma Mater. From 1891 to 1901 he was an associate editor of The Independent, and during the two following years was an editorial writer for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

commodities alleged to be controlled by the packers.

The committee of three and other members of the President's Cabinet, including the Attorney General, held a final conference at the White House today to review the packing industry feature of the campaign against high living costs. It is stated that all of the details concerning methods to be employed have now been worked out and that definite action will be instituted as soon as the complaints have been prepared. No announcement as to the jurisdiction in which civil proceedings will be brought has been made as yet.

Thomas E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., and Chairman of the executive committee of the Institute of American Meat Packers, issued a statement tonight to all packers of the United States, in which he discussed the Government's action and said that the most thorough investigation would be welcomed. He entered a categorical denial of the charges made by the Federal Trade Commission, an extensive summary of which was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES today.

Assail Rendering Concerns.

The charges made by the Federal Trade Commission in connection with the "rendering" business of the packers deal exhaustively with the situation in many parts of the country. Some of the statements follow:

"Rendering is the process of cooking certain parts of slaughtered or dead animals in kettles or tanks, and recovering therefrom tallow, grease and tankage, products which are important materials for use in the manufacture of oleomargarine, lard substitutes, soap and fertilizer. It is the purpose of this chapter to make a study of the trade methods employed by the Chicago packers and others in a number of important centres in the United States in purchasing and collecting the raw materials used in the rendering business and to point out the objectionable methods which have been found. The most important of these objectionable methods have already been declared illegal either by the courts as to other industries or by the Federal Trade Commission in decisions on complaints made by competitors.

"These practices may be divided into two groups. To the first group obviously belong the following:

"1. Misrepresentation of competitors by means of false and derogatory statements against them, such as circulating reports that they are financially unsound, will not be able to meet their obligations, and must soon go out of business.

"2. Intimidation of competitors as by threats to spend large sums of money in commercial warfare against them, to institute series of costly lawsuits, &c.

"3. Enticement of competitors' employes.

Division of Customers Charged.

"To the second group of practices belong the following:

"1. Division of customers, a form of fixing the channels of trade, the customers in a given field being divided among certain companies by agreement, each company refusing to do business with a customer assigned to another. The competitive market is thus eliminated, prices paid for raw materials cannot be unreasonably depressed, and the customer has no choice as to the disposition of his goods.

"2. Bidding up prices paid for raw materials with the intent to embarrass competitors or force them out of business, such price raising usually being practiced locally, the high prices being paid only in competitive territory, thus demonstrating that the increased price is not offered because of an increase in the value of the material for which it is paid.

"3. Bogus independents—that is, two or more separate organizations which purport to be in competition with each other, but one of which is owned by the other, or both of which are owned by the same person or company.

"4. Paying bonuses to customers for their trade, a form of price raising whereby a lump sum is given to a competitor's customers or a new concern entering business in order to secure his patronage.

"Information concerning such practices as have been enumerated was secured by representatives of the commission in more than a score of cities throughout the country from testimony given at hearings of the commission and from complaints made by aggrieved concerns to the commission. The story of the rendering situation, as gathered from these sources, shows that such methods have long been practiced and that the Chicago packing companies, especially Swift & Co., Morris & Co., and Wilson & Co., Inc., and one fertilizer company, the American Agricultural Chemical Company, have been and are the interests which use these methods, at some points separately, at others in combination.

Tell of New York Interests.

"The principal interests concerned in the rendering business in New York are four of the Chicago packers and the American Agricultural Chemical Company, the four packing companies being Wilson & Co., Inc., Armour & Co., Morris & Co., and Swift & Co. The companies through which these interests operate are as follows:

"Wilson & Co., Inc.—Central Rendering Corporation; Haberman Company, Inc.; Joseph Levy Company, Inc.

"American Agricultural Chemical Company—Herman Brand, Inc.; G. Selner Company.

"In the case of the Van Iderstine Company and the Products Manufacturing Company, 58 and 29 per cent., respectively, of the capital stock are owned by Morris & Co. Armour & Co. and Wilson & Co., Inc., are also interested in them as follows: Van Iderstine Company, 6 per cent. and 4 per cent., respectively, and Products Manufacturing Company 4 per cent. and 3 per cent., respectively.

The Products Manufacturing Company does not collect shop fats and bones, but confines its operations to the collecting of dead stock in the city, for which it has a contract with the New York Board of Health.

"In addition to the above named companies the following are engaged in the collecting or rendering of shop fats and bones: G. Weiss & Sons, the Independent Fat Company, F. Hofener, Joseph Rosenberg & Sons, and others.

"A canvass of the New York retail meat men by representatives of the commission gave evidences of the usual division of customers among the renderers and collectors, retail butchers stating that for years they had been selling to the same concern and that no other renderers tried to get their trade.

"This was also brought out in an interview which a representative of the commission had with Herman Brand of Herman Brand, Inc., a subsidiary of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, in which the informant stated that his concern could afford to pay half a cent more per pound for fats, but it would not do so as that would take away customers from the subsidiaries of the packing plants.

"In 1910 the Retail Butchers' Fat Rendering Company, in which about 400 local butchers were interested as stockholders, was organized and began a rendering business in New York. It was not a success, and after an existence of about seven years without payment of dividends, it sold out to the United Dressed Beef Company, a subsidiary of Swift & Co.

"G. Weiss & Sons, Inc., have been established in Brooklyn about eight years. A member of this concern said to a representative of the commission that he experienced much difficulty in getting into the field, as the other rendering concerns persistently advanced the prices which they offered to the customers which he succeeded in getting on his list, and the result was that he lost $5,000 in the commercial strife which ensued.

"He continued, however, and eventually peace overtures were made to him and an arrangement was made by which he was apportioned 10,000 pounds of fats a week, delivered by Joseph Levy, now a subsidiary of Wilson & Co., Inc., and other collectors."

PROFITEERS HERE TO BE PROSECUTED

Government Agents to Seize Food Stocks Held to Create Higher Prices.

There is to be criminal prosecution of food profiteers in this city who hoard stocks to create artificial shortage, and stocks of such food and fuel will be seized by Government agents, it was announced yesterday at the office of the United States District Attorney, following the Government's announcement that a relentless war is to be waged on profiteering. Assistant United States District Attorneys Earl B. Barnes and Ben A. Mathews made public a statement regarding the contemplated prosecution of food hoarders in this city.

Dr. Jonathan C. Day, Commissioner of Public Markets, announced that the distribution of Government foodstuffs which the city will handle on consignment will begin on Monday, Aug. 18. Every effort will be made by officials in charge, he said, to insure the equitable distribution of the supply. The Commissioner will instruct his deputies to keep the goods out of the hands of profiteers who might wish to resell them. The following list of prices of Government food to the city was made public by the Commissioner. To the prices will be added a sufficient charge to cover overhead expenses in handling, if any:

SUPPLY FOR STATE HELD UP.

Governor Trying to Have Government Order Rescinded.

ALBANY, Aug. 7.—A letter explaining the situation following the cancellation late yesterday by Federal officers of orders placed in Schenectady for surplus army foods by various State municipalities was sent out tonight by Eugene H. Porter, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets.

The letter explained that all deliveries to municipalities were canceled because of new orders directing that the surplus stores be turned over to the Post Office Department, and that shipments would be made at once. Governor Smith immediately obtained from the Federal authorities a new order directing the holding of supplies at Schenectady pending the adjustment of obtaining them for the thirty or more New York municipalities interested in obtaining same. Mr. Porter said he expected a decision before Aug. 11.

SAYS SWIFT PROFIT IS SMALL.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Swift & Co. made a profit of only one-ninth of a cent a pound on all beef sold in Washington for the five weeks ended Aug. 2, a Senate committee investigating high living costs in Washington was told today by L. H. D. Weld, manager of the company's research department.

Mr. Weld presented figures which, he said, showed that all the expenses of packing house operation, freight and selling on this beef amounted to only 2½ cents a pound. He also testified that other figures showed that of the total amount the company received for beef and by-products, it had to pay out 90 per cent. for live cattle and more than 9 per cent. for labor, freight, and other expenses. This was proof, he said, that the packers' profits had no effect on prices.

Thomas E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., issued a statement today repudiating in part one concerning the suits against the packers which was issued yesterday and attributed to him.

"I made no statement to the effect that the Department of Justice would get no satisfaction from the packers," said Mr. Wilson. "Such a position is not in keeping with my disposition nor that of Wilson & Co. On the contrary, I cannot emphasize too strongly that the Department of Justice will have the fullest co-operation from us.

"I am perfectly willing to submit the entire proposition to them and am not fearful as to results when the full story is known."

RAISE PARCEL POST LIMIT.

Buyers of Army Food May Now Order 125 Pounds.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Authority to increase temporarily the parcel post weight limit to 125 pounds so that buyers of army food may take full advantage of opportunity to purchase through Postmasters and letter carriers, was granted the Postmaster General today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was announced also that during the sale buyers might place several orders at the same time without paying the initial postal charge of 5 cents a pound more than once.

The orders must be in writing and in duplicate and the cost plus postage will be collected with them. They will be filled in the order received.

HELEN DURKEE BETROTHED.

Eugene Winslow Durkee of 50 West Forty-fifth Street announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Helen Winslow Durkee, to Captain Christopher John Mileham of London, England.

Miss Durkee has recently returned from France, where she served for a year with the A. E. F. as a member of the Smith College Canteen unit of the Y. M. C. A. She is a widely known miniature painter, and has been for many years Vice President of the Art Students' League of New York. She is a member of the Women's University Club, the Pennsylvania and American Societies of Miniature Painters, and the Art Alliance of America.

Captain Mileham has just been demobilized after serving with the British forces on the Flanders front since 1914.

It is expected that the wedding will take place within a few weeks, although no date has been set as yet.

YANKEES DROP FIRST GAME TO BROWNS AND THEN MAYS COMES TO THEIR RESCUE

CARL MAYS TWIRLS YANKS TO VICTORY

FANS 9 MEN, GIVES 6 HITS

Huggins's Men Drop Opening Game, 6 to 3, Then Hit Hard and Win Second, 8 to 2.

Carl Mays, completely surrounded by the protection of a blanket injunction from the Supreme Court, broke through Ban Johnson's suspension yesterday and pitched the second game of a double-header at the Polo Grounds against the St. Louis Browns. And what's more, Carl won his game, the score being 8 to 2. In the preliminary skirmish of the afternoon, the Browns got a little uppish and beat the Yanks 6 to 3. Some 16,000 people were anxious to see how the injunction would work and all hands seemed well pleased when it operated as advertised.

The injection of the legal arm of the commonwealth on the base ball diamond aroused much curiosity. Some of the fans thought when Mays appeared that the hurry-up wagon would roll out on the field with a squad of bluecoats and give Mays a ride down to the Tombs. Nothing of the kind happened. The injunction said that Ban Johnson, his umpires, Manager Jimmy Burke of the Browns, and all of the aforesaid Johnson's agents, henchmen, et cetera, must keep their well-known hands off Carl Mays and they did. The injunction ran true to form and so did Mays. He fanned nine of the Browns, held them to six hits and had his submarine shoots playing tricks with the St. Looey bats.

The only inhabitants of the park who seemed worried were the umpires, Hildebrand and Moriarty. When the coloratura soprano who does the announcing told the people that Mays would pitch, the umpires called a convention between themselves at the home plate and had a long chest-to-chest talk. They argued the case pro and con and decided that there were two sides to it. According to their boss, Ban Johnson, Mays was under suspension, while, according to the Supreme Court of the State of New York, Mays could play ball and cut up around the ball field just as he blamed pleased. The umpires had to use their noodles in deciding just what to do.

Ban Runs Second.

They concluded to string along with the Supreme Court and the game went on. They kept a close watch on Mays throughout the game. They examined the horsehide ball every time Carl rubbed it and did the old Hawkshaw examination of the cover several times to see if Mays was using beeswax, resin, emory, or any of those things. Hildebrand discovered something on one of the balls and put it in his back pocket to be submitted to Boss Ban as evidence.

Mays got the greatest reception a ball player has received in Harlem in many a day. When he fanned the three St. Louis players—Austin, Bronkie, and Jacobson—in the first inning, the crowd stood up and cheered his journey back to the bench. Then men got up in all parts of the grand stand, threw up their hats, and led cheer after cheer for Carl. "Three cheers for Mays," they cried, and the chorus of hurrahs was taken up by the fans in all parts of the spacious stands.

Allan Sothoron was pitted against Mays, and although the Yanks hit him freely they were unable to squeeze many runs across until they fairly bombarded him in the seventh. New York broke into the run business in the third when Home Run Baker hit the ball into the right field grand stand. St. Louis tied it up in the fourth when Baby Doll Jacobson punched another home run into the left field bleachers. The Yanks sneaked ahead in their half of the same inning when Bodie singled to centre and went down on Hannah's sacrifice. Mays got an infield hit to first and Fewster hoisted a fly to Jacobson. The Baby Doll in left muffed the ball and Bodie scored.

The Big Seventh Inning.

It was a see-saw session and the Browns tied it again in the fifth. Sothoron singled and was forced by Austin. After Bronkie fanned Austin stole second. Jacobson was hit by a pitched ball and Sisler crashed a single to centre, scoring Austin, Sisler going to second on Bodie's fumble.

The Yanks scampered off with the game in the seventh. After Pipp skied to Smith, Pratt singled and stole second. Bodie got a pass and Hannah hoisted one to Smith. Mays singled to centre, scoring Pratt, and Carl took second on Williams's error, Bodie going to third. Fewster was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases.

Samuel Vick from Tennessee then made everybody happy by banging a home run into the left field bleachers, accomplishing a feat which is the ambition of every ball player—to hit a homer with the bases jammed.

Austin walked in the opening inning of the first game and Bronkie sacrificed. Jacobson pasted a single to right, scoring Austin. Sisler forced Jacobson at second and Williams died at first. The Yanks got the run back in the same inning. Fewster singled to centre and Peck skied to Jacobson. Baker's single to left sent Fewster to third. On a squeeze play Lewis bunted to Shocker, who made the play at the plate. Fewster scoring.

Huggins and O'Connor Exiled.

Manager Huggins and Coach Pat O'Connor kicked so hard at this decision that Hildebrand put them out of the picture.

St. Louis went to the front in the second. Earl Smith singled to left and Gerber was safe on Baker's fumble. After Severeid popped to Baker, Schecker forced Gerber at second, Pratt to Peck, but Pipp muffed Peck's high toss when he tried for a double play and Smith scored.

Peck was injured when Severeid slid into second in the fifth and in the next inning he retired, Fewster going to short while Vick went to right field.

The Browns landed on Quinn hard in the sixth. Williams singled to right and Smith did likewise. Gerber's single to centre scored Williams. Severeid was walked purposely, filling the bases. This was a poor move, for Shocker rapped a single to Vick and Smith and Gerber scored.

Bronkie singled to centre in the seventh and went to second on Jacobson's line drive over Fewster's head. Sisler contributed a sacrifice, and when Williams rolled to Fewster he threw Bronkie out at the plate. Jacobson and Williams reeled off a double steal, Jacobson scoring.

Yanks Make a Rally.

The Yanks made a dying gasp rally in the eighth. After Lewis fouled to Austin, Pipp bounded a double off Bronkie's shins and went to third on Williams's wild toss in returning the ball. Pratt singled to centre, scoring Pipp. Bodie singled to left, sending Pratt to third. At this critical moment Muddy Ruel fanned. Even worse than that was Al Wickland, who, pinch hitting for Quinn, hoisted a measly fly to Williams.

Sam Vick caused a little excitement in the ninth. With one gone Samuel tripled to centre and scored while Baker was being tossed out at first.

PHILS RALLY IN EIGHTH.

Two Singles and Whitted's Home Run Defeat Pirates, 5 to 3.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 7.—Philadelphia defeated the Pirates today, 5 to 3. With the score 3 to 2 against them, the visitors rallied in the eighth inning, and on singles by Williams and Meusel, followed by Whitted's home run, they ran their score into five runs. J. H. Wisner, pitcher for the Saginaw (Mich.) club, was purchased by Pittsburgh, it was announced today. He will report September 7.

Curves and Bingles.

Yesterday's games dragged along so slowly that the teams almost spent the week-end on the field. As it was they consumed five hours in playing the two games, including the dinner hour.

In his affidavit Carl Mays said that a pitcher to win games must not only have his arm in the game but also his heart and soul. All of these were working for Mays yesterday.

One reason the Browns won the first game was because it was hot, and they thought they were home in St. Louis.

The Yankees and the Giants are running a close race in home runs. The teams are now tied with 33 each.

Sisler and Jacobson of the Browns are hitting the ball at a terrific pace. Sisler has hit safely in the last sixteen games for an average of .460, while Jacobson has hit safely in the last thirteen games for an average of .543.

Manager Huggins and Coach Pat O'Connor kicked so strenuously at Hildebrand's decision on Baker at the plate in the first inning of the first games that he sent O'Connor out of the lot and exiled Huggins to the bench for the afternoon.

Urban Shocker made a loud howl against Hildebrand for calling Fewster safe in the first inning of the opening clash. Shocker made a motion as if to hit the umpire, but he changed his mind just in time.

Seven Yankees were stranded on the corners in the first four innings. Shocker got out of some deep holes and did his best pitching when runs threatened to bloom.

Peckinpaugh was injured when Seventh inning of the opening battle. His knee inning o fthe opening battle. His knee was slightly wrenched and he had to retire. The injury is not serious and it is not believed that he will be out of the game very long.

GIANTS PULL GAME FROM BLAZING FIRE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7.—The Giants appeared to be all measured for their third straight defeat this afternoon in the early innings of their game with the Cardinals, but they put up a fine uphill battle and finally won out. After trailing from the third inning to the seventh they tied the score in this frame and put over the deciding punch in the eighth. Successive triples by Jess Barnes and Lew McCarty sent the winning run over the plate and gave the Giants the verdict, 5 to 4.

McGraw's men left here with only one victory in three games and still on the losing side as far as the Western trip is concerned. Despite the victory today the former League leaders were not impressive, except in their late rallies. Barnes and Benton, who are rated among the best of the New York hurlers, were reached by the Rickeyites for thirteen hits, an unlooked for performance by tailenders against pennant chasers. Since leaving the East the Giants have played eleven games, losing six and winning five. They open a series with the Cubs at Chicago tomorrow.

Though Barnes delivered the wallop that turned the tide in favor of his own team, the young right-hander did not last to the finish of the game. The long run from home plate around to third base evidently sapped such of Barnes's stamina as had not been sapped previously by the heat, and Jess showed signs of weakening when the Cardinals took up the cudgels in the second half of the same inning. Before a batsman had been retired McGraw decided it was expedient to supplant Barnes, so he took Jess out and sent Rube Benton in to check the impending rally. The southpaw delivered handsomely and preserved the one run lead which Barnes had manufactured, only to show signs of letting it slip away.

Giants Get Early Lead.

The Giants went to the front in their half of the first inning, but could not carry the one-run advantage through the inning. Burns drew a pass, Young struck out, and Fletcher beat out a slow roller down the third base line, sending Burns to second. After Chase popped to Leslie for the second out Kauff smashed a single to centre and Burns rode home on the hit.

The Cardinals promptly tied up the count. After Shotton had been retired on strikes Smith singled to left and stole second. Milton Stock, who has been hitting hard throughout the series with the Giants, punched a double to left field and Smith scored. Stock tried to stretch his hit to a triple and Burns's fine throw to Zim nipped him going into third. Hornsby ended the inning by striking out.

In the second the Giants pushed over another marker, and again the lead faded before the inning had been completed. Baird singled to centre and McCarty singled to left on a hit and run play, Baird racing around to third. This ended the day's work of Willie Doak. Goodwin came to the hill and started by fanning Barnes, but before he finished up this little task a passed ball by Clemons allowed Baird to score and McCarty to reach second. There was no more scoring in this inning.

After setting the Giants down in order in the third, the Cards blew themselves to two more runs, enough to keep them in front up to the seventh. The first two batsmen were easy outs in this inning, and then Hornsby beat out a slow roller to Baird. McHenry hit to left for three bases, scoring Hornsby, and when Chase made a high toss to Barnes after fielding Dilhoefer's grounder McHenry scored.

Giants Tie and Win.

Two errors helped the Giants to a run in the fifth. With one out Fletcher was safe on Lavan's fumble and reached second on a wild pitch. Chase sent the New York Captain to third with a single past Hornsby, and when Leslie fumbled Kauff's high bounder Fletcher raced home.

A pass to Young and hits by Fletcher and Chase sent over the tying run in the seventh inning, and in the eighth the Giants won the game. Zimmerman and Baird had gone out on flies to Smith when McCarty hit to right field for three bases. McGraw sent Lee King in as pinch runner for McCarty, but there was no need for any extra speed in this instance. Barnes, who had made two singles, smashed a triple to deep left and King sauntered in with the run that spelled victory.

TWO CLUBS ACCEPT YANKS' INVITATION

Boston and Chicago Owners Say They Will Come to Special Meeting on Mays Case.

The invitations of President Jacob Ruppert of the Yankees for an informal meeting of the American League club owners here next Monday had brought forth acceptances last night only from the Boston and Chicago clubs, which have taken sides with New York in the muddle over Carl Mays. The New York club received assurances last night that Chicago would accept, and President Harry Frazee stated that he would most assuredly be present.

No word has yet been received from the other clubs, but President Ruppert expects to receive replies today. The New York owners are very anxious to get the club owners together, and will make every effort to bring about an amicable settlement before the hearing is held on the Mays injunction on Tuesday.

It is suspected that the five other clubs, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis and Washington, will get in touch with President Johnson before deciding to attend. The plan of President Ruppert is something entirely new in baseball and a meeting of the American League has never been held except at the call of President Johnson. Baseball men yesterday seemed to believe that, while all the club owners may consent to meet with President Ruppert here, President Johnson's present is still doubtful. The New York club in calling the magnates together was actuated by the friendliest motives and will make a sincere attempt to make the other club owners see the Mays case according to their point of view.

If, however, Johnson and those clubs which support him take a belligerent attitude, the two Colonels who own the Yanks, Ruppert and Huston, will carry the case to a finish and at the hearing of the case Tuesday will endeavor to obtain a permanent injunction to restrain Johnson from interfering with Mays.

The umpires who officated at yesterday's game, George Hildebrand and George Moriarty, were both served with the injunction at their hotel on Wednesday night. The St. Louis Club was served through Bobby Quinn, the business manager. Before the second game, which Mays pitched yesterday, the umpires held a conference about the situation, but no move was made to interfere in any way with the Supreme Court's enjoining order.

President Johnson has not been heard from since he so suddenly disappeared from his hotel here on Tuesday. He was said to have gone back to Chicago on the Twentieth Century on Tuesday afternoon, but he has not given out any statement in relation to the Mays case since leaving here. Process servers were not so sure that Johnson had left the city and they made a thorough search of his favorite haunts here yesterday to serve him with the injunction. At a late hour last night, however, the whereabouts of Johnson was still a mystery.

Just why Johnson has taken this attitude is hard to explain, because the Yankee owners want to have the case settled as soon as possible. It is believed that Johnson's attorneys will be represented at the hearing here on Tuesday, and the Yankee owners hope that Johnson himself will appear as a witness in the case. If the club owners do not come to some agreement on Monday and ask Johnson to lift the suspension the lawyers for the New York club will ask to have the injunction made permanent.

While no open hostility against Johnson as President of the American League may appear during the present season, it is believed that there will be sensational doings at the annual meeting of the league in December. Last year there was opposition to Johnson, but he ruled his league, just as he has always done, and the opposition, then led by Frazee and Comiskey, was squelched.

WHITE SOX GET EVEN BREAK

Leaders Win First, 2 to 1, from Athletics, but Lose Second, 3 to 2.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7.—Chicago and Philadelphia broke even in two close games today, the League leaders winning the first, 2 to 1, and the locals the second, 3 to 2.

After six scoreless innings in the first contest Risberg tripled and came home on a wald pitch, scoring Chicago's first run in the seventh. Felsch's home run in the ninth turned out to be the winning tally.

In the local's half Weaver bunched a fumble and a muff of pinch hitter Burrus's fly, which, with Witt's single, scored the Athletics' only run. Bunched hits, with bases on balls and a wild throw by Williams, gave the Athletics the winning run in the second game. Sensational catches by Kopp and Eddie Collins's all-round play were the high lights.

REDS HAND GRIMES CRUSHING DEFEAT

Cincinnati Wallops Brooklyn, 13 to 0, in Worst Disaster of the Season.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—The Dodgers closed a three-game series with the Reds here this afternoon by taking the most decisive beating that has been handed out this season by one National League club to another. The tribe of Pat Moran got championship pitching, and the Easterners were as helpless from start to finish as one would expect a high school team to be against major leaguers. The score was 13 to 0.

Eller pitched his greatest game of the year, and it came on a day when Uncle Robbie's pitching was at low ebb. The result was that the Dodgers were set down in order in seven of the nine innings, got only three runners to first base and one to second, while the Reds were continually clogging up the corners with base runners. But for an error in the eighth inning by Kopf the Dodgers would not have got a man to second base during the afternoon.

Manager Robinson tried out Burleigh Grimes in the hope of taking the odd game of the series, but Burleigh could hardly have beaten an amateur team on the form that he displayed this afternoon. The Reds pounded him to a fare-thee-well for six innings, collecting twelve hits and ten runs before Manager Robinson decided to lead Grimes away from the slaughter. Mitchell was sent in to finish the game and the league leaders nicked him for four hits and three more runs in the last two frames.

Grimes got through the first inning safely, setting the league leaders down in order, and then the bombardment began. Roush opened the second inning with a walk, took third on Neale's single to right, and scored on Kopf's single to the same section. A passed ball advanced both runners. Magee fanned and Wingo hit a long fly to Zach Wheat, scoring Neale. Eller, who batted as well as he pitched, lined a single to centre and Kopf rode home.

These three runs were more than needed, but the Reds continued to pound Grimes. Daubert opened the third inning with a single to right, Groh walked, and Roush bunted safely, filling the bases. Neale's sacrifice fly to Wheat scored Daubert. Groh and Roush then worked a double steal and Heinie beat Johnston's throw to the plate when Kopf hit to the Brooklyn second baseman. Magee's single to right scored Roush, and sent Kopf to third, in position to score while Wingo was forcing Magee at second base.

Still another run drifted across in the fourth. Rath opened with a double past Konetchy and Daubert sacrificed him to third. Groh delivered an aerial sacrifice to Griffith and Rath registered.

In the fifth Neale's double, singles by Magee and Eller, and a poor throw by Olson produced two more runs. Grimes was not scored on in the sixth though Daubert and Groh opened with singles, and at the end of the inning Robbie gave Burleigh a vacation.

Mitchell was bumped in the seventh inning for two hits, but there was no scoring. In the eighth Daubert walked, Screiber fanned, and a passed ball sent Jake to second. Then came singles by Roush and Neale, an infield hit and a misplay by Johnston, the combination netting four runs.

TIGERS WIN IN TENTH.

Score 4 to 3 Victory Over Senators and Make Clean Sweep of Series.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A base on balls to Bush, Young's sacrifice and Cobb's single in the tenth inning today gave Detroit a 4 to 3 victory and a clean sweep of the series of three games with Washington. As a result Detroit gained half a game on Chicago and now is only five games behind the leaders, who split even in a double header at Philadelphia.

JERSEY CITY BREAKS EVEN.

Skeeters Shut Out Bingoes, 2 to 0, but Lose Second, 6 to 1.

Bill Donovan's Skeeters made an excellent start in the beginning of their final series with Chick Hartman's Bingoes yesterday and finished on the long end of the string in the preliminary battle of the double-header by a score of 2 to 0. After annexing the first half of the bill, however, the efforts of the Jerseymen seemed to relax in the final contest, and their opponents found little difficulty in turning the tables and coming out on top by the one-sided score of 6 to 1.

AUSTRALIAN TENNIS STARS REACH PORT

Brookes, Lycett, Thomas, and Patterson Hurry to Newport—Three Others May Come.

The Australian tennis team, which arrived yesterday on board the Adriatic, will be seen in action today in the doubles of the Newport invitation tennis tournament. The players arrived too late to play in the tournament yesterday, but left on a late afternoon train for Newport, R. I., after they had spent the afternoon at the Vandrbilt Hotel.

The team is made up of Norman E. Brookes, Randolph Lycett, R. V. Thomas and G. L. Patterson. They are fresh from their successful play at Wimbledon, England, where Patterson, the protégé and student of Brookes, defeated his mentor in the challenge round.

With the Australian team comes word that they may be joined by three other Australian players who have also won honors at the Wimbledon tournament, played recently. The men who may come are O'Hara Wood, R. W. Heath and Stanley Doust. Wood and Thomas won the doubles title, with Heath and Lycett as runners-up. The three players were contemplating coming to America when the others left Liverpool. If they come they will try to arrive in time for the national singles championship, or possibly the national doubles play. With the addition of these three players, the Australian team will be composed of the same players who swept the boards at Wimbledon, carrying off first honors in every department except the covered courts singles.

The team, which is known as the Australian Imperial Force Team, was eleven days in crossing. Not being able to get accommodations on the Aquitania, which was sailing with American troops from Brest, although the American Consul at London endeavored to cut the red tape, the players were forced to wait until the Adriatic sailed. Because of the dock strike at Liverpool this boat was delayed several days, and then her course was set over the southern route for Halifax. The team was undecided about leaving the ship at Halifax and coming to New York by rail, but receiving no word from American officials decided to remain on board.

"We never felt better and more fit than now," said Norman E. Brookes, who, with the late A. F. Wilding, came to America in 1914, and won the Davis Cup. "Although we have not touched a racquet since the Wimbledon tournament, we feel that the Newport doubles will serve as excellent warming up work, and help us get acclimated."

With this remark the team acted as one man in mopping their brows, and then individually declared that it was very warm. Both Lycett and Thomas served in the Australian Imperial Force, while Brookes and Patterson fought with the British Expeditionary Force, having gone to England to join. None of the four was wounded, although they were all in the thick of the fighting.

Americans are waiting with interest to see Patterson perform on the courts. This player defeated Brookes in straight sets in the challenge singles match at Wimbledon, and only lost one set in the entire singles tournament. His play since leaving Australia has been dashing, with a brilliancy that completely dazzled his highly rated opponents. Lycett took the mixed title, playing with Miss Elizabeth Ryan.

"There is a player of whom you Americans should be rightfully proud," said Lycett, in speaking of Miss Ryan's tennis ability. "I rate her as the best mixed doubles player in the world, not excluding Mlle. Lenglen. She has excellent form, and deeply impressed the tennis experts at the tournament.

"Mlle. Lenglen is without question the greatest woman singles player in the world, and will undoubtedly improve as she grows older. You know," he added, "that she is only 20 years old, but her playing against Mrs. Chambers in the final of the woman's singles showed rare judgment and still rarer tennis ability. The match was very close and was one of the most exciting of the entire play. The set score was 1-1, the games 6-5, and the point score 40-15, favoring Mrs. Chambers. Mlle. Lenglen won the necessary points to tie and then capture the game and then went through the match winning the succeeding sets."

Each player has ten racquets with him, securely done up in waterproof wrappings. The customs official peered into the cases through a slit he made in the top, and was satisfied that there were no smuggled gems hidden in the handles. Each racquet is encased in a cloth binding, wrapped with paper, and then each player's set is bound with tarred paper to keep out the moisture which ruins the strings.

On board the Adriatic was another Australian champion. It was Jack Donaldson, known as the "Australian Blue Streak," who holds the world's professional record for the 100-yard sprint. Donaldson was recently discharged from the British Army after four years' service. He will probably join the physical training staff of some American university. Donaldson set his remarkable time for the century, 9 3-5 seconds, at Johanesburg, South Africa, on July 26, 1911.

TILDEN DEFEATS WILLIAMS

S. Howard Voshell Downs Another Californian, Griffin, in Spirited Match at Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Aug. 7.—S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn, W. T. Tilden 2d of Philadelphia, Ichiya Kumagae of Japan, and William M. Johnston of California are the four semi-finalists of the Newport invitation tennis tournament as the result of today's matches on the courts of the Casino, and they will meet in that order tomorrow for the honor of competing in the final round on Saturday.

The big feature of the day's play was the defeat of the national champion, R. Lindley Murray, at the hands of Ichiya Kumagae, the match going to five terrific sets, scored at 3—6, 7—5, 3—6, 6—3, 6—3. Tilden caued a mild sensation by his easy victory over R. N. Williams 2d, with set scores of 6—2, 6—1, 7—5. Voshell triumphed over C. J. Griffin in the upper quarter and Johnston over Wallace Johnson in the lower, both matches being decided in four sets.

Murray was the victim of unfortunate circumstances in that he had to defeat N. W. Niles before meeting Kumagae, the encounter with the Bostonian, which ran to four sets, having been postponed because of yesterday's rain. In order to give the champion all the time possible for recovering his strength, it was arranged to stage his second match late in the afternoon, and as a result the contest dragged on until darkness was about to fall, with Murray eventually losing purely because of physical exhaustion.

It was a thrilling struggle from start to finish, and the crowd, although obviously in sympathy with the game champion for his splendid fight against big odds, was forced also to applaud the amazing shots which came repeatedly from the looping racquet of the little Oriental.

Murray ran into a lead of 3—0 before Kumagae scored in the opening set. The Japanese had a chance to equalize, however, when he broke through service, cutting down Murray's lead to 3—2, but lost it when his own delivery was upset again, a double fault and a net cord shot doing the trick. They exchanged serves up to 5—3, when Murray put the set to his credit, 6—3, with a love game.

Game Rally by Murray.

Kumagae had a 5—3 advantage in the second set, and was within a point of winning at 40—15 on his own serve, but Murray came back in courageous style, forcing his rival into errors for the tying points, and winning the game after set point had once more been called against him.

He made it 5—all on service, but Kumagae rallied in turn, won his own delivery, and then broke through for the set, 7—5, a double fault having a share in the disaster.

The champion, however, surprised his warmest admirers by winning another set, 6—3, by the most spectacular play before succumbing to the inevitable. The seven minutes' rest was of little help, and he was practically a physical wreck throughout the last two sets. In spite of his vanished endurance, however, Murray continued to battle with astonishing gameness, fighting for the ball with desperate gasps and nearly falling to the ground as he jumped from side to side for almost impossible volleys.

There could be only one result, however, and Kumagae, gradually wearing his rival down with steady driving, captured first one set and then the rubber by the identical scores of 6—3. It was a pitiful close to a combat which was gladiatorial in its intensity.

Tilden Wears Williams Down.

Playing against ex-Champion R. N. Williams, 2d., on the Grand Stand Court this morning, William T. Tilden, 2d., again produced the brand of tennis that wins tournaments. His methods were similar to those which he employed with such success against Washburn yesterday. Speed was his chief weapon in the first two sets, and he literally overwhelmed his opponent with fast and accurate driving, fore and backhand. In the third set, he changed to an undercutting attack, slicing the ball effectively to Williams's forehand, and running him around the court until he was weary.

The loser lacked control of his strokes in the first two sets, but in the final session, he was moving at top speed and the resulting rallies were of the most brilliant description. The errors of Williams were mostly typical, due to his anxiety to make every shot travel as close to the lines as possible. He was weak overhead, but otherwise seldom guilty of flagrant mistakes. The match produced the best and fastest tennis that has yet been seen in this tournament, and there was plenty of headwork mixed with the spectacular hitting.

Tilden broke through at the very start and had a lead of 2—0 before Williams succeeded in scoring love-game on service. Proceeding to 3—1 on his own delivery, Tilden secured a second break when the former champion missed a succession of bold attempts at placements. The server trailed at 30—40 in the next game, but saved himself with a remarkable back-hand lob, and pulled out the game with well-placed chops to the corners, 5—1. Williams served a love game, but could get no further against Tilden's powerful delivery. A shot by Williams into the net ended the session, 6—2.

Tilden began the second set by winning two love games, the first coming off his rival's service with a double fault. The games reported 3—0, with another break, Williams just missing the side line with a volley, and then knocking out a net-corder, resulting from Tilden's great back-hand get. The Philadelphian's fourth game came after he was in the hole, 15—40, on four successive serves. One was a clean ace, bounding high over the receiver's head; another came so fast that it could not be returned, and the other two were netted.

Williams broke into the score when Tilden netted and drove out successively after a sensational pull up from 40—15, seeming upset by a hovering ballboy near the barrier, but he promptly closed out the set at 6—1 by serving a love game containing another of his wonderful lobs to the baseline. The set point appeared against Williams after a remarkable exchange of short shots close to the umpire's chair, Tilden volleying straight across the court while running at full speed to cover his territory. Williams saved it once with a fine smash, but netted and smashed out after all for a 6—1 decision.

Tilden Gets Into Trouble.

Tilden was in trouble at the start of the third set, serving two double faults, the second bouncing off the net cord, but pulled out of danger with accurate chops which drove Williams into errors. After winning on service the 1916 title holder got his first break with a beautiful fast drive which Tilden could not volley backhanded. Hitting brilliantly Williams advanced to 3—1, with Tilden again serving successively for a 3—2 score.

The latter then began to find the lines with uncanny regularity, and, with a very lucky net corder mixed in, got past the Williams delivery and squared the set, 3—all. Another shot, right on the chalk of the base line, gave Tilden a lead of 4—3, and he broke through again for 5—3, with a love game. Dropping two more on the lines and finishing with a fine pass, after his opponent had made a marvellous backhand pickup.

The match should have ended with the next game, but, after getting a bad bound, Tilden grew careless and eventually allowed a break with a glaring double fault, Williams promptly tying up the set, 5—all, with a splendidly angled volley. Tilden won his service with a deuce game, after his lead of 40—15 had been outdone by another wonderful backhand shot on the part of Williams, and leading at 6—5, he went right after the match. One point came easily with a net corner, which Williams could not quite lift over the net, and it was love—30 when he fell full length in reaching backhanded for a fast drive. The ex-champion smashed out to end the crucial rally and when Tilden slipped one cleanly down the side of the court it was all over at 7—5.

First Set—
Tilden	4 4 0 4 4 6 0 4—26—6

Johnston Wins from Johnson.

William M. Johnston, for the second time during the week, ran into an opponent of the same name, without the "t," and Wallace Johnson, like the Bostonian, H. C., succeeded in taking a set from the Californian. It had been drizzling almost up to the time the match was started, and the heavy ground was exactly suited to the chopping game of the Philadelphian. By placing a low-bounding ball continually from side to side, he had Johnston completely demoralized at the start, running five straight games and eventually taking the opening set, 6—1. But this was the limit of the chopper's real opposition, for the 1915 champion began to drive the ball faster and faster, besides crowding the net whenever possible and angling off the comparatively soft undercut shots for clean placements. He quickly squared the match with a 6—1 session, and then went to victory with two more decisive sets, both scored at 6—3.

The point score was as follows:

W. F. Johnson	2 5 5 4 4 4 4—28—6
W. M. Johnston	4 3 3 2 1 1 0—14—1

SECOND SET.

W. M. Johnston	4 4 4 4 4 3 4—27—6
W. F. Johnson	1 1 2 1 1 5 2—13—1

THIRD SET.

W. M. Johnston	5 4 8 4 4 4 2 4 4—30—6
W. F. Johnson	3 0 6 6 1 0 4 6 1—27—3

FOURTH SET.

W. M. Johnston	4 5 1 1 4 4 4 4 4—31—6
W. F. Johnson	1 3 4 4 2 1 0 6 2—23—3

Howard Voshell followed up his spectacular elimination of McLaughlin today with an equally impressive victory over another Californian, C. J. Griffin, dropping the second set at 7—5 after being in the lead, 5—0, but capturing the others in convincing style, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4. Griffin introduced a novelty by playing in his stocking feet throughout his sensational pull-up of the second session, having found his sneakers undependable for a footing on the slippery turf, but before the match was over he was glad to adopt the conventional spikes. Voshell won chiefly by outguessing Griffin at the net, using his sharp volleys to good effect after forcing the Californian out of position with fast-breaking serves or well-placed ground strokes.

Australians Arrive in Newport.

A number of doubles matches were played during the afternoon with the New England champions, Williams and Washburn, scoring decisively over the former national titleholders, McLoughlin and Bundy, at 6—4, 6—4, while Carl Fischer and Dr. P. B. Pawk sprang something of a surprise by defeating Beals Wright and A. S. Dabney, Jr., in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3.

The four Australians, Brookes, Patterson, Lycett, and Thomas, arrived here late this evening and will play in the doubles tomorrow, the former pair against Cragin and Rosenbaum and the latter against Fischer and Hawk.

GRESS WINS TENNIS MATCH.

Youngster Defeats Ross and Qualifies for Boys' Nationals.

Val Gress will represent the Forest Hills district in the boys' singles championships to be played at the West Side Club later in the month. He won the right by defeating Frank Ross in the elimination tournament for the district at the West Side club, 1-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Gress, a larger fellow than Ross, won his match as much by his superior endurance as by his superior skill with his racquet. Ross took the first set in easy fashion, but fell before his opponent's onslaught in the second set. Coming back in the third set, Ross was exerted to his utmost to win by the 6-4 score, and then stubbornly yielded the succeeding sets.

WHITNEY UNCOVERS SENSATIONAL RACER

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Harry Payne Whitney's Vexatious, a three-year-old filly, which had been sent to the post only once before, graduated from the maiden class here today with a surprising victory. This daughter of Peter Pan galloped away with the rich Alabama Stakes, $10,000 value, defeating Commander J. K. L. Ross's far-famed filly Milkmaid, which had won the Kenner Stakes here, defeating such good ones as Cirrus and Frogtown.

The victory of Vexatious was surprising because very little was known about the filly. She was brought to the races only last Tuesday when she made her début in a mile race and ran second to Huttontrope. Vexatious never raced as a two-year-old because of a bad leg which kept her out of training. Trainer James Rowe worked patiently with the filly and got her into shape for a trial, which proved so satisfactory that he was willing to let her measure strides today with the one heretofore considered the best of her sex and age.

Milkmaid had come to be regarded as the coming champion among the three-year-old fillies. She had not only raced the best of her sex into submission, but she had won against some of the best colts in training. Though it was charged that a bad ride on Cirrus gave her the victory in the Kenner, the filly nevertheless had shown remarkable speed, despite the fact that there is nothing in her appearance to recommend her as a racer.

The Ross filly was considered such a certainty today that she was quoted at 3 to 5 and at times 1 to 2, while Vexatious was offered at 8 to 1, but was played heavily for the place, most of her fanciers conceding the victory to Milkmaid.

Vexatious had an advantage of twelve pounds in the weights, carrying 114 against 126 on Milkmaid, and this difference in the poundage told heavily on the favorite as the race was run. Vexatious was sent out in front at the very start and Ambrose opened up a gap of three lengths. Polka Dot, owned by P. A. Clark, went into second position, and Sande, on Milkmaid, was content with third, waiting for a time when he could rush up in the stretch. Highland Light and Jap, the only other starters, were trailing and never were contenders.

Vexatious made every post a winning one. She led quite easily into the stretch turn when Sande brought up the favorite and attempted to take the lead. Vexatious, however, was running easily and had never been extended. Ambrose urged her when he saw Milkmaid drawing near and the Whitney entry increased her lead to win by four lengths. It was evident that the weight retarded Milkmaid, for when she made one effort to come up and failed to catch the leader she could not again offer a challenge. Polka Dot finished third, twelve lengths back, with Highland Light and Jap bringing up the rear in the order named.

The value of the race to the winner was $7,265, which no doubt repays the owner and trainer for the patience exercised with the filly.

The defeat of Milkmaid was only one of a series of six upsets which sent the backers of favorites away in an unhappy frame of mind. Not a favorite was able to get past the judges' stand first, although most of them were played for their ability to run in a heavy track. The sun had come out and the course was dried out in spots, but was still heavy.

Wilfrid Viau's Camoufleur was another of the disappointments of the day. This son of Astronomer was the choice for the Pittsfield Handicap, which was run as the third race, but Camoufleur was forced to be content with third place, being defeated by Paul Connelly's Warsaw, which won by four lengths, and Rose d'Or, which took the place in a close finish with the favorite.

Fator, who had ridden a bad race on Poacher in the opening event, made up for it by the manner in which he handled Warsaw. Camoufleur was sent to the front at the start over the mile route, and Kummer kept him there until the last turn was reached, when Warsaw, which had come up slowly through the back stretch, raced into the lead in the final eighth and won handily. Camoufleur tired so badly that Rose d'Or was able to beat him in the last few strides.

DODGE DRIVES TWO VICTORS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7.—J. L. Dodge of the Hollyrood Farm, Lexington, Ky., had a field day at North Randall today, furnishing the winners of the two feature events of today's Grand Circuit meeting. The card provided the most spectacular finishes of the season, exceptionally fast time being made in each heat and race.

Trotting the fastest two heats of the season for 3-year-olds, Dodge drove Periscope to the front in straight heats in the Championship Stallion Stake, valued at $9,405, the first futurity this year for 3-year-old trotters. Molly Knight was second, with the odds-on favorite, Brusiloff third.

Dodge set the pace in both heats, but Periscope was forced to stand hard drives to be returned the winner. The first heat in 2:03¾ set a season's record for juveniles.

In the $3,000 Plain Dealer Purse for 2:08 trotters the first heat went to Miss Perfection under strong handling by Dodge; Hollyrood Kate captured the following two heats and the race in rather easy fashion.

HIGH PRICES FOR YEARLINGS

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 7.—A consignment of eighteen yearlings owned by John Sanford, most of which had been foaled at his Hurricana Stud, at Amsterdam, N. Y., brought a total of $67,300 at the sale conducted here tonight by the Fasig-Tipton Company. The chief purchasers were J. E. Widener of Philadelphia and Commander J. K. L. Ross of Canada.

The highest price of the evening was paid for a chestnut colt called Bennington, by Fair Play-Roxane. This colt brought $10,000 and went to Dr. McCully, who was bidding for J. E. Widener. Mr. Widener also obtained Guelph, a bay colt by Sardanpale-Padoue, for $4,300; Castelreagh, a chestnut colt by The Curragh-Silica, for $7,600, and Farnova, a chestnut colt by Ecouen-May Dora, for $6,800.

Commander Ross was the successful bidder for Bastille, a chestnut colt by Voter-Oppression, for which he paid $6,100. He also got Donegan, a chestnut colt by The Curragh-Kennyetto, for $7,100.

EKWANOK TEAM WINS CUP.

Special to The New York Times.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug. 7.—A. L. Walker, Jr., intercollegiate golf champion, finished in a tie this morning in the qualifying round of the Vermont State golf championship tournament with George McKee of Montpelier Golf Club with a card of 78. Walker was playing as a representative of Ekwanok Country Club. This afternoon Walker played Dr. Clark Burnham of Brooklyn, who also plays from Ekwanok, and playing a steady game, won by 8 up and 6 to play.

The Ekwanok team won the Governor McCullough cup, which is held by the club whose team gets the lowest aggregate in the qualifying round. Senior Champion William E. Truesdell of Garden City was a member of the Ekwanok team, and scored an 83. The other Ekwanok team members were E. W. Clark, 3d., of Philadelphia, with an 83, and Dumont Clark with an 88.

MRS. GAVIN WINS EASILY.

Favorites Are Victors in Shenecossett Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 7.—Favorites in the Shenecossett Country Club golf championship came through with flying colors today and won their matches by even wider margins than yesterday. Mrs. W. A. Gavin had no trouble in disposing of Mrs. C. J. Ahearn of Dwight, Ill., by the rather one-sided score of 7 and 5. Another one-sided victory was that of Mrs. F. Bryan of Cranford, who revenged Miss Beatrice Lounsberry by defeating Miss A. E. Stumer of Ravinslee by 8 and 6.

The summary:

Championship Flight.—Mrs. J. B. Ryan, Cranford, defeated Miss A. E. Stumer, Ravinslee, 8 and 6; Mrs. Ronald Barlow, Merion Cricket, defeated Miss Glenn Collett, Providence, 9 and 8; Mrs. W. A. Gavin, South Shore, defeated Mrs. C. J. Ahern, Dwight, Ill., 7 and 5; Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravenslee, defeated Mrs. Ralph Hammer, Flushing, 2 and 1.

CONLEY ELIMINATED BY JESSE SWEETSER

Medalist in Siwanoy Golf Tournament Goes Out in First Round—Anderson Loses.

Jesse Sweetser of Ardsley nicely avenged himself for the defeat he suffered at the hands of G. L. Conley, Westchester champion, at Apawamis, by defeating the Westchester champion in the first round of match play for the Victory Cup over the Siwanoy links yesterday, winning by the decisive margin of 5 and 4. Conley was foredoomed to defeat by the fact that he won the medal in the qualifying round on Wednesday. Max Marston is the only golfer who can dodge the hoodoo that persistently dogs the footsteps of a medalist. Sweetser continued his good work in the afternoon by defeating W. H. Follett of Fox Hills, ending his play on the same green that marked the finish of his morning round, with the same margin of 5 and 4.

Reggie Lewis of Wykagyl, late of the Naval Reserve, furnished somewhat of a surprise by eliminating John G. Anderson of the home club, 3 and 2. Anderson was the favorite for the cup when Travers failed to present himself and Kirkby withdrew, but Lewis was shooting around the course in a way that recalled his form of three years ago when he made the best of them hustle. Ned Sawyer of Siwanoy breezed through two rounds easily, winning from E. P. Cobb, a clubmate, 3 and 2, in the morning, and defeating M. Townsend of Shackamaxon, 7 and 5, in the afternoon round.

Make Early Start.

Due to the fact that Conley and Sweetser were drawn together in the first round a large gallery turned out before the dew was off the grass to follow the golfers. Sweetser started as if he meant business, taking the first hole when Conley was short of the green on his second. He took the short third when the Siwanoy player failed to pitch to the green, but lost the fifth with three putts. Conley played the seventh hole the way Walter Hagen played it in the big tournament in 1916, which would ordinarily mean something good for the score, but here means that he put two tee shots out of bounds and lost the hole 6—4.

A long putt by Sweetser for a birdie 3 on the ninth left Conley 4 down at the turn. Conley won the tenth, but lost the eleventh and, coming to the decisive fourteenth green 4 down, he pulled his tee shot behind some trees. His second was in a trap, his third over the green, hit fourth on—but too late, and he lost, 5 and 4.

The first hole of Sweetser's afternoon round with Follett was what might have been called a "humdinger." It is usual to encourage dubs at golf by telling them that they are getting nearer the hole at every shot, but Sweetser didn't even do this; he got further away at each swing. Both he and Follett sliced their drives to the eighth green. Sweetser played first for the green through a rift in the trees. He miscalculated on a projecting hickory branch, however, and the ball rebounded some distance behind him. He hit it again, only this time a sturdy oak bough entered an objection, and once more the Ardsley player retreated. On the fourth he was short of the green, and on in 5.

Follett played mathematically. On his second shot he got half way from his starting point to the green, on the third he got half the remaining distance, ditto on his fourth, and by this time he was so close he miscalculated and hit so hard he actually did get on in his fifth stroke. Sweetser took three putts, and after a terrific struggle Follett went down in two, winning 7—8. After this they played fine golf, though Follett tossed away his chances on the greens, losing 5 and 4.

Lewis Versus Anderson.

The Lewis-Anderson match was very close to the turn, each winning only one hole. Both failed to make the short eleventh green, but Anderson went from the near trap clear over the green, chipped out short, missed a putt, and resigned in favor of the young Wykagyl golfer, putting him 1 up. By magnificent playing on the fourteenth Lewis increased this to 2 up, when it looked as though Anderson had the match squared. Anderson played par golf with a 4. Lewis hooked behind a row of trees, pitched high over them to the edge of the green, and holed his chip shot for a 3. Both were short of the fifteenth green, but Lewis holed his putt and Anderson failed, thus putting the Siwanoy player 3 down, and he lost 3 and 2 when the sixteenth was halved in 4.

Eddie Van Vleck of Greenwich won two matches in a style peculiarly his own. He was 5 down and 7 to play in his morning round against C. H. Paul of Gedney Farms, and then he won the next seven holes in a row, finishing 2 up. In the afternoon he defeated C. G. Comstock of Siwanoy 6 and 4, although on one hole he went to jump a stymie and holed his opponent's ball instead of his own.

The summaries:

Trophy Division.

FIRST ROUND.—C. H. Brown, St. Andrews, defeated W. P. Taylor, Gedney Farms, 6 and 5; M. K. Waters, Ardsley, defeated W. Z. Schafer, Gedney Farms, 3 and 1; T. V. Birmingham, Wykagyl, defeated J. KUPCHIK AND JAFFE EVEN.

Tied for Lead in Tourney for State Chess Title.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 7.—After five rounds of the annual State championship tournament at the Chess Club of Troy, A. Kupchik and Charles Jaffe are tied for first place, each with a score of 3½ points to 1½ to his credit, and the issue rests upon the outcome of two games to be played in the final round tomorrow.

Kupchik had a comfortable lead, but lost his return game with Jaffe today through a blunder, costing a piece, when he had the game well in hand. Jaffe scored after forty-four moves. Kupchik had the white side of a queen's gambit declined, and, casting on the queen's side, set up a strong attack against the hostile king's position. In the midst of it, however, he went astray.

Jaffe also drew his second game with O. Chajes, a Ruy Lopez, after fifty-nine moves. Chajes, on the other hand, won a double Ruy Lopez from Bernstein in forty moves.

WHITNEY PLAYS KEEN GOLF.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 7.—A field of 125 players started in the annual invitation golf tournament of the National Golf Links of America today. As usual the majority of the field found this famous course a hard proposition to solve, so only two contestants turned in cards under 80.

The playing of Nelson M. Whitney of Audubon on this difficult course has aroused admiration. His game today was very consistent, as a study of his card will indicate. He holds the amateur record for the national course, having made a 72 in 1915. Mr. Whitney is champion of the trans-Mississippi Golf Association and also Southern champion.

On account of the large entry list the committee has added two sixteens, making five in all with the usual beaten eights. Four former amateur champions, Charles B. McDonald, H. J. Whigham, Findlay S. Douglas and Eben H. Byers, were contestants.

A tie at 86 for the first division was played off by Fred Snare, Havana; E. S. Knapp, Westbrook; Reginald Fincke, Mt. Kisco; C. N. Amory, Myopia, and Paul Lewis, St. Davids. Snare and Fincke had a four each at the first hole and Amory and Lewis five each, while Knapp holed out in six.

The pairings at match play for the first sixteen are as follows: Ward and Solley, Archibald McIlwaine and Snare, Mellon and Hyde, Brown and Byers, Whitney and Amory, Fincke and Moore, Carter and White, Littleton, Jr., and Sullivan.

FIRST SIXTEEN.—Nelson M. Whitney, Audubon, 75; Gardiner W. White, Nassau, 78; C. H. Mallon, Morris County, 80; C. J. Sullivan, Garden City, 81; John M. Ward, Garden City, 82; James R. Hyde, National, 82; P. V. G. Carr, Bridgehampton, 82; M. W. Littleton, Jr., Garden City, 83; Eben M. Byers, National, 83; H. H. Brown, Detroit, 84; Paul Moore, Morris County, 85; Archibald McIlwaine, National, 85; H. Solley, Maidstone, 85; Fred Snare, Havana, 86; Reginald Fincke, Mt. Kisco, 86; C. M. Amory, Myria, 86.

Greenock Club's Tennis Tourney.

The open tennis tournament of the Greenock Country Club in Lee is to be played today and tomorrow. The events consist of men's singles and doubles and women's singles. The winner of the men's singles will receive the Housatonic Valley Challenge Cup, which must be won three times to become the permanent property of the holder.

PLAYERS GO OUT, CLOSING THEATRES

"In calling this strike the actors did not take into consideration these boys and girls of the chorus, nor did they consider the inconvenience of the public. The striking actors are all players receiving two or three hundred dollars a week. They have no grievance against this management. We have played fair."

Turning then to the chorus, he asked: "Have you any grievance?" Shouts of "No!" came back.

"Have you not always been treated fairly by this management," he asked them, and cries of "Yes!" answered him.

A Premiere Put Off.

The two theatres in which Comstock & Gest are interested were both closed. One of these was the Princess, where the premiere of "Nightie Night" was to have taken place. Here only two or three members of the company appeared, and no notice was given the manager, Adolph Klauber. Francis Byrne, who was to have played the leading rôle in this piece, is an Equity member.

At "The Five Million," a Comstock & Gest production, the issue was in doubt until nearly 9 o'clock. At the box office tickets were sold until the last minute, although each prospective patron was informed that a strike might be called. The house was crowded when a brief announcement was made from the stage. Several members of the company stood at the rear while the manager addressed the audience, and greeted the announcement with laughter.

At the Astor Theatre Fay Bainter and Lester Lonergan were almost the only players who arrived to play their customary rôles in "East Is West," and a capacity audience was dismissed.

The audiences which poured out of the theatres joined the throngs from other closed theatres and as late as half past 9 thouasnds of prospective playgoers surged up and down Broadway seeking amusement places which were still open. At 10 o'clock there was still a line waiting to buy standing room for the "Follies" at the New Amsterdam Theatre, which was one of the few houses permitted to operate.

At "Oh, What a Girl" the players who refused to play included Harry Kelly, Frank Fay, and Ignacio Martinetti, who have the three leading rôles. No strike was called at the Winter Garden, but one actor who walked out without orders was replaced without difficulty. At the Playhouse, where "At 9:45" was prevented from being given, William A. Brady made an address to the audience attacking the Equity and its methods.

Other Theatres Crowded.

The result of the wholesale closing was, of course, that the eight or nine attractions which were permitted to play had capacity audiences and turned thousands of patrons away.

The problem of refunding money at the closed theatres, although apparently a simple one, was complicated by the fact that many people had purchased their seats from the speculators, paying various figures. One broker, when asked what he gave back to customers who returned tickets, replied, "Oh, I guess at it."

The launching of the long-anticipated strike followed an eleventh-hour attempt to negotiate with the managers, and an enthusiastic meeting of the Actors' Equity Association at the Hotel Astor, at which E. H. Sothern was greeted with hisses for suggesting a certain form of mediation, and strike resolutions and pledges were signed by nearly all of the 1,400 members present.

At this meeting, from which newspaper representatives were barred, Francis Wilson presided, and addresses were made by John W. Cope, E. H. Sothern, Frank Gillmore, Joe N. Weber, representing the musicians' union; Hugh Frayne, State organizer for the American Federation of Labor; W. B. Rubin, counsel for the labor union, and a representative of the stagehands' union.

Mr. Sothern, who had been in communication with the managers earlier in the afternoon, brought a suggestion for a meeting with the managers, to be attended by all the actors as individuals and not as Equity members. He was hissed and shouted down by the crowd.

$1,000,000 Pledged for Fight.

The representatives of the American Federation of Labor, it was said, pledged $1,000,000 for the carrying on of the strike, and said that immediate steps would be taken to enlist the stagehands and musicians. The representatives of these unions said that they felt certain that their members would be behind the actors if a strike were called, but said that the question would, of course, have to be voted upon by the locals.

The strike resolution, which was carried unanimously and then signed by more than 1,000 actors and actresses, read:

> Whereas, In all contracts previously entered into between managers and actors, the Actors' Equity Association was recognized by the managers as the representative of the actors to be dealt with on behalf of the actor in all matters arising under such contracts; and
> Whereas, The managers who are members of the Producing Managers' Association now definitely declare than they no longer recognize the Actors' Equity Association and will not deal with it, and will not arbitrate with it the differences which have arisen between manager and actor; and
>
> Whereas, by so doing said members of said Producing Managers' Association have both broken and repudiated existing contracts between the managers and the actors; and
>
> Whereas, many other equitable and moral reasons exist for this agreement; be it
>
> Resolved, That we severally agree, eash with the other, that until the Actors' Equity Association is recognized as the representative of the actor and until a satisfactory arrangement is made with it governing the working conditions of the actor, we will not perform any service for any manager who is a member of the Producing Managers' Association, or who refuses to recognize our association or issue its contract, either in plays now being presented or in plays which are now or may hereafter be rehearsed.

Sothern Fails as Mediator.

Following the strike vote Mr. Sothern again volunteered his services as intermediary, and it was agreed that he should carry the actors' ultimatum to the managers. Unless a favorable reply were received by 7 o'clock, the managers were to be informed, a strike would be called. All of the Equity members playing in current shows were asked to meet at a restaurant in Forty-fifth Street at 7 o'clock, when they would receive final instructions.

The meeting at the Astor did not break up until after 6 o'clock. In the meantime a committee of managers, including Sam H. Harris, John L. Golden, William A. Brady, Arthur Hammerstein, Arthur Hopkins, and George Broadhurst, waited in the offices of Mr. Harris for word as to the decision of the meeting. At 7 o'clock Mr. Sothern had not reached the office of Mr. Harris, and, failing to receive word, the strike was formally called. Francis Wilson, President of the Equity, said that Mr. Sothern had evidently given up all hope of averting a clash.

A committee was appointed by the actors to designate the plays which would be closed by strike order, but the identity of this committee was kept secret lest its members should be singled out for the particular disfavor of the managers. The original plan had been to call out only five or six shows, but as curtain time approached one attraction after another was added to the list, with the result that thirteen were eventually called.

At the offices of the Actors' Equity Association, following the strike, Frank Gillmore said the results had far exceeded his expectations. Nothing had been decided upon for the future, but it was inferred that the continued failure of the managers to meet the actors' demand would result in the closing of one company after another all over the country. New York City, which is the theatrical centre of the country, was the only territory affected last night.

William A. Brady, when shown a copy of the actors' resolution, branded it as "a malicious and despicable lie." The managers, he said, were not objecting to dealing with an organization of actors; their objections, he declared, were to the alliance of the actors with Harry Mountford and James William Fitzpatrick, whom he characterized as "professional agitators." The managers, he said, had held several meetings with the actors in an attempt to adjust all differences, and that following every meeting the actors had broken their word by giving information regarding the meetings to the newspapers.

The trouble between the managers and the actors began a few months ago, when the standard contract under which they had been operating expired, and negotiations were entered into for certain changes on both sides. After several weeks of negotiations the two sides were in agreement on all points except one—the question of payment for extra matinees given on legal holidays. On this point neither side was willing to give way, and the actors finally suggested that the point be arbitrated by William H. Taft, Charles E. Hughes, or others upon whom the actors and managers might agree.

The managers refused this offer and suggested individual arbitration with each actor as difficulties arose. Simultaneously they printed their own contracts, upon which no mention of the Actors' Equity Association was made. The actors then affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, since which time a strike has been an ever-present possibility.

Late in the evening the various managers began to make plans for the presentation of their attractions as usual tonight. In addition to the decision of J. J. Shubert to present the "Gaieties of 1919" with under-studies, it was announced by Selwyn & Co. that "The Challenge" would be played at the Selwyn Theatre tonight. Last night the calling off of the performance was made necessary by the defection of five actors, but it was said that they would be immediately replaced. Eugene Walter, the author, probably will play a part tonight. "Listen, Lester," at the Knickerbocker, is another attraction which will be played tonight in some form or other.

A persistent report late at night had it that Chicago would be the next scene of attack, and that a strike would be called there tomorrow if an agreement were not reached in the interim.

UNDERWOOD WILL APPEAL.

Erie President Found Guilty in Ferryboat Rule Case.

Frederick D. Undewood, Preident of the Erie Railroad, who submitted to arrest on a Staten Island ferryboat on Saturday to test the rule requiring all passengers to debark at the end of each trip, was found guilty on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday by Magistrate Croak at New Brighton, Staten Island. Sentence was suspended.

Through counsel Mr. Underwood filed notice of intention to ask permission of the court today to appeal the case to a higher court.

His attorney declared that the rule requiring passengers to leave the boats at the end of every trip was not valid, for the reason that the rule, which was made by the Department of Plants and Structures, has never been approved by the Board of Estimate and printed in The City Record.

HOW TO ARGUE AND WIN.

99 out of 100 can argue to one who can argue and win. Yet upon this faculty more than any other depends the success of the business man or woman, salesman, lawyer, preacher, politician, and teacher. To win is a universal desire. Almost to make a sale, almost to win a case, almost to make a convert, brings—nothing!

In this book, by Grenville Kleiser, are definite suggestions on training the mind in accurate thinking and clear and effective statement. It is the outcome of many years' experience in teaching and imparts a knowledge of successful argumentation.

CONTENTS: — Introductory — Truth and Facts—Clearness and Conciseness—The Use of Words—The Syllogism — Faults — Personality—The Lawyer—The Business Man—The Preacher—The Salesman—The Public Speaker—Brief-Drawing—The Discipline of Debate—Tact—Cause and Effect—Reading Habits—Questions for Solution—Specimens of Argumentation—Golden Rules in Argumentation.

Weren't you wishing, just yesterday or the day before, that you could talk more convincingly? One of America's top-notch salesmen, Robert Ruxton, says of this book: "It can be perused and studied to advantage by those who speak and by those who write. To read the first chapter alone is an education in the basic principles of written presentation. This book is so pregnant with advertising principles that it should have an honored place on every business man's desk. I recommend its purchase to all who wish to discover how to argue and win." ALMEIDA HEADS PORTUGAL.

Violent Republican, Former Premier, Is Elected on Third Ballot.

LISBON, Aug. 5.—Antonio Almeida, former Premier and Minister of Colonies, was elected President of Portugal today by Parliament. The election took place on a third ballot, Senhor Almeida receiving 123 votes to 31 for other candidates. Thirteen members of Parliament abstained from voting. President-elect Almeida will take office on Oct. 5.

Antonio Almeida is 54 years old, and during the latter days of the Monarchical régime in Portugal, was considered one of the most violent Republicans, being imprisoned on several occasions in connection with alleged plots for the overthrow of the monarchy.

In these exceptional times even the most conservative investments yield unusually liberal returns. To obtain on your money an average yield of, say, 6%, you can keep well within the limits of conservatism. All the more reason, therefore, why you should be careful to avoid the pitfalls of unsound or untried enterprises, and exercise the utmost discrimination in selecting your investments.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

A drastic decline of prices, such as occurred in yesterday's stock market, betokens extraordinary distress in the speculative situation, and this was emphasized by business in the last half hour. In this period bids for many industrial issues seemed to be scarce, with the result that offerings were thrown over without reference to quotations. Recitation of the fact that U. S. Steel declined 6⅝ points during the session is enough to picture a demoralized state of business. Some of the reasons back of the renewed decline were evident, others were only to be estimated with reference to what had gone before. The wide spread between consecutive prices reported on the ticker for certain of the more erratic industrial shares indicated that a great volume of stop-loss orders had been uncovered late in the day. Quite likely, the amount of such orders had expanded largely in the last month, after the market trend began to grow obscure, and once the recession had acquired speed they were eliminated with great rapidity. In the final line-up of the price list declines extending from 3 to 5 points were widely distributed, and particular stocks showed net losses of 10 points and more.

As a "shake-up" the day's result was effective in fulfilling the warnings against over-speculation which had been coming from responsible quarters for a number of weeks. The character of the selling seemed to show, however, that other holdings than those on an inadequate financial basis were let go, and one needed to look further than the surface of market occurrences to find the explanation. It did not lie in the immediate money situation, as demand funds were plentiful at 4½ and 5 per cent., and more time money was reported as offered than for several days past. It was evident in the comment of banking and brokerage offices from the start of business that, after one day of partial relief from concern over the railroad outlook, the financial community was again studying with close attention the railway workers' movement to nationalize the carriers, and the steps being taken to investigate rising commodity prices. The declarations of the Department of Justice against certain packing interests were received as a pointed indication that Government action to determine what prices ought to prevail was to be pressed without delay, and it was noticeable that the selling of stocks gained a fresh impetus after news came that the President was conferring with the committee recently appointed to inquire into the cost of living. Mr. Wilson's address to Congress on the subject will be awaited with keen interest today, inasmuch as the impression has prevailed all this week that it may contain recommendations which will have to do with the prices of various goods that lately have been the main source of large profits among some of the corporations.

The cotton market moved nervously throughout the day, declining with stocks in the afternoon. Considering both markets in the same light, the parallel changes of quotations all this week have denoted the presence of speculative forces in each which have become considerably upset by developments centring about economic facts. In quarters where a sane and gradual market movement had long been wished for, the reaction of Monday and yesterday was looked upon as a salutary process which would have beneficial results later. The belief that a satisfactory period of industrial activity lies ahead has not been altered by stock market occurrences, and the plan of the United States Rubber Company to return the common stock to a dividend basis reflects the situation in the rubber business in a way which any one may see.

Again, weakness in French rates marked the foreign exchange market, sight drafts getting as low as 7.83 to the dollar. A fairly good recovery occurred in the late afternoon, to 7.76. Offerings were still greatly in excess of the active demand. Sterling recorded an irregular movement without changing radically from the closing quotation the day before.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reasons for Break Clouded.

For the most part there was no one who could ascribe any definite reason for the almost panicky decline in prices which occurred in the final hour of trading. People went from one to the other asking as to the news, but of actual developments there was nothing tangible. Of rumors there were plenty, as is always the case when a decline of such proportions occurs. One of these had to do with some mysterious sort of tax which was to be levied by the Government, presumably on food products. It was not explained, however, how an additional tax would help reduce the much-talked-about cost of living. The word tax, unexplained, is, however, enough to make Wall Street shy. What was undoubtedly a market factor was the impending address of President Wilson to a joint session of Congress today. There was fear that what he was to say might not be favorable marketwise. One rumor in connection with the forthcoming address was to the effect that a recommendation would be made that the pay of railroad employes be increased.

Market in a Turmoil.

Trading in the last hour was on a scale of about 3,500,000 shares a day. The volume was 700,000 shares, and values melted as stop-loss orders were caught. In many cases there were declines of a point to two points between sales, with support almost negligible. One house was credited with having sold 60,000 shares of Steel common in the final hour.

Money Rates Easy.

There was nothing in the call money market which could be described as untoward. Rates were easy, with plenty of funds in sight, and there was a great degree of activity in the time money market. For some time funds of this sort have been practically unobtainable, but yesterday the offerings were free. The liquidation, it was said, had greatly reduced brokerage loans.

Some Interesting Comparisons.

The selling wave, which swept almost everything before it in the last trading hour of yesterday's stock market, brought about price recessions which it had taken many days in the bull market of the first half of the year to gain. The following table shows comparative high and low prices of the year in a number of the more active issues, with the net change at the close yesterday:

	Year's High.	Y't'day's Low.	Net Ch'g y't'day.
U. S. Steel	115¼	100¼	—6⅝
U. S. Rubber	138⅝	118½	—9⅛
Baldwin Loco	124⅛	100	—7¼
Marine Com	67¾	53½	—5⅝
Chesapeake & Ohio	68⅛	56	—3¼
Southern Pac	115	95⅝	—3⅝
Reading	93¾	78	—3½
Union Pacific	138⅝	124	—2⅞

Standard Rails Decline.

Declines in the railroad group, while not so large as among the industrials were nevertheless great enough in the case of several issues to arouse comment. Some stocks approached close to their low for the year. Great Northern was off 2⅜ points, Pennsylvania was down 3¼, New York Central, 3; Atchison, 1¾, and Union Pacific, 2⅞.

United States Rubber, which has been one of the speculative favorites during recent weeks, followed an erratic price course. The stock opened the day with a show of strength and moved up more than 2 points, but when the selling pressure came into the market on a pronounced scale there was a sharp decline, the price-shading off rapidly. On sales of 1,300 shares the issue dropped 4 points, from 127 to 123, and on an additional 1,300 shares there was a decline to 120, or a break of 7 points on 2,600 shares. All of the reported good news which was to come forth from the meeting of the Directors of the company did not serve to give support. As a matter of fact the good news did develop after the market closed, provision for dividends on an 8 per cent. basis having been made.

U. S. Steel Under Pressure.

The net decline in United States Steel was 6⅝ points and this was pointed to as showing the weight of the selling. It is not often that a decline as great as this is recorded during one day. Steel opened well below the close of Wednesday and sagged steadily downward. The last forty minutes, however, saw Steel drop from above 103 to only a fraction above par.

It is asserted that the strikes in the Northwest are beginning to interfere with ore shipments, a situation which if long continued would find reflection in the steel industry. Most companies, however, have supplies enough ahead to tide over any strike of ordinary proportions. Some of them have material on hand for as much as three months' operations.

Ticker Far Behind.

The stock ticker fell far behind the trading in the final hour yesterday, and quotations ran for slightly more than twenty-five minutes after the market closed. Only once before this year has such a run of the ticker been recorded.

Specialties Lose Ground.

Recent market favorites which attracted a large speculative following when they were steadily advancing were hard hit in the late selling yesterday. Among them were American Bosch Magneto, which closed for the day with a net loss of 6⅞ points; American Hide and Leather closed with a net loss of more than 6 points, American Woolen lost more than 10, and Central Leather lost 12 points. In the case of the leather issues the agitation in Washington for a drastic cut in the cost of all commodities continued to serve as a depressing market factor.

Publication of the news that the Attorney General would bring suit against the packing companies brought about continued selling of Wilson & Co. shares in yesterday's stock market. The turnover was not particularly heavy, however, and gave but little evidence of broad liquidation such as that which caused the break in so many other stocks in the general list.

American Locomotive Rumors.

In spite of rumors which were circulated through the financial district yesterday that American Locomotive Directors may increase the dividend when they meet within the next week or so, the stock sold off in sympathy with the general liquidation in the last half hour of trading. As an offset to the dividend talk, attention was called in some quarters to the uncertain situation surrounding the financing of foreign Government railway equipment orders, which are said to be going begging in this market.

Pool Support Reported.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas was pointed to as one issue in yesterday's stock market which was receiving substantial support. This stock, which has attracted a somewhat spasmodic speculative following in recent weeks, closed for the day with a fractional net decline. The sale of a block of 1,400 shares of the stock appeared on the tape early in the day and other substantial buying orders were attributed to pool activity.

A Wide Spread.

One item of interest yesterday was the wide spread between the bid and asked price on Union Pacific stock. The bid was printed as 117 on the stock ticker with the asked price being set down at 124. In the case of Texas & Pacific, one of the speculative issues which has moved over a wide range in the last few months, the tape showed only an offered price of 49. This was considered as a palpable error due to the rush at the close.

U. S. RUBBER PLANS INCREASE IN STOCK

REPORT BUSINESS GROWING

Directors of the United States Rubber Company yesterday recommended that the capital stock be increased to $100,000,000 first preferred, and $200,000,000 common, and that the outstanding second preferred stock be retired. Most of this latter issue already has been acquired by the company, the amount outstanding being $403,600.

The present authorized capitalization is $120,000,000, divided into $70,000,000 first preferred, $10,000,000 second preferred, and $40,000,000 common. The aggregate capitalization is $99,425,700 outstanding, divided into $63,022,100 in first preferred, $403,600 in second preferred and $36,000,000 in common. Of the proposed capital increase it is intended to issue $36,000,000, thereby making the outstanding common capitalization $72,000,000. The additional capital increase will remain in the company's treasury for the present.

It is asserted in the announcement of the capital increase, which will be passed upon by the stockholders at New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 9, that the new capital will be used to expand the business of the company, plans for this now being under way. In this connection, Samuel P. Colt, Chairman of the Board, said:

"The company is engaged in a business capable, on conservative lines, of large expansion, the tire business both of passenger vehicles and trucks being a notable example of this. For the last two years, the company has been unable to meet the demand for its tires, and notwithstanding its capacity has already been substantially increased, further construction has been authorized which will require in the neighborhood of $15,000,000 for its completion, and which will double the present capacity of the company for producing tires."

"The amount of outstanding common stock, as compared with the property of the company is relatively very small. The new issue of stock will be offered to common stockholders at par.

It was also announced that the common stock would be placed on an 8 per cent. dividend basis, beginning in October, the earnings of the company justifying this, in the opinion of the chairman of the board. It also was recommended by him that an extra distribution, in stock or in cash, be made early in 1920 to common stockholders. Intimations of dividend action and other "good" news with relation to United States Rubber have pervaded the Street for some time, and much of the advance in the issue has been predicated on these. Yesterday the common stock sold as high as 137, but reacted sharply under heavy liquidation in the late afternoon.

During the last five years, the capitalization of the company has remained practically the same. In that period, the volume of business transacted has steadily expanded. In 1914, the gross business amounted to $83,000,000. In the following year, $92,000,000 was reported. In 1916, the gross was $126,000,000; in 1917, $176,000,000, and in 1918, $215,000,000. The surplus of earnings for 1917 and 1918 was equivalent each year to about 30 per cent. on the common stock. The earnings for the first half of 1919, it is asserted, have been virtually the same as in the first half of 1918.

The indebtedness of the company was funded in 1917 into 5 per cent. long term notes. The total consolidated funded debt now outstanding is $67,807,000.

NEW CERTIFICATE ISSUE.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Secretary Glass, under the act approved Sept. 24, 1917, as amended, today offered for subscription, at par and accrued interest, through the Federal Reserve Banks, Treasury certificates of indebtedness Series B-1920, dated and bearing interest from Aug. 15, 1919, payable Jan. 15, 1920, with interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. a year. Applications will be received at the Federal Reserve Banks. Bearer certificates, without coupons, will be issued in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000.

If any notes should be offered for subscription after the offering and before the maturity of such certificates, and the subscription price of such notes be payable on or before the maturity of such certificates, Mr. Glass said, then such certificates will be accepted at par, with adjustment of accrued interest, in payment on the subscription price, when payable of any such notes subscribed for by and allotted to holders of such certificates. The certificates of this series do not bear the circulation privilege and will not be accepted in payment of taxes or on Victory Loan subscriptions.

Payment at par and accrued interest for certificates allotted must be made on or before Aug. 15, 1919, or on later allotment. After allotment and upon payment Federal Reserve Banks may issue interim receipts pending delivery of the definite certificates.

Any qualified depository will be permitted to make payment by credit for certificates allotted to it for itself and its customers up to any amount for which it shall be qualified in excess of existing deposits when so-notified by the Federal Reserve Bank of its district. Treasury certificates of indebtedness of Series VJ, maturing Sept. 9, and VK, maturing Oct. 7, 1919, will be accepted at par with an adjustment of accrued interest in payment for any certificates of the Series B, 1920, now offered, which shall be subscribed for and allotted.

SEEKS BILLION TAX CUT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Chairman Campbell of the House Rules Committee, who asserts that he would like to have $1,000,000,000 worth of Federal taxation removed from the people of the country, today introduced a resolution calling on the President to submit by Dec. 1 an estimate of expenses for the next fiscal year, so framed that the huge sum indicated may be eliminated. The resolution reads:

"To the end that the cost of government and the amount of taxation may be reduced, be it

"Resolved, That in submitting estimates for the next fiscal year for the expenses of the Government, the President is hereby requested to submit to Congress, not later than Dec. 1, 1919, a statement showing:

"First—Such reduction of the estimates for expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, (exclusive of estimates for the national defense, pensions, and war insurance,) as will permit a reduction of taxes by the sum of at least one billion dollars annually.

"Second—The annual receipts of the Government from all sources for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1919, inclusive, together with an estimate of the revenues and income from all sources for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1920 and 1921, respectively.

"Third—The annual expenditures of the Government for all purposes for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1919, inclusive, and the estimated expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920."

AUTUMN HATS TO BE SIMPLE

There was a strong tendency toward simplicity at the Autumn Promenade of the Retail Millinery Association of America, which was held at the Hotel Astor. The show was the most elaborate that has been given by the association.

France and America vied with each other in the displays, and the designers from both countries appear to have had the inspiration simultaneously to turn to the Oriental artists of the olden days for suggestions—only suggestions—for the ideas are cleverly concealed under the cloak of simplicity.

There were large hats, small hats and medium sized ones, but in no case were they extreme, and the chief tendency seemed to be toward irregularity. This was particularly true of the picture hats.

Feathers were much used as trimming, but were never permitted to rise above the crown of the hat, and in most cases drooped off the brim well over the shoulder. The toques were rich in hand broidery, and the most unusual trimming for the street hat was an ornament made of monkey fur rising eight or nine inches at the front of the crown.

The greatest surprise was in headgear for evening. The designers decree that the woman must have her head well covered, and wide bands of tulle or tinsel finished with birds of paradise were shown, most of them with a filmy crown. The stockingless craze now sweeping Paris was introduced at the show, but did not cause much of a stir.

COTTON FOLLOWS STOCKS IN TUMBLE

TRADE SHOWS UNEASINESS

There was another sharp break in the cotton market yesterday, future contracts selling from 130 to 140 points below Wednesday's closing quotations. This was attributed in large part to selling by Wall Street interests when the sharp break in the stock market came in the late afternoon, although the belief seemed to prevail that the President's message to Congress on the high cost of living may contain suggestions which will not exempt cotton from a general price cut. Rumors, however, were prevalent, and served to add to the general uneasiness, and the gains of the previous day were all wiped out.

Future contracts opened from 2 to more than 30 points down, and, while the market was somewhat erratic in the mornnig trading, Southern selling and hedge sales by local spot houses were reflected almost immediately, as there was little evidence of the support which stiffened prices in the preceding session. In fact, the only apparent buying power in the late afternoon came from short covering operations.

Cables from Liverpool indicated that the market there was firm, with a fair volume of trade buying, but this had little local effect.

What the President will suggest to Congress as a means to decrease the cost of living was the chief gossip of the cotton trade, and there were but few instances where anything other than a gloomy attitude could be found. Continued weakness in French exchange was also a contributing feature.

In the big decline which came soon after the break in stock market prices October contracts sold down to 30.80, December touched 31, January futures were quoted as low as 30.90, and March contracts dropped to 30.95. Recoveries before the close ranged from 5 to 35 points.

SHIP LINE TO LATIN AMERICA

Julius Klein Says United States Plans Closer Relations.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 7.—The United States Government is considering a proposal to create a transportation system to the commercial centres of South America, according to Julius Klein, Commercial Attaché of the American Embassy at Buenos Aires.

The American Government, Mr. Klein said, is greatly interested in the South American markets and recognizes the need of a better knowledge of each other by the peoples of the United States and of the South American republics as a means of developing commercial relations.

To Learn Interborough's Condition.

It was learned in the financial district yesterday that there will be a preliminary meeting of the Interborough-Metropolitan 4½ Per Cent. Bondholders' Protective Committee early next week to consider a brief report prepared by utility engineers on the present condition of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. Just what the report will show could not be ascertained, but from the remarks of Theodore P. Shonts, when the property was placed in the hands of a receiver early this year, and statements made from time to time by other local traction managers, it is generally believed that it will show that increased revenue is a vital necessity for the company.

Common Stock		$1,000,000

PROPERTY AND BUSINESS

Plant is located in Manchester, New Hampshire, one of the best manufacturing cities in New England. Its buildings are of brick, modern mill construction, with side-track facilities to all four factories.

The Company has been in business since 1893 and under the present management since 1903.

The factories are thoroughly systematized and operating under the most approved and up-to-date cost systems. Heads of the various departments, many of whom are stockholders, have been with the Company for many years. The organization is thoroughly sound and built with the idea of permanency.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The purpose of this issue is for additional working capital to take care of the greatly increased demand for "Beacon Shoes," and should materially increase the earning power of the Company.

PREFERENCES

Preferred as to cumulative dividends at the rate of 7% and as to assets in case of liquidation up to $115 per share.

Additional Preferred Stock may be issued only when net assets are at least twice the amount of the Preferred Stock outstanding, including that proposed to be issued, and only when net earnings for the previous fiscal year shall have equalled twice the annual dividend requirements thereon.

From the Company's net earnings, or surplus, a sum in cash, equivalent to 10% of the net profits, after earning and paying the preferred dividends, shall be set aside as a sinking fund, to be applied to the purchase of its Preferred Stock, at not to exceed $115 per share.

The Preferred Stock has voting power in case default is made of two successive quarterly dividends and if said default continues for 60 days thereafter,—or if any other items or restrictions in regard to this stock have been violated, in which case it will have voting power until any default or violation is remedied.

SALES AND EARNINGS

Net profits for each of the past three years, after deducting interest, federal taxes, and depreciation, have averaged $330,776, or nearly 4½ times the amount required to pay dividends on this issue.

ASSETS

Legal details pertaining to this issue have been passed upon by Messrs. Taggart, Tuttle, Wyman & Starr, of Manchester, N. H., and by Messrs. Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt, of Boston. Audits of the books of account of the Company have been made annually by Marwick, Mitchell, Peat & Co., Certified Public Accountants.

Navigation is an exact science. So is industry. Yet in setting sail on commercial seas most of us pursue a course as aimless as a sailor in a rowboat without oars.

Hit-or-miss methods in industry are as out of date as the caravels of Columbus beside the steamships of today. Certain factors govern the success of any industrial enterprise, chiefly the nature of the product, its mechanical practicability and its commercial worth. Upon these points revolve its value as an investment, and what methods to pursue for economical development and production.

The facts can only be ascertained by specialists trained in the special functions of industrial investigation and research.

CITY CLUB INDORSES REFORMS IN TRANSIT

CITES BOSTON'S EXPERIENCE

Would Consolidate All Companies, Terminate Leases, and Change Franchises.

The suggestions of Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon for improving transit, made public on Monday, have been partly indorsed by the City Club. Mr. Nixon, among other things, suggested that the companies could be placed upon a sound financial basis by a sliding scale of fare.

But the City Club, in a statement issued with a letter sent to Mr. Nixon, says it does not agree that an increase in fare beyond 5 cents promises real relief from the present "unfortunate conditions" and that:

"This conclusion was reached by the club as the result of an extensive examination of the situation here and in cities which had permitted increased fares and was expressed in the club's report of Jan. 24. The lapse of six months with the experience of Boston and other cities does not tend to shake this conviction."

The letter, which is signed by Nelson S. Spencer, the club's President, says in part:

"The papers quote you as favoring a solution somewhat similar to that suggested by the Club, similar at least to this extent, that you believe it necessary, before a proper solution can be arrived at, that all of the companies should be consolidated, leases should be terminated and perpetual franchises should be changed to indeterminate franchises and that the value of the properties should be agreed upon as between the companies and the city.

"It seems reasonably clear from the Boston experience that an increase in fare disproportionately decreases traffic, and does not secure a sufficient increase in revenue and offer a practical solution. We desire to call to your attention two suggestions we made of reducing operating costs, namely:

"The latter suggestion is possible only under the condition of a consolidated system.

"The situation is undoubtedly serious and something must be done to bring relief, and we sincerely hope that such measures as may be adopted will look toward a permanent solution which will better our service, and at the same time continue a basis of fare which will tend widely to distribute our population."

Accompanying the letter is a copy of the club's suggestions in a communication to the Board of Estimate in January.

NEW ISSUE

City of Copenhagen
Municipal External Loan of 1919
Twenty-five Year 5½% Redeemable Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Dated July 1st 1919 Due July 1st 1944

Interest payable January 1st and July 1st

Principal and interest payable at the office of Brown Brothers & Co., New York, the Fiscal Agents of the Loan, in gold coin of the United States of America of or equal to the standard of weight and fineness existing on July 1st 1919.

Payable without deduction for any Danish Governmental or municipal taxes or other Danish taxes present or future.

The Loan is to be repayable, by means of yearly payments of $750,000 in United States gold coin, to be made in the year 1925, and in each year thereafter during the life of the Loan. Such payments will constitute the sinking fund of the Loan, and are to be applied on July 1st 1925 and each July 1st thereafter to the redemption at par of bonds whose numbers are to be determined by lot.

Copenhagen, the capital of Denmark, is the chief seaport and leading commercial City of the Kingdom. Situated on one of the largest harbors of Europe at the entrance to the Baltic Sea, it holds a strategic position for world trade. The City has by far the most important Free Port in Scandinavia an advantage of much consequence in the commerce of Northern Europe. From 1895 when the Free Port was established to 1913, the last full year before the war, the annual tonnage entering Copenhagen increased from 260,096 tons to 1,801,299 tons. The population of the City is 550,000. This is nearly one-fifth the population of the entire Kingdom.

Loans of Copenhagen have always been held in high favor among European investors. In normal times these loans were issued at rates of interest of 3½% and 4%. The total debt of Copenhagen including the present issue is approximately $89,879,200. The debt of the City has increased relatively little during the entire war period. We are advised that no other foreign loan will be issued by the City within one year.

yielding, according to the redemption dates for which they may be drawn by lot for payment at par, ($750,000 bonds to be drawn each year) as follows:

TO INVESTIGATE INSURANCE FUND

TO HOLD PUBLIC HEARINGS

The actuarial investigation of the State Insurance Fund has been ordered by Governor Smith. The Governor has authorized the appointment of Miles M. Dawson, who assisted Charles E. Hughes in the insurance investigation conducted by the Armstrong Committee in 1906, as special counsel and investigator under the Moreland Act.

The announcement was made yesterday by Jeremiah F. Connor, who was named by Governor Smith several months ago a Special Commissioner under the Moreland Act to investigate the workings of the Workmen's Compensation system in this State, including the administration of the State Insurance Fund, and of labor laws generally.

Mr. Connor has already made two preliminary reports to Governor Smith, one was in relation to the direct settlements between employers or casualty companies insuring them and injured workmen, in which it was stated that the workmen under such settlements had been defrauded out of large amounts to which they were entitled under the law. The direct settlement clause was inserted in the Compensation Law during the first year of Governor Whitman's administration. The other, in relation to the State Insurance Fund, which is being administered by Professor F. Spencer Baldwin, called attention to irregularities in the administration of the fund and urged an examination of it by a recognized actuary.

Mr. Connor said yesterday that as soon as Mr. Dawson has had time to go over certain figures related to the State Insurance Fund, public hearings would be begun in this city. The first hearings in all likelihood will be held early in September.

Mr. Dawson took an active part in the drafting of the Workmen's Compensation Act. He has just completed an examination and audit of the State Insurance Fund of Pennsylvania and the State Insurance Fund of Ohio.

SUBWAY TUNNEL THROUGH.

The work of laying tracks in the tunnel of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern District line of the dual system of rapid transit is expected to begin within ten months, and shortly thereafter this line, one of the most important in the city, will be ready for operation. Yesterday the tunnel under the East River was holed through by Transit Construction Commissioner John H. Delaney, who made the statement as to the time when the line would probably be ready for operation.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 13,655 packages. Prices fairly sustained on all grades of creamery, with moderate trading. Some new export business, mostly at 52c for creamery firsts. Ladles and packing stock steady. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 55@55½c; extras, 92 score, 54¼c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 52@54c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 49½@51½c; lower grades, 45@49c; unsalted, higher than extras, 58@58½c; extras, 57@57½c; firsts, 54½@56½c; seconds, 52@54c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 53½@54c; good to prime, 50½@53c; common to fair, 46@50c; renovated, firsts, 50@51c; lower grades, 46½@49½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 48@49c; seconds, 46½@47c; lower grades, 43@46c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 46½@47c; No. 2, 46c; lower grades, 43@45½c.

EGGS.—22,159 cases. Arrivals continue liberal, hot weather defects are very general, and a large part of the supply is running of decidedly poor quality. The scarcity of really high grades leads to a maintenance of values for such, so that the full range of prices is without quotable change, although a greater part of the supply is falling into lower grades than heretofore and the average of sales is materially lower. Under grades are in burdensome accumulation and are pressing for sales at reasonable offers. There has been some considerable movement in storage eggs under pressure and a willingness to accept comparatively easy prices, but the sales reported are within a range of previous quotations. Nearby white eggs are rather liberal and there is an accumulation of average prime and lower qualities pressing for sale, with prices in buyers' favor. Most receivers say they have no surplus of strictly fancy new-laid hennery stock free from hot weather defects, but others have an accumulation even of their best marks, and sales of these are being made below their usual place in the range of quotations. Rather a liberal offering of California whites and only a very limited movement in the range quoted. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 54@55c; extra firsts, 51@53c; firsts, 47@50c; seconds, 43@46c; under grades, 35@42c; dirties, No. 1, 39@40c; No. 2 and poorer, 30@38c; checks, good to choice, dry, 34@36c; under grades, 25@33c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, 50c; firsts, 47@49c; seconds, 44½@46½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 67@70c; fair to prime, 55@66c; gathered whites, common to prime, 50@68c; Pacific Coast whites, 60@68c; other Western and Southern gathered whites, 45@66c; State, Pennsylvania and near by, hennery browns, fancy, 58@62c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 53@57c; fair to prime, 45@52c.

WHITE UNION PROTESTS STOCK YARD GUARDS

Nearly 5,000 white employes left their work today as a double protest against the presence in the yards of guards and the readmittance to the yards of colored workers.

The negroes had been away from their jobs for ten days, due to the South Side race rioting. Upward of 3,000 colored men came to work, about one-fifth of the number employed. While there was a difference in statements as to the cause of their walk-out against negroes, it was most generally stated that there is no color antagonism, but, rather, a protest against the employing of non-union colored men.

According to John Kikulski, organizer for the Federal unions, the men object to going on with their work with "a Boy Scout and a bayonet right behind them." He said that the colored men who had reported for work were non-union; that the union colored men have not returned to work as a protest against the military and police guard.

Joseph Burns, General Superintendent for Swift & Co., said the packers have no control over the guards and are without authority to ask their withdrawal.

ALL TO MRS. HAMMERSTEIN.

Impresario's Will Ready for Filing—Only 166 Words.

The will of Oscar Hammerstein, which was prepared for filing yesterday at the office of Edward Lauterbach, leaves everything to his wife, Mrs. Emma Hammerstein, it was stated, and appoints her executrix to serve without bond. The will consists of 166 words, and disposes of an estate estimated in the petition at "more than $5,000."

While the impresario was worth more than $1,000,000 at the time of his greatest success in producing operas, the value of his property is now problematical. He owned an equity in the Rialto and Republic theatre properties which is now in litigation due to the fact that the properties involved are in a deed of trust made by Mr. Hammerstein for his first wife, the late Mrs. Malvina Hammerstein and his two daughters.

For information regarding the above Preferred Stock (to be issued by a new company succeeding the present Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc.) we refer to a letter dated August 1, 1919, from Mr. Harry Balfe, President of the existing company, who is to be Chairman of the Board of the new Company. Copies of said letter should be obtained from the undersigned. Mr. Balfe has summarized some of the statements in his letter as follows:

> The position of the business is being greatly strengthened by acquisition of the stock of The Fame Canning Co. and control of Wilson Fisheries Co., providing an assured supply of high quality canned goods, and by the addition of the "Certified" and other grocery product brands popularized by Wilson & Co.
>
> Consolidated statement of total net assets, including new cash working capital now being provided and including earnings of current year to date, show the equivalent of about $160 per share for the new Preferred Stock, the net quick assets alone being over $107 per share. This is exclusive of trade names, brands, etc.
>
> Consolidated net profits (including those of the canning and fisheries business and the net results derived from the sale of "Certified" and other grocery lines for 1918 alone) after depreciation and before allowance for Federal Taxes, based on independent audits, for last three fiscal years, averaged $1,378,947 per annum, these net profits for the last fiscal year being $1,542,284.
>
> Consolidated net profits for the current fiscal year, before allowance for Federal Taxes, are conservatively estimated at $1,650,000 and after estimated Federal Taxes, at $1,310,000 or about 3.40 times the annual dividend requirements on the new Preferred Stock.
>
> The company is not to create any mortgage on its real estate or equipment without the consent of at least two-thirds in amount of the outstanding Preferred Stock.
>
> A cumulative sinking fund for the purchase or redemption of the Preferred Stock at not exceeding 115 and accrued dividends is to be created by setting aside annually from profits on March 1st, commencing with 1921, a sum equal to 3% of the aggregate par value of the Preferred Stock issued.
>
> Application will be made to list the Preferred and Common Stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., Public Accountants, have examined the books of the various constituent companies for the last fiscal year and Messrs. Kelly, Gray & Co., Certified Public Accountants, have audited the books of Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., for the past three years.

The legal proceedings in connection with the issue of stock are being passed upon by Messrs. Cravath & Henderson and Messrs. Hornblower, Miller, Garrison & Potter.

Delivery may be made in the form of interim receipts which will, by their terms, be exchangeable for stock certificates "when, as and if issued."

A copy of the full provisions covering the rights and preferences of the Preferred Stock will be furnished as soon as available, and reference thereto is made for all details.

STOCK EXCHANGE HOUSE.

Wanted—New York Stock Exchange House to give consideration to opening Branch in principal part of city which at present is not covered. Sufficient business in hand to defray all expense. Great possibilities would be readily realized. Most attractive proposition to start at once in anticipation of large Fall clientele. B 88 Times.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed under pressure on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday, following urgent liquidation on which prices of the active issues suffered recessions ranging from 5 to 17 points. United States Steel common was offered down 5⅝ points, while Crucible declined 8⅝, Bethlehem Steel B 5⅝, and Baldwin Locomotive 8½. Mexican Petroleum netted a loss of 9⅝, Pan American 7⅝, and Royal Dutch of New York 4⅝. United States Rubber moved over a wide range, gaining 5 points at the opening and falling back 15⅛. United Retail Stores moved down 7⅞, Central Leather 8 points, and United States Food Products 5½. Reading declined 4 points, while Southern Pacific lost 2⅝, St. Paul 3½, and New Haven 3¼. Stutz Motors netted a loss of 9 points, while others of this group averaged losses of from 3 to 7 points. The copper shares suffered losses averaging about 4 points, while the marines, which scored early advances, fell back in unison with the general trend to figures several points lower than the closing quotations of Wednesday.

THINKS LABOR CRISIS WILL SOON PASS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Lord Rothermere, who is regarded as an authority on financial and industrial conditions, said today he was not pessimistic regarding the outlook for Great Britain in spite of numerous strikes and labor troubles.

"We are going through the teething process after the birth of a new era," he said. "There are some dark days before us but in twelve months' time the storms will have been weathered and England will commence to improve her position financially and commercially. There are signs now among the working classes that they are getting tired of bossism by their leaders, and there also is trouble brewing between unions. This is shown by the failure of the police strike to paralyze the industrial life of the country. If it had occurred three months ago the unions would have come out and supported them.

"The trouble with the Yorkshire miners in my opinion is that the leaders of their union are against the leaders of the general miners' union. There is no doubt in my mind there will be a general decrease in productions all over the world. The United States with all her vast resources will suffer because of the shortage of labor, which, I am informed, is leaving the country in thousands because they cannot have their light wines. There will be a shortage of some articles of food in England, but we shall be all right again when we get ships enough to transport products from Canada, Australia and the Argentine.

"The situation is bad here through congestion at the docks and warehouses in London and Liverpool. They are filled with thousands of tons of war supplies, and why the Government does not dispose of them I do not know. If this were done there would be ample storage space for the cargoes of the ships which are waiting to unload.

"America will probably send us less foodstuffs in the coming Winter because of the agitation going on over there about high prices, but it is unlikely that the Government at Washington will attempt to stop the farmer from sending his supplies to the world's markets."

"Do you think there is any danger of Great Britain going bankrupt, as has been predicted in some quarters?" he was asked.

"No," said Lord Rothermere, speaking emphatically. "If England goes bankrupt the whole world will go, too, including the United States. We shall have some bad times, but there is no danger of the country being ruined financially as there are too many important interests involved."

Strikes Continue.

LONDON, Aug. 7, (Associated Press.)—There is virtually no change in the labor situation tonight. The strikes of bakers and Yorkshire miners are still unsettled, but the railway position in London is resuming its normal condition. The situation at Liverpool is greatly improved, but the tramway strike continues and there is a great scarcity of bread.

It was announced in the House of Commons today that for the week ending July 26 the coal output was nearly 50 per cent. under the previous average.

Childs, which said petitions and orders are now on file with the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, directing all persons, firms and corporations having any claims against any of the securities pledged with DeCoppet & Doremus, or Bank of Great Neck, L. I., or Park Bank of Baltimore, or Nyack National Bank of Nyack, or Merchants' National Bank of Jersey City, or Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank, or People's Savings Bank of Worcester, or the stocks, bonds, coupons and cash above mentioned, to file such claims with JOHN J. TOWNSEND, Referee in Bankruptcy, at his office, No. 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 20th day of August, 1919.

TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Referee in Bankruptcy is directed to hear and determine the rights of all claimants, and in all respects to adjust, determine and adjudicate the rights, titles and interests, equities, claims and liens of all and any persons making or asserting any claim or right to said stocks, bonds and coupons and to said respective funds, etc., and said Referee in Bankruptcy will give notice of all hearings to all who have filed such claims.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the said order provides that all creditors and other persons who shall not file a notice of claim against the said stocks, bonds, coupons or funds as aforementioned, on or before the 20th day of August, 1919, will be forever barred from making claim or asserting any title or ownership in and to any part of said funds, stocks, bonds and coupons.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the said order provides that all persons claiming rights, titles, interests, equities or liens, in and to any of the said stocks, bonds, coupons or the proceeds thereof, are enjoined and restrained from beginning, maintaining or prosecuting any action at law or proceedings in equity against the said DeCoppet & Doremus, Bank of Great Neck, L. I., Park Bank of Baltimore, Nyack National Bank of Nyack, N. Y., Merchants' National Bank of Jersey City, Charlestown Five Cents Savings Bank and People's Savings Bank of Worcester, or against the Receiver, or the Trustee when appointed or elected, except the prosecution of their claims as provided by said order.

Dated, New York, July 8, 1919.

Will Hold Corset Evening.

A "Corset Evening" will be given in the auditorium of the Bush Terminal Sales Building next Wednesday, Aug. 13, at 8:30 o'clock. The program will include a talk by Miss Edith Burtis, formerly fashion editor of The Ladies' Home Journal, on the "Evolution of the Corset and Underwear Review will given on live models. A. J. Haire of The Corset and Underwear Review will speak on "Turn-overs in Your Corset Department." An informal discussion of corset styles, the market situation and other trade topics will be held. The meeting will be open to the trade.

Russia to Restrict Fur Exports.

Russia has placed stringent restrictions on the shipment of furs from that country, according to advices received by the Metropolitan Fur Exchange, and as a result it is thought that the present high prices of furs will be driven even higher. Some large consignments were expected from Russia, and, if they fail to be received, the present shortage of skins will be aggravated. The Exchange expects to have $1,000,000 worth of furs to offer at its auction which takes place on Aug. 19.

Extending Use of Knitted Goods.

One of the chief lines along which the expansion of knitted goods is being conducted at present, it was pointed out yesterday, is in the creation of new fields for the use of these fabrics. Manufacturers are now busy planning gowns for next Spring which will be made of knitted materials. Formerly the manufacturers confined themselves to producing strong and durable sweaters, but now they are combining style with utility and designing a variety of garments, opening new and profitable fields.

American Woolen Co. Opening.

The American Woolen Company yesterday opened Spring 1920 lines. They were restricted to fancies and no staples were shown. As reported in this column, allotments were made on a basis of 10 per cent. of the usual quantities taken by buyers. The demand for goods was such at the opening that the company was understood to have very little of its small offering left at the close of the day's business. The following price ranges occurred in the departments opened: Department 2, from $2.25 to $4.50; Department 3, from $1.45 to $4.77; and Department 7, $3.50 to $6.50.

Talk of Collar Increases Again.

While there have been some reports to the effect that collars are to see another increase on October 1, representatives of some of the leading collar manufacturers were not prepared to say yesterday whether such advances would come. The sales manager for one house stated that it is quite natural to think of increases under present conditions, but that as far as collars are concerned everything will depend upon the future state of the cotton goods market. The last advance on collars was made effective July 1 when the price rose from $1.90 to $2.10 a dozen.

Coat and Suit Merger Planned.

Several of the largest houses in the coat and suit industry are planning a merger, it was reported yesterday, that will give this city the biggest company of its kind in the world. The houses mentioned in the report not only lead the trade at present in the manufacture of various styles of women's garments but also have extensive retail interests. R. Sadowsky, whose name has been connected with the new enterprise, was not prepared yesterday to make a statement in regard to the reported merger. "It is not yet the proper time to make an announcement," he said, "but you might say that I have very large plans in view, which I prefer to discuss later."

Men's Neckwear to Go Higher.

Unless something occurs radically to change the situation, it was said yesterday, it will be impossible for manufacturers of the so-called popular priced neckwear for men to offer Spring lines with the cheapest item costing the retailer less than $12 a dozen. In the "good old days" the average moderately priced line had in it ties that sold as low as $2.25 a dozen. Tremendous business was done on numbers priced at $4.50. The holiday lines, it was further said, will have $8 a dozen goods as their cheapest. While the rise is due to the increased cost of production the manufacturers say that the biggest factors in it are the sharp advances that are taking place in tie silks.

Gray Goods Still Dull.

Reports from the local gray goods market yesterday indicated little change in the situation. One of the leading commission firms had not received a single inquiry for any kind of goods at 2:30 P. M., which just about established a "quiet" record with them. Some inquiry was reported for the lighter sheetings, which appear to be wanted for bag purposes, but no great amount of business was put through on them. As for printcloths, first hands were again out of it. Second hands were said to be selling goods at any "reasonable" price buyers were willing to pay, and there were unconfirmed reports of sales, for August delivery, of 38½-inch 64-60s at 17½ cents. Similar shipments of 39-inch 68-72s and 38½-inch 60-48s were reported sold from the same sources at prices a quarter to a half-cent below recent second, hand-levels.

Raw Silk Prices Firmer.

The Yokohama raw silk market has recovered quite a little of the ground lost in the recent slump. Late cables tell of a gain of 30 yen per picul in the price of Sinshiu No. 1, which puts it at 2,270 yen. Shipments of Japanese silk to this country during July totaled 24,000 bales, against 500 bales sent to Europe in the same period. Stocks on hand at Yokohama are placed at 15,000 bales, against 14,000 bales at this time last year. Canton is reported firm at unchanged prices, and the same is largely true of Shanghai. Milan is very firm, and advancing under the influence of good buying for both American and European account. Lyons continues to improve. The local market is quiet, but steady. Prices are holding their own in spite of the labor situation at Paterson.

GUARD PLANS FIGHT ON SERVICE BILL

Berry, in Statement, Says Branches Will Be Formed in Every State.

ASSAILS MILITIA BUREAU

The Executive, Legislative and Law Committees of the National Guard Association of the United States, after being in session in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory since last Monday, adjourned, subject to the call of the Executive Chairman, yesterday. The main result of the conference was the unanimous decision of the Guardsmen to fight, with all the means in their power, the enactment into law of the Chamberlain-Kahn Universal Service Military bill, which they denounced at Tuesday's conference as the "swan song of the General Staff."

Adjutant General Charles W. Berry of this State, who presided, issued a statement following the adjournment, in which he said that the association will organize for the fight on the bill. Headquarters will be established in this city and branches in every State. The association is now drafting a military program of its own which will be urged as a substitute for the Chamberlain-Kahn bill. This program will be made public within the next few days.

General Berry denied that the association is in any way opposed to universal service. As a matter of fact, he said, the association is whole-heartedly for the universal principle, but it insists that the principle shall be developed in conjunction with the National Guard of the country.

Adjutant General Berry's statement follows, in part:

"It must be emphasized that the Chamberlain-Kahn bill conscripts our citizens for service in the Regular Army in time of peace, and that the conference is absolutely opposed to such conscription.

"The policy of the National Guard Association as to universal service is set forth in the resolution adopted at the convention held last May in St. Louis, which resolution reads: 'Resolved, That universal military training is a necessary step toward adequate national preparedness and for the proper development of the citizen soldiery of the nation; and we affirm that it can best be developed in conjunction with the National Guard.'

"When the National Defense act was enacted it contemplated an existing organization, which organization, under the interpretation of the act by the Judge Advocate General's Department of the army, was wiped out of existence by being drafted into Federal service. The National Defense act contains no practical provisions for the reorganization of the National Guard, and so that the National Guard may exist while numerous service bills are being discussed and considered a number of immediate amendments will be necessary.

"Even more important than the amendments is the question of obtaining reasonable co-operation from the Militia Bureau at Washington, which is officered exclusively by Regular Army officers who are apparently without experience with, or understanding of, the National Guard problems and whose ideas are based solely upon the theory of the General Staff as to what is necessary under war time conditions, without any regard to the maintenance, in time of peace of rorces in small communities, or without regard to existing conditions in armories throughout the United States as to the handling and housing of troops. The opinion of the conferees was unanimous that the Militia Bureau was impeding and hampering the reorganization of the National Guard."

MARCH DEFENDS ARMY PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The permanent military policy recommended by the War Department, involving, under revised estimates, a standing peace army of 576,000 and universal military training for youths of 19 years of age, would cost the country $900,000,000 a year, General March, Chief of Staff, told the Senate Military Sub-Committee today. General March was unable to conclude his statement today, and will appear again tomorrow. Secretary Baker will present his views to the committee next week, and General Pershing and other experts later.

Of the $900,000,000 which the program would cost, General March said, $798,660,000 would be required for the upkeep of the proposed standing army, while three months' intensive training for 19-year-old youths would cost $94,066,500 annually. He estimated the per capita cost for this training at $144.75.

The Chief of Staff asserted that the present time was most appropriate for inauguration of a system of military training, inasmuch as military camps were in readiness over the country, and also the necessary equipment.

In response to questions by various Senators, General March said that youths subject to military training under the bill would not be subject to service in case of a declaration of war without further legislation by Congress. He also said it was proposed to provide three distinct training periods of three months each in order not to disturb industrial and educational conditions any more than necessary.

SUMMING UP STARTS IN FORD LIBEL SUIT

Special to The New York Times.

MT. CLEMENS, Mich., Aug. 7.—The jurymen in the $1,000,000 libel suit of Henry Ford against The Chicago Tribune started on the last five days' period of their three months' labors today, when they listened to the first address in the summing up of the case.

The day's arguments were between William Lucking, Jr., member of the firm representing Mr. Ford, and Weymouth Kirkland, representative of The Tribune's Chicago counsel.

Mr. Lucking declared The Tribune's reference to Henry Ford as an anarchist to have been malicious, false, and defamatory, and said it has been circulated in 400,000 papers and was "seared in the minds" of more than a million persons.

The Tribune, he said, could escape liability only by proving the charges true. He declared The Tribune had produced no proof that its statements were true, and he asked the jurors to consider what the million and a half readers of The Tribune thought was meant by the expression, "Ford is an anarchist."

"There are only two libels which can be alleged," said Mr. Kirkland in opening for the defense. "The first, that Henry Ford is an ignorant idealist, which is proved by his peace ship, by his remarks on the sinking of the Lusitania approving an imaginary vote of five small boys that the passengers had no business on the ship, and by Mr. Ford's own testimony on the witness stand.

"The second is that he is an anarchist and we shall be able to show you where the evidence proves that. A man who contributes to make the Government inefficient is an anarchist. A man who follows the teachings of well recognized anarchists is an arch anarchist. A man who attempts to interfere with the Government in putting down anarchy is an anarchist. Henry Ford comes in every class. If he had said in 1917 what he said in 1915-1916 he would be in Leavenworth."

Oscar Lungenhausen will probably take up the argument for Ford Friday morning.

OSTRICH FEATHERS SOLD.

Second Auction of the Kind in This City Was a Success.

About $160,000 was paid for the 8,000 to 9,000 pounds of ostrich feathers put under the hammer here yesterday at the warehouse of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, 48 to 52 Great Jones Street, in the second public auction of this merchandise ever held here. The prices obtained were on a par with those paid by buyers at the first sale, which was held here about a month ago, but they were said to be "away below" the general quotations on similar goods in the local market. Local quotations, in turn, were said to be from 30 to 35 per cent. lower than the Cape, London and Paris markets. With ostrich as popular as it is now, however, steady and rapid advances here are regarded as inevitable.

The sale consisted of 325 lots of wing and body feathers, among them being several fine Western marks. The selling was completed by Auctioneer J. Gordon Noakes in three hours and fifteen minutes. This was an average of 1.55 lots a minute, which compared very favorably with the European sales record of 2 lots a minute.

The highest price paid was $100 per pound. It was got for Lot 16, which included three and one-half pounds of prime whites, eighteen to twenty-two inches long. A local importer was the buyer. This is the general range of prices: Body feathers, $1.25 to $20 a pound; spadones, $10 to $18 a pound; bloods, $69 to $98 a pound, and wings, $20 to $100 per pound. Practically every local importer and manufacturer of ostrich feather products was present at the sale, which was begun at 10:30 A. M. At 12:30 a short recess was taken, and a light lunch was served free to those present by the R. & R. Importing Company, Inc., which had the sale in charge.

Is the Small Man Better Off?

There has come up here the question of just how much better off, if any, the small retailer in this and other cities is as a result of the present prosperity. A case was cited yesterday of a retailer in a fair sized Southern city who, in 1918, did a business of $78,000. This year, to July 1, he had done $48,000, and expected at least to duplicate that figure during the final six months, which would give him a total of $96,000 for 1919. At this rate he would show a gain for 1919 of $18,000, or about 22 per cent. He came to this market and found that to buy only a little more than his 1918 volume of goods, mostly women's ready-to-wear, he would have to spend $30,000 in place of the $12,000 he formerly allotted for this purpose. Thus, he says, he has had to increase his Fall purchases 150 per cent. to show a probable gain for the year of 22 per cent., and he is wondering just where he is going to stand on Dec. 31.

The Weather.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Pressure is falling in the Atlantic States, and a low pressure area of moderate intensity is central over the St. Lawrence Valley. Pressure has risen decidedly over the upper lake region, attending the eastward advance of a moderate high pressure area, the centre of which is over Manitoba. During the last twenty-four hours showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the Atlantic States, along the East Gulf Coast, and in the lower Missouri Valley and portions of the upper lake region, and in the central and southern Rocky Mountain region. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather has been generally fair.

Temperatures have risen in the Atlantic States and have fallen over the upper Mississippi Valley, the Northern upper lake region, and the Southern plains States. They are generally above normal, however, except in the Northern upper lake region and the extreme upper Mississippi Valley.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Friday and Saturday east of the Mississippi River, except that showers and thunderstorms are probable Friday in New England and the South Atlantic and East Gulf States and on Saturday along the East Gulf and South Atlantic Coasts.

It will be somewhat cooler Saturday in the Lower Lake Region and the North Atlantic States; otherwise the temperature changes will not be marked.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast: North of Sandy Hook, moderate to fresh southwest winds, showers; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate southwest winds, partly cloudy; Hatteras to Florida Straits, moderate, variable winds, mostly south and southwest, partly cloudy weather; East Gulf Coast, moderate, variable winds, local showers and thunder storms; West Gulf Coast, gentle, variable winds and fair weather.

FORECAST TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania: Generally fair Friday and Saturday, slightly cooler Saturday.

3 A. M.	69	82	4 P. M.	84	102
9 A. M.	70	89	9 P. M.	76	92
12 M.	73	97	11 P. M.	77	93

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 76; for the corresponding date last year it was 92; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 73.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 70; at 8 P. M. it was 76. Maximum temperature, 84 degrees at 3:40 P. M.; minimum, 68 degrees at 6:30 A. M. Humidity, 92 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 84 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.83 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.72 inches.

QUESTIONS 4 GIRLS ON RED ACTIVITIES

EMPLOYED AT RAND SCHOOL

Four Men Also Served by State Troopers—Nature of Testimony Withheld.

The Peace and Safety act, which was passed as a war measure by the 1917 Legislature, was invoked yesterday by Attorney General Charles D. Newton for the purpose of eliciting information regarding the Rand School of Social Science from eight unwilling and surprised witnesses, four of whom were young girls. Bertram D. Wolfe, a Left Wing Socialist of Brooklyn, and Eamonn MacAlpine, one of the editors of the Revolutionary Age, an extreme radical organ, were also examined under this law.

According to one report, Deputy Attorney General Berger, who questioned the witnesses, was seeking to confirm that the "Are you prepared to meet the militia?" letter, a copy of which was found in the Rand School files when the school was raided on June 21 by agents of the Legislative Committee investigating sedition, had been written by a prominent Socialist in this city, at present filling an elective office.

According to one report, Deputy Attorney General Berger when asked regarding this. "The Peace and Safety Act makes it a misdemeanor for any one connected with an investigation conducted under it to divulge any part of the testimony, the questions asked, or even the identity of the persons examined."

The girl witnesses were subpoenaed at the People's House, 7 East Fifteenth Street, where the Rand School has its quarters. They were Lillian Barber, secretary to Alexander L. Trachtenberg, Director of Research; Nancy Markoff, stenographer to Louis P. Lochner, one of the instructors of the Rand School, and Lena Barish and Sarah Karps, stenographers in the office of Mrs. Bertha H. Mailly, Executive Secretary of the Rand School. Wolfe and MacAlpine were picked up at Left Wing Socialist Headquarters, 43 West Twenty-ninth Street.

The subpoenas were of the "John Doe" variety and were served by State troopers, who escorted the prospective witnesses to the Attorney General's office at 51 Chambers Street. The examination of the witnesses, it was said, had not been ordered by the Lusk Committee, but was on the initiative of Attorney General Newton.

At the Rand School officials characterized the activity of the Attorney General's office as a "fishing expedition." Deputy Attorney General Berger absolutely declined to give any information regarding the identity of the witnesses and the purpose of the examination. It was learned, however, that important evidence was obtained and that this will be used in the preparation of the Attorney General's new action to forfeit the charter of the Rand School. An earlier action was dismissed last week by Justice McAvoy of the Supreme Court.

Each of the witnesses from the Rand School, who, besides the four girls, included two young men working in the Rand School Book Store, were warned against divulging anything that transpired at the examination to their superiors at the Rand School or to any other person. A clause of the Peace and Safety act making it a prison offense to tell what questions had been asked or answers given was read to the witnesses after they had been sworn.

S. John Block and I. M. Sackin, attorneys for the Rand School, it was learned, have been subpoenaed to appear before the special Grand Jury which will be sworn in when the extraordinary term of the Supreme Court summoned by Governor Smith convenes on Monday to try cases growing out of the legislative investigation of Bolshevism and sedition.

Mrs. Ethel J. Lockwood Gets Divorce

WHITE PLAINS, Aug. 7.—Ethel J. Lockwood, a singer, living in White Plains, has been granted a final decree of divorce by Supreme Court Justice Platt from her husband, Benoni Lockwood, a New York business man. Mrs. Lockwood, in her suit, designated an unnamed actress as co-respondent. Lockwood denied his wife's charges and made counter-charges against her.

ABANDON HOTEL PROJECT.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 7.—Uncertainty as to the future of the material market and the steadily increasing cost of labor was said to be responsible for the abandonment of a project for the erection of a massive hotel of several hundred rooms on the old Windsor site, opposite the Hotel Traymore, at Illinois Avenue and the Boardwalk.

Projectors announced several weeks ago that the Ritz-Carlton Company would furnish the funds. The cost of the site and building was placed at $2,275,000. It is stated today that the whole enterprise has been abandoned for the time being.

HALIFAX, Aug. 7.—Twenty persons are believed to have lost their lives when the Tern schooner Gallia was sunk last night in a collision with the British steamer War Witch. The schooner is reported to have carried a crew of at least fifteen, and possibly a dozen passenger. Only even survivors are named in wireless messages from the steamer.

The collision occurred close to St. Pierre, and is alleged to have been due to the heavy fog which has prevailed in that locality for some days.

The War Witch was bound for North Sydney from Wabana, N. F., while the Gallia was on her way to St. Pierre from France. News of the catastrophe reached here in wireless messages to the agents of the War Witch.

Chile Makes Work for Unemployed.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 7.—A ten-million-dollar program of construction was decided upon today by the Municipal Council in order to give work to the unemployed and to alleviate the social unrest, which is considered a prime cause in the high cost of living. The program includes railway work, bridges, schools, and other buildings.

Remove Language Bars in Lorraine.

METZ, Aug. 7.—Owing to the diminution of the German population of Lorraine, and because of the difficulty which many Alsatians and Lorrainers have in speaking French, the prohibition against the speaking of German after 10 o'clock at night has been abolished throughout Lorraine. The prohibition against the use of the German language in the tramways has also been removed.

There are seven candidates for mate, nine for inspector of gas, and seventy-eight for playground and gymnasium attendant, male and female.

United States.

The commission announces for Sept. 2 an examination for plant superintendent, for men only. Vacancies in the Ordnance Department at Large of the War Department, for duty at ordnance establishments throughout the United States, at salaries ranging from $2,000 to $2,400 a year, will be filled from this examination. Certification to fill the higher-salaried positions will be made from those attaining the highest average percentages in the examination. Applicants should have a knowledge of mechanical engineering and plant management, of the planning, laying out, and inspection of work, and of the various mechanical trades. They should have a thorough knowledge of the upkeep of buildings and equipment of establishments similar to the various ordnance depots. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on (1) physical ability, 10; (2) education, training, and experience, 90. Applicants must have graduated from a standard high school or completed a course of study equivalent to that required for such graduation, and have had at least two years' preliminary mechanical experience, or have served an apprenticeship, and have had at least three years' experience in a responsible technical or executive position, the duties of which were similar to those outlined above, one year of which must have been in actual charge of power-plant operation. The successful completion of each year of study in mechanical or electrical engineering in a college or university of recognized standing will be accepted as equivalent to nine months of the required experience, whether preliminary or responsible, except that the applicant must have had at least one year of experience in actual charge of power-plant operation. Applicants must not have reached their fiftieth birthday on the date of the examination.

Education Notes.

Plans and specifications have been approved for an addition to the Newtown High School. The estimated cost is $800,000. Superintendent Snyder says that it will practically double the size of the present building. Plans and specifications for the addition to P. S. 83, Manhattan, have also been adopted, at an estimated cost of $288,000.

The Board of Education has approved the action of Director Eugene C. Gibney in assigning pianists as teachers and assistant teachers of kindergartens, due to the shortage of playground teachers.

The school building program for 1919 has been changed by increasing the grand total from $17,906,208 to $18,138,840. Instead of a building of thirty-six classrooms for new P. S. 38, the Bronx, a building of the forty-eight classroom type has been provided for. A thirty-six classroom building has been substituted for the proposed sixteen-room, P. S. 102, Nassau Heights, Queens. All shower baths in new elementary schools will be eliminated. The proposed forty-eight classroom building at 140th Street, east of Alexander Avenue, has been eliminated, the new P. S. 38 being substituted for it.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Trading in the realty market was confined yesterday to apartment house properties and private dwellings. Several big deals of the seven-figure variety are pending, however, and there was an unconfirmed report that a group of Manhattan operators had purchased the twelve-story Townsend Building at 1,121 to 1,127 Broadway.

The structure, which faces Madison Square, fronts 94.4 feet on Broadway and 134.8 feet on Twenty-fifth Street, and is separated from the St. James Building at Broadway and Twenty-sixth Street by a one-story taxpayer. To the west is Trinity Chapel, which extends from Twenty-fifth to Twenty-sixth Street.

Mary A. Sackett and others of New London, Conn., have held title to the property since 1887. It is assessed for taxation purposes at $1,120,000.

Lewisohn Increases Broadway Holdings.

Adolph Lewisohn has increased his Broadway holdings by the purchase of the seven-story Avonmore apartment house at 2,131 Broadway, between Seventy-fourth and Seventy-fifth Streets, occupying a site fronting seventy-two feet and having an average depth of 106 feet. L. J. Phillips & Co. arranged the sale for heirs of James A. Frame, who purchased the land at the auction sale of the Amos E. Eno estate in March, 1899, and shortly afterward erected the present building.

Tenant Buys Building.

The Bramhall-Deane Company bought the twelve-story building, assessed at $194,000 and held at $250,000, at 261 to 265 West Thirty-sixth Street, through Frederick Fox & Co. The purchasers have occupied the buildings since its completion about eight years ago as offices and showrooms for ranges and other kitchen equipment.

Buys Greenwich Village Plot for Garage.

Business Buildings Sold.

The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank sold the four-story business building, on plot 21.6 by 98.9, held at $23,000, at 138 West Twenty-second Street, to an investing client of Thomas J. O'Reilly.

Robert E. Simon resold a six-story loft building at 225 Greene Street, which he purchased last week, to a client of Spear & Co.

Y. M. C. A. Sells Plot.

The Y. M. C. A. sold a plot 37.6 by 100, at 252 West Fifty-third Street, to the Pacific Motor Company through George A. Hampton & Son.

Apartment House Sales.

Richard Cronin bought the five-story nonelevator apartment house, held at $100,000 and renting for nearly $14,000, at 580 West 172d Street, from Paterno & Sons Construction Company, Major Francis S. Paterno, President, through the Frank L. Fisher Company.

Arthur H. Lewis sold a five-story apartment house, 50 by 100, held at $70,000, at 619 West 143d Street, to the 400 Manhattan Avenue Corporation, Adolph Schechter, President.

The Lawyers Mortgage Company sold to an investor the Arthur, a six-story apartment house, 97.6 by 99.11, at 550 West 144th Street, 200 feet east of Broadway. The sellers recently secured the property in a foreclosure for $125,000.

Charles Wynne and Louis H. Low have resold 225 Central Park West, a six-story elevator apartment, on a lot 42 by 100, adjoining the northeast corner of Eighty-second Street, to an investor. The sellers purchased the property last month through Ludlow & Co. George Levy was the broker in the resale.

Private Dwellings.

Mrs. Lewis Lowenstein sold the four-story and basement twenty-foot dwelling at 42 East Seventy-fourth Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, to a client of Pease & Elliman, for occupancy.

Dr. Bennett Beach sold through F. R. Wood & Co. to Mrs. M. L. Tracy, for occupancy, his three-story dwelling at 144 West Eighty-fifth Street, on lot 18 by 100.

The Equitable Life Insurance Company sold for Dr. William J. Conner the three-story dwelling, 215 West 138th Street, on lot 17 by 99.11.

The three-story dwelling, 18 by 102.2, at 12 East Seventy-sixth Street, near Park Avenue, has been sold by John J. Araason to Dr. Berringer.

William S. Strafford is reported to have sold the five-story American basement dwelling, on lot 25 by 102.2, at 6 East Seventy-ninth Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues.

The five-story dwelling at 591 Park Avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth Streets, on lot 25.5 by 97.6, is reported to have been sold by Mrs. Mary F. Potter.

Tenement Deals.

The Broad Street Realty Company sold a six-story tenement, with store, on lot 25 by 117, at 135 West Twenty-fourth Street, through Louis Schrag.

Frances M. Fuchs sold 1,667 First Avenue, southwest corner of Eighty-seventh Street, a five-story tenement, 23.2 by 79, to Carl Wippermann, tenant of the large corner store, through William H. Mehlich, Inc.

The Bronx Market.

The Hunts Point Garage, on Southern Boulevard, at the Hunts Point subway station, a four-story building, accommodating 175 cars, recently sold under foreclosure to satisfy mortgages aggregating $125,000, and afterward held at $150,000, was sold to a client of the Interboro Realty Company.

M. L. & C. Ernst sold the three-story three-family brick house, on a lot 25 by 100, at 841 Whitlock Avenue, near Longwood Avenue, to Louis Lubalin.

The Kountz estate sold twenty-four lots on the east side of University Avenue, between Burnside and Tremont Avenues, to a builder for improvement with one and two family houses. E. Osborne Smith negotiated the sale.

E. H. Leggett sold a two-story brick dwelling at 485 East 134th Street to a Mrs. Wynn through E. M. Phelps. The same broker sold for Julius Glass to Martin Duggan a three-story dwelling at 454 East 138th Street.

Elizabeth Brennan sold to Cecilia A. Savage a two-family house, on a lot 22 by 145, at 2,055 Mapes Avenue, through A. L. Frumento.

The London Feather Company sold to the College Holding Company, J. Schenck President, the corner of Union and Westchester Avenues, on a lot 50 by 114. The house includes ten stores. Rental $16,000 and held for $100,000. B. Harris was the broker.

The Benenson Realty Company sold for S. Ellers the northwest corner of Prospect Avenue and 183d Street, a five-story twenty-four-apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100, with $14,500 rental.

A client of Harry H. Cohen purchased the northeast corner of Crotona Avenue and 179th Street, a five-story, thirty-five-family apartment house, 75 by 100, held at $100,000, and erected a few years ago by the C and C Construction Company.

Brooklyn.

The Clinton Trading Corporation sold the one-family frame dwelling on a plot 50 by 70 irregular, at 283 Bay Eleventh Street, Bath Beach, to Pietro Galante through Philip Bisconte.

'Phone 6500—RECTOR

I want to sell my suburban home. Business takes me to Europe permanently. If you want a fine, well-built, livable home of your own, cheap, answering this notice will furnish the opportunity. The plot has 100 feet of actual waterfront with riparian rights, running in depth 245 feet to Briarcliffe Road. A beautiful lawn with splendid shading oaks and many flowers and shrubs runs to the water's edge. The house is four years old and in perfect condition. There are 4 big rooms on the first floor, 4 fine bedrooms, 2 large bathrooms and sleeping porch on the second floor, and bath, maid's room and billiard room on the third floor. Electric light, heat, water, parquet floors and all city conveniences are installed. Everything up to date and modern. And it is only a few minutes' walk to the railroad station. Express service. Quick, convenient and easy commuting to heart of Manhattan. The price is less than it has cost me to date—$13,500. Most of this can remain on mortgage. If you like the furniture, I will sell that, too, at a bargain. The Owner, Post Office Box 688, City Hall Station, N. Y. C.

MAYOR SEES DOOM OF THE SURFACE CAR

Predicts That It Will Disappear Before Bus Service He Proposes for All Boroughs.

READY FOR A HARD FIGHT

Shortly before departing for his Bushwick Avenue (Brooklyn) home in his auto last evening, Mayor Hylan issued a long statement setting forth in detail his plan for establishing a system of city-owned buses throughout the city to compete with the street car lines. The Mayor prophesied the doom of all street cars, and said it wouldn't be long before the municipal buses would be operating in great numbers all over the city and the traction people would be tearing up their tracks in despair. The Mayor's statement relative to the establishment of bus lines in all five boroughs of the city began thus:

The day of the street surface cars has gone by forever, and it will not be long before New Yorkers will have trackless streets

I see no reason why the people of New York, instead of being jammed like hogs into badly kept surface railway cars and then hung on straps, cannot have decent bus service for a very low cost. A lot of people say that bus service might cost more than 5 cents. The answer to that is that I now have a proposition from a private concern to run 5-cent buses. If a private concern can do it, I am sure that the investigation to be made by the Board of Estimate will demonstrate that we can have 5-cent buses. The surface railways are now trying to force a 7 or 8 cent fare, and we certainly need no introduction to the miserable kind of riding they would give us even for 8 cents, because their proposition does not include anything new for the public. It only covers new profits for the traction people.

The Mayor said the day of the surface railway was ended for several reasons, the first and fundamental one being that "things that go in a groove do not go at all nowadays." Surface railway cars, he said, run in track grooves and therefore they take "all evening to get a tired man or woman from a business place downtown to a home uptown." That, said the Mayor, is the principal reason why the street railway system is doomed.

Aside from the groove drawback, the Mayor said that the gentlemen who have operated the roads have "abused them and robbed them, have killed the goose that laid the golden egg." Despite their past crimes, he said, they have the effrontery to say that the city should consider the roads "as of present day value for the construction." The Mayor asked how many of their cars were built and tracks laid at prices that meant present day wages to laboring men.

"Do they come in," the Mayor asked, "with any guarantee that if the goose lays more golden eggs for them they will always guarantee to pay present day prices for car building, tracklaying, railmaking, and railway employes?" The Mayor's answer to his own question was:

"No, they only want to jam higher fares through while the dollar is temporarily dislocated as to value, and then when the dollar goes back to somewhere near its normal level they will have us high and dry with 8-cent fares that will give them millions more of plunder."

Continuing his argument, the Mayor said:

"I have studied their game just enough to understand their moves as they want them to work out over a period of the next five years. The people of New York elected me to protect them from such plunderers and I am going to do so with every power at the command of the Mayor of New York.

"There is not the slightest doubt in my mind right now that these traction gentlemen would like me to fall for a policy of municipal ownership for the surface railways. That is, they would like to sell their rotten surface railways to the city at a high cost and then go into the bus business. I am told that some of the London traction sharks played such a game on the city of London. But it won't work here.

"Personally I do not consider these surface railways worth very much right now. I do not want the city to get such an antiquated transportation system on its hands. I do want the city to run a real, up-to-date transportation system, and that is why I am for immediately establishing bus lines all over the city."

The Mayor said he noticed that the Broadway Association was in favor of bus lines and he thought that it was very intelligent in "this matter." He thought it would be a good idea if every local association would immediately begin studying the question and make suggestions to him about the needs of their districts. The Mayor then said he had given a lot of thought to the bus question and this is the way he would apply it to ball games:

"After a big ball game the crowd has a frightful time to get started home, and the last car, the one nearest the ball ground, cannot start away until the forward car is filled. A fleet of buses could be stationed all around the ball park to handle the crowd, and each bus could start as soon as it was filled."

Other crowds would be taken care of in the same way. This is the Mayor's solution:

"This would apply to all big gatherings, such as parades. The surface car lines are always paralyzed at the conclusion of any big event in this city. That is because the fastest car is governed in speed by the slowest one on the same track. Buses would eliminate all these delays at once.

"After theatre at night there could be concentration of buses in the theatre district, starting out in all directions. In the early morning most of the buses could be uptown, ready to bring the crowds down to work. In the late afternoon they could be concentrated downtown, ready to give our tired people a decent, pleasant ride up home, with a seat guaranteed for everybody.

"This would end the strap-hanging days of New York. There could be two types of buses. There could be a single-deck bus for sections where the traffic is light, and there could be a big double-deck bus, carrying 80 to 100 persons, for the sections where traffic is heavy.

"When we get a big fleet of municipal buses at work the surface car lines will simply go out of business, and after they stop operating we will lift up their tracks, and our people will wonder why we countenanced them for so many years after they had outlived their day."

The Mayor believes that a bus express service could be established, the buses making long-distance trips downtown and uptown during the rush hours without stopping except at long intervals. But the Mayor said he foresaw a great fight against him by the traction interests.

"Of course," he continued, "I expect a big fight over this—one of the biggest fights any Mayor ever had—and I suppose some of the public officials will be in sympathy with the traction people. But I am going to make the fight for municipal buses, because I think it is the only up-to-date idea in traction that has been advanced.

"Let the traction robbers go right along trying to gouge the public. I will have the city's legal force fight them to the limit, and I know that the public is with me all the way. And while they are trying to rob our people we will simply create a new traction method that will leave them with a worthless system on which the people won't ride at any price.

"Traction people will begin to have all kinds of objections to bus operation. They will probably tell us we will have tire trouble and that we will have to repave lots of the streets. I expect them to be very insidious and active against me. But when we call the automobile people and the tire people in to help us solve these problems I am sure they will be mighty glad to see the biggest city in the world modernize its traction methods and they will wipe out all such objections."

Despite all this opposition, the Mayor said he would "beat them at their own game." He said he wanted every man and woman in the city to begin thinking about how much superior a municipal bus service would be and then when the traction companies found they couldn't "work off their lines on the city" they would "gladly throw all of the surface line apparatus into the junk heap."

NEW YORK AWAITS THE FAMOUS SECOND

GEN. LEJEUNE TO COMMAND

The 2d Division of regulars and marines, who fought in all of the great battles in which Americans participated in the war against Germany and who suffered battle casualties that totaled more than 24,000 men, will parade up Fifth Avenue this afternoon. Never before in the history of the city has there been seen in marching column so many officers and enlisted men of regular organizations as will be acclaimed today by the people of New York. The parade will start at the Washington Arch in Washington Square at 3 P. M., the route being Fifth Avenue to 110th Street. The head of the column should be abreast of the official reviewing stand at Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue at about 3:45 P. M.

There will be approximately 25,000 troops in line, who will be led by their famous commander, Major Gen. John A. Lejeune of the marines, in his last official appearance as the commander of this far-famed fighting organization. The Weather Bureau predicts fair weather for the parade.

General Lejeune will be escorted by his entire divisional staff, which includes officers from all branches of the regular army as well as the marines. Ahead of General Lejeune will ride a picked troop of New York policemen.

The soldiers of the 2d Division will arrive in New York this morning from the various demobilization camps in and near the city. There will be approximately 8,500 Marines and 16,500 regulars.

Neighbors Try to Help Recover Kidnapped Child.

A reward of $500 was offered yesterday for information leading to the return of seven weeks old Arthur Philip Wentz, who was taken from a baby carriage in which his mother had left him in front of a department store in the Bronx on Tuesday of last week.

The offer was made by neighbors of the mother, Mrs. August Wentz of 725 Home Street. The strain of the search for the missing child proved too great for August Wentz, the babe's father, who has collapsed and is under a physician's care.
